Testifying under oath in the trial of the German agent, George Sylvester Viereck, Representative Hamilton Fish yesterday denied that Nazi propaganda ever went out of his office with his "consent and approval."

Fish also:

1. Admitted he had known Viereck 10 or 15 years.
2. Called Viereck an American citizen of good standing.
3. Called the prosecutor a liar.
4. Said "I don't know" or "It could have happened," when asked about details of the charge of his former secretary, George Hill, that it was Fish who told him to send franked speeches for Viereck to Fish's private mailing list.

Viereck is on trial before Justice F. Dickinson Letts and a jury of the District Court, on charges of violating the Foreign Agents Act, by concealing his use of Congressmen and their franks for his Nazi propaganda machine.

Dennett Refuses to Answer

Viereck's Washington operative was Prescott Dennett, a promoter of paper isolationist committees, who refused to answer any questions on the witness stand yesterday, pleading that he was afraid he would incriminate himself.

Hill said Dennett gave him manuscripts which Hill would get isolationist Congressmen to place in the Congressional Record. Then, with money from Dennett, Hill bought hundreds of thousands of reprints, which he sent with franked envelopes to Dennett.

Dennett mailed them out. Summoned by the special grand jury on Axis agents, Dennett hastily got rid of a ton of the material. Hill helped him and was convicted of perjury for denying it, and for denying he knew Viereck.

Decided to Tell Truth

Saying he had decided to tell the truth "because I am an American," Hill took the witness stand against the German agent day before yesterday and told of his part in Viereck's propaganda operations.

Bomber Crashes In Potomac Here; Ferry Pilot Killed

A civilian pilot ferrying a light bomber to the East crashed to his death in the Potomac River off Bolling Field yesterday afternoon.

The pilot was identified as Jack H. Marine, of the Air Corps Ferry Command. His wife lives in Phoenix, Ariz.

Marine, coming from Dayton, Ohio, had landed at Bolling Feld for refueling. Taking off, the plane rose about 200 feet, then nosed dived into 3 feet of water about midway between Bolling Field and National Airport.

The plane buried itself partially in the mud.

Bolling Field officials were unable to say whether Marine died as a result of the crash or from drowning. He was dead when pulled from the plane.

Conversion of Government

Civil Selective Service System Being Studied for Federal Jobs

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Federal Diary Editor

A selective service system for Federal employes whereby Uncle Sam's civilian workers would be placed in jobs where they would be of the greatest service to the Nation in winning the war is under consideration.

Under such a system, it's argued, the conversion of Government to a war footing would be speeded. The sweeping order would give war agencies priorities on the services of experienced Federal workers.

The Civil Service Commission would be empowered to make transfers of employes from non-war to war jobs. And thousands of employes here would be shifted to war work under the proposal. Agencies now have authority to prevent their employes from transferring to war work. They would lose this power under the plan which is expected to be announced within 10 days.

A survey revealed that only between 8000 and 9000 Federal employes have been transferred to war agencies since the emergency was declared in June 1940. At the present rate of hiring this number would supply war agencies' needs for about six weeks or two months at the most. More than 5000 new workers a month are being brought here by the Government.

Many officials here believe that from 20,000 to 25,000 employes could easily have been transferred to war work. And they still believe thousands could be shifted. The survey was made following the President's order for a restudy of fiscal and personnel in view of the lengthening of employe hours from 39 to 44 hours a week.

The move to put into effect a selective service system for Federal workers will be popular with the employes. Thousands of employes have been anxious to get into war jobs and they would have transferred long ago if the agencies in which they work had approved their

Ewing Jury Gets Attack Case Today

Girl's Mother Testifies Star Defense Witness Called Him Guilty

By Robert W. Harvey
Post Staff Writer

The case of Orman W. Ewing, one-time Utah national committeeman accused of attacking a 19-year-old Government stenographer last October, was ready to go to a District jury last night, after the mother of the blond complainant had made a dramatic appearance on the witness stand.

The last to give testimony, the mother, in a tense, low voice, told the jurors that Hester Chamberlin, star defense witness, had visited her in Utah last November and admitted to her that she believed Ewing to be guilty.

Not Cross-Examined

The witness, who lives in Provo, Utah, was asked by Prosecutor John W. Fihelly:

"Did you ask Hester if she thought Ewing was guilty of raping your daughter, and did Hester answer 'yes?'"

"Yes," replied the mother, turning her head to speak directly to the jury.

"Did Hester say that he was facing the electric chair and therefore she had to be on his side?"

"Yes."

"Did you ask her to consider what you had been through as a mother?"

"Yes."

"That's all," Fihelly said. "The Government rests."

She was not cross-examined.

Jury to Be Charged Today

Justice James W. Morris is scheduled to deliver his instructions to the jurors when court convenes at 10 a. m. today, and Ewing's fate will then be put in their hands. Both prosecution and defense finished their closing arguments last night in a court session which lasted until 6:30 p. m.

Ewing is charged with having broken into the girl's room in the Whitestone Apartments—which he owns jointly with Miss Chamberlin—and attacking her in the early morning hours of October 26.

He has directly denied these ac-

Mrs. Roosevelt Quits OCD To Aid Agency

Wishes to Spare Unit Attacks Made Because Of Her Own Beliefs

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

With the statement that she wished the agency to be "free of attack," Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt yesterday resigned from the Office of Civilian Defense.

"By remaining," she wrote Director James M. Landis, "I would only make it possible for those who wish to attack me, because of my beliefs, to attack an agency which I consider can prove its usefulness so completely to the people. . . .

"No individual is more important than a good program. I feel that yours is and will be a program vital to the well-being of the people of the country."

By resigning from her first Government job, Mrs. Roosevelt freed the hands of Director Landis to continue his announced program of gearing the OCD for emergency action.

Receives Landis' Thanks

Landis thanked the First Lady for remaining with the agency "during the most critical days that the Office of Civilian Defense has faced." He was referring to the recent Nation-wide criticism of the disorganized manner in which OCD had been operating under LaGuardia's absentee management.

"I need not tell you," the director wrote Mrs. Roosevelt, "what the world knows, that you brought to the Office of Civilian Defense the vision and the energy to carry out those portions of the executive order that directed us to mobilize the energy of everybody behind the defense, now the war, effort.

"Not a farm nor a home but is now conscious of the imprint of your spirit; indeed, no one but now knows that they have a task in civilian defense. This has been true building of America's fighting faiths beside which criticism is puny, attack misplaced."

He declared the OCD could never lose "either the sense of direction that you have given it or the sup-

Chief Air Raid Warden's View

'Merciless' Bombings Predicted For Capital Within 6 Months

Chief Air-Raid Warden Clement Murphy predicted yesterday that Washington would be bombed "mercilessly" within six months.

"I believe we are going to die by the thousands here on these streets within six months," he told several hundred office and bank building wardens meeting at the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"I have grave doubts that we are going to be able to protect ourselves, our civilian population. If we were bombed tonight, the people of the city would not know what to do."

There would be "hysterical people, people who would actually die from fear, standing up," Murphy declared. "Very few people burn to death. They are scared to death."

Murphy's ominous remarks were intended to frighten the building wardens into action. The meeting was called by Rufus S. Lusk, deputy air-raid warden in charge of office and bank buildings, to "speed up the job that has to be done."

"We have not begun to do the job that has to be done," declared Lusk. Some, he said, "are taking this thing as a joke." He called on these to resign their posts immediately.

Outlining "musts" for the wardens, Lusk said the first was to institute fire drills immediately.

"You must train everybody in your building in what to do in case of an alarm," he said.

The wardens also heard Mary Mason, Murphy's assistant for women's participation, and Lew S. Mohler, zone warden under Lusk.

A sound film on incendiary bombs was presented, and Chief Murphy announced he would provide firemen as instructors for the building wardens.

Army Given Rule of Japs, Alien or Not

Power to Evacuate 5th Column Suspects Applicable to Any Area, All Residents

Authority to establish "military areas" from which all civilians, either citizens or aliens, may be excluded was given the War Department yesterday by President Roosevelt.

It was explained that the measure was aimed primarily at the 45,000 alien Japanese and the 60,000 second-generation Japanese on the West Coast. Any area in the United States deemed vital to the Nation's military effort could be evacuated, however, under the President's executive order.

Though the order was signed Thursday, it was witheld from publication until today at the request of the War Department.

Check on Aliens Ordered

At the same time, the Justice Department announced that all United States attorneys have been authorized to make "spot checks" on compliance of enemy aliens with war regulations. These checks may be made by searching homes or business places of enemy aliens. Since enemy aliens have no legal rights, no search warrants will be needed.

The President's order providing for military areas differed from establishment of martial law in that suspension of civil authority and civil courts is not contemplated, Attorney General Biddle explained. He added that, while the executive order permitted establishment of such areas anywhere, he had been informed by Secretary of War Stimson that at present removal "mainly of Japanese" from the West Coast was probable.

"Of course," he said, "this is primarily a Japanese problem; a serious Japanese problem."

Feeling Strong on Coast

Biddle said, "There is a very strong feeling" on the West Coast that the "Japanese situation is dangerous" and recalled enemy submarine attacks there and alarms of enemy air activities.

He said there are 350 agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on the Pacific Coast now and explained that evacuation of enemy aliens and possibly American citizens from that area would be on a larger scale than heretofore. The Department of Justice, he remarked, "cannot, and in the case of citizens, should not" conduct removal of persons on a large scale.

Under terms of the President's executive order, transportation, food, shelter, medical attention and other necessary accommodations will be provided for evacuated persons by the Government. All branches of the Government were directed to aid the War Department in furnishing such assistance to evacuees.

Approval of the President's course was expressed by West Coast mem-

Savage Battles Raging on Bali; 3 German Warships Reported Heading North Along Norway

Tirpitz, Scheer And Hipper Out To Block Convoys, Stockholm Says

By the Associated Press

London (Saturday), Feb. 21. Three big German warships, the 35,000-ton battleship Tirpitz, the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer and the 10,000-ton cruiser Admiral Hipper were reported today steaming northward along the Norwegian coast apparently as part of a plan to cut American-British supply routes to Russia.

A Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Express reported the movement of the ships toward Trondheim and said:

"Their job is to keep British naval forces tied up in the North Sea and raid convoys on the Murmansk route to Russia."

Other Ships May Join Them

The battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the cruiser Prinz Eugen which recently escaped from Brest to Helgoland "probably will join them as soon as they have been repaired," the dispatch added.

British Convoy Wins Battle in North Sea

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 20.—The Royal Navy and air force have beaten off a strong Nazi air and sea attack on a British North Sea convoy without a single loss in warships, aircraft or men, sinking two enemy motor torpedo boats and wrecking a squadron of bombers, the admiralty announced tonight.

It was reassuring news to a British public alarmed a week ago by the successful passage of the Nazi warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen through the Channel and North Sea from Brest to Helgoland.

Fast Dornier Wrecked

The battle began before midnight last night and at the start a force of Boulton Paul Defiants, British two-seater fighter planes believed to be the fastest of their class in the world, charged into six enemy bombers off the British east coast, destroyed one and damaged four others. The plane destroyed was a Dornier 217, Germany's latest long-range fast bomber.

Then the German E-boats began to attack.

As the E-boats tried to run under cover of a smoke screen, the destroyers Holderness, Mendit and Pytchley took up the chase, "doing considerable damage," the admiralty said.

Coming back to the convoy, H. M. S. Mendit attacked and drove off two more E-boats and two hours later the Holderness met two more at close range and attacked.

One, hit by the destroyer's first

31st Infantry Outfights Japs, Man to Man, in Bataan Action

By Clark Lee
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Thirty-first Infantry in the Field on Bataan Peninsula, Feb. 19 (Delayed).—Here's a part of the story of "America's Foreign Legion"—the Thirty-first United States Infantry—and its heroic nine-day battle against the Imperial Japanese army at Abucay hacienda in the Bataan area.

It's a story that glorifies the already sound reputation of this regiment of diverse racial background and equally varied service record. It tells of new deeds of gallantry by oldtimers, veterans of many an Asiatic station, who have been with the outfit since it was organized at Manila, August 13, 1916.

It recognizes the spirited conduct of the regiment's younger men, recruits brought from the United States every two years to keep the ranks at fighting strength.

Gen. MacArthur will say that but for the Thirty-first's grim fight at Abucay the Japanese might have split the Bataan defenders before they could assume the strong positions they now hold.

The hacienda battle proved also for the first time that American soldiers can outfight Japanese—but it was costly proof. The Thirty-first regimental roster is studded with the names of dead, wounded and Batavia, Feb. 20.—The Japanese, again extending their immense South Pacific offensive, invaded the flowering little island of Bali today and Allied warships, planes and fighting men closed with the enemy in a supreme and savage effort to cast him out of the beachheads thus gained almost at the very shores of Java.

The enemy likewise claimed two landings on the half Portuguese-half Dutch island of Timor, lying to the east and just above Australia, alleging that his one purpose was to oust the Australian-Dutch garrison,

Nazi Planes Believed In Battle of Pacific

Sydney (Saturday), Feb. 21 (U.P.). German planes may have joined in the battle of the Southwest Pacific, Air Minister Drakford revealed today, announcing a plane marked with a swastika had raided Bathurst Island off Port Darwin.

New York (Saturday), Feb. 21 (U.P.).—The London radio broadcast early today that the civilian population is to be evacuated from bombed Darwin, Australia, and the only women allowed to remain are nurses, which had been holding the Portuguese half against just such incursions, but of this second thrust the Netherlands authorities had no information.

On Bali, a small, scented and langorous demi-Paradise lying across just 1 mile of water from Java itself, the wild struggle was for more than that little tropic bit of coral and beach. It was for the control of the eastward approaches to the great Allied naval base of Sourabaya on Java, lying just 120 miles from the scene of action—the last such major base short of the Australian mainland.

Troops Swarming Ashore

Successive communiques from the Dutch high command and from the headquarters of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, the supreme Allied commander for the Southwest Pacific, made plain that as of late in the day the enemy was suffering great and bloody losses but that his troops still were swarming ashore.

By that time, at least four of the fighter planes seeking to shelter the enemy's invasion craft from Allied bomber fire had been knocked down, one or more enemy cruisers had been squarely and repeatedly hit, two direct hits had been scored on enemy transports, lighter bombs had

Reds Predict Nazis' Defeat This Year

Losses Held Too High For Hitler to Match Foes' Rising Power

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Feb. 20.—Red Star, the voice of the Russian army, announced today that an ever-increasing flow of war materials is being received from the United States and Britain, and predicted that the gathering forces of the three powers would crush the Nazi war machine this year.

The newspaper said "the help we are receiving from our allies is growing continuously," and added that "no doubt simultaneously the military efforts of our allies will grow."

Pointing out that "Germany will be weaker in man power this spring than she was last summer," Red Star said Adolf Hitler's spring offensive, if any, was doomed to failure.

Puts Losses at Nine Million

The army organ said the Germans lost six million men in the first six months of the war with Russia and had proportionately greater losses since then. This would place the total of German dead, wounded and captured at something over nine million men.

Red Star said Germany could not replace such a loss from her man power reserves or those of her satellite nations.

Reserves of man power and materials will spell victory in the end, and Russia, Britain and the United States have more of those reserves than the Axis, the newspaper declared.

Blum Accuses His Judges Of Duplicity

Calls Trial a Nazi Trick to Discredit Democratic System

By Taylor Henry
Associated Press Staff Writer

Riom, Feb. 20.—Counsel for former Premiers Leon Blum and Edouard Daladier, led by Blum himself, today accused the special tribunal trying them and three other leaders of the Third French Republic of concealing a record of secret testimony bearing on the charge that they were responsible for the fall of France.

The tribunal, a supreme court created by Chief of State Petain, replied through the chief prosecutor that this testimony had been taken for the personal information of the court and that the judges would not permit it to affect their decision.

Deny Court's Validity

The defendants, counting also Maurice Gustave Gamelin, deposed as French-British generalissimo just before the collapse of France; former Air Minister Guy la Chambre, and Pierre Jacomet, former administrator of national defense industries, continued their argument that the court had no basic right to try them.

The chief prosecutor admitted that the court held two sets of secret documents one of which, he said, did not concern the defense since it related to so-called Communist activities in which they were not involved and the other set consisting of testimony for the personal enlightenment of the judges.

Puzzle for Civil Service

Two Representatives May Get Pensions Even With Repeal

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

Civil Service Commission experts are pondering the extraordinary case of House members who, it is now believed, may be eligible for Federal annuities even after Congress repeals so-called pensions for Congressmen.

The cases—there are at least two of them—were brought to light yesterday as House leaders studied parliamentary tactics to determine how that chamber might best proceed Tuesday to follow the Senate in repeal of a provision of the new Federal retirement law that otherwise would qualify all Congressmen for annuities.

Commission experts already have pointed out that—with or without repeal—there is nothing to stop a legislator from using his Congressional service to improve his retirement standing should he take a Federal job after leaving Congress. Many former Congressmen already hold jobs in the executive departments.

House members carefully guarded the names of their colleagues upon whom "pension" repeal apparently will have no effect. These members, it was learned, already have paid required portions of their salary into the retirement fund. They began their payments before coming to Congress, and have continued them since.

In their former employment, they were eligible to participate in the retirement system. Under the law and its interpretation by the Comptroller General, persons eligible to participate in the system in one job are permitted to continue their participation in another job, although the latter may not have been covered by retirement statutes.

This practice has been permitted only when the official concerned left one position and took another without a break in employment. The practice has been in effect for several years, prior to enactment last month of the new Federal Retirement Act which covered all departmental employes into the retirement system and, until the repealer goes through, embraces Congressmen.

The Byrd amendment repealing "pensions" for Congressmen, which passed the Senate Thursday, originally carried a provision which, without question, would have made it possible for the two Representatives eventually to retire with Civil Service annuities.

At the insistence of Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, that section was striken from his repealer before it was reported to the Senate. In view of the public outcry against Congressional pensions, it

Destroyer Darts Into Torpedo, Saves Liner Full of R.A.F. Men

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 20.—Under the heading "This Was Their Sacrifice," the Evening Standard published today the story of a destroyer which sailed into the path of a U-boat's torpedo in order to save a troopship bringing hundreds of R. A. F. pilots, observers and navigators to Britain from Canada.

The destroyer and all but seven of her crew of more than 100 were lost. But the troopship with her valuable cargo of airmen, each of whom had had at least a year's flying in British and United States Army schools and in Canada, sailed safely into a Scottish port.

"A fast liner of some 15,000 tons sailed from a Canadian port for Scotland," the Standard said.

"She sailed with a destroyer and corvette escort—sailed safely until she ran into the U-boat danger zone. Then the alarm bells shrilled. A submarine had been sighted.

"The U-boat fired a torpedo. It missed. It fired another. That also missed. A second later it fired a third torpedo.

"This one was on the mark, heading for the belly of the ship.

"What happened next is told by one of the liner's crew.

"The destroyer, he said, came between the torpedoes and the liner. There was a terrific explosion as the torpedo tore into the destroyer's plates. Smoke towered up in a sacrificial pall. Debris rained on the liner's deck and into the sea.

"And when the smoke cleared, watchers on the liner saw nothing there except a patch of oil and a few spars. It was a hundred sailors and an old destroyer in exchange for a thousand pilots and a fast liner.

'Pocket-Size' Axis Submarine Sinks Brazilian Ship

A "pocket-size" Axis submarine has sunk a Brazilian freighter, the Olinda, it was revealed yesterday as survivors reached Norfolk, Va.

In addition, Chilean authorities said that distress calls from at least five ships under submarine attack had been picked up by Chilean stations in the past 24 hours.

There was talk here and at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, following the numerous recent sinkings, of possible inauguration of a convoy system for coastal shipping.

Pocket-Size U-Boat Sinks Brazilian Ship, Dives as U. S. Navy Planes Appear

Two Hospitals Strafed by Japs At Darwin

By the United Press

Sydney (Saturday), Feb. 21.—At least two hospitals and a naval hospital ship were bombed and machine-gunned during Thursday's savage Japanese air raids on Port Darwin, Prime Minister John Curtin said today in Canberra while refugees from the area described the "blitz" as worse than anything they had experienced during Germany's air attacks on London.

"A hospital ship was attacked and damaged and there were casualties aboard," the prime minister said. "Our reports show the Berrima and Bag hospitals were machine-gunned. Officials of the three armed services and of the civilian administration agree that the enemy showed a most callous disregard for the rules of war. The civil service hospitals and the hospital ship were clearly marked."

The disclosure of the severity of the attacks, believed to be designed to impede Allied reinforcements to Java rather than pave the way for an invasion of Australia, came from air passengers reaching Townsville on the northeast coast of Queensland.

Had Scant Warning

They said Darwin had scant warning of the impending assault and two minutes after the alarm sounded bombs were falling.

The Japanese bombers swept over in seven or eight waves, the witnesses said, nine planes to the wave, at intervals of three minutes.

"When the alert was first sounded," one eye witness said, "people naturally started to run for cover. Most of them were still running when the bombs began to rain down.

"Some people dove into trenches. Others tried to make the 'bush' (open jungle). Still others tried flinging themselves on the ground in horse paddocks.

"The air-raid precaution ambulances functioned well but the hospital to which the injured were taken was hit by a bomb and damaged. Doctors and nurses, working under great handicaps, did a wonderful job."

The second raid came an hour after the first and lasted about 20 minutes, another witness said. About 54 Japanese planes took part in two formations of 27 each. Their bombs added to the destruction previously caused, but some targets escaped with little damage. A flying boat anchored in the harbor, for example, had only two small holes in its fuselage.

Third Alarm False

Darwin had its third alarm in 24 hours Friday, but it brought no bombs.

A late announcement raised the casualties in the Darwin attacks to 19 killed and 24 wounded. An earlier communique said seven civilians and eight members of the services were killed in the two attacks, one by 72 escorted bombers and the other by 21 two-motored planes.

(The Japanese listed as destroyed in the Port Darwin raids an auxiliary cruiser of 6000 tons, two destroyers and a submarine chaser, nine transport ships and 26 Australian aircraft and said a destroyer was damaged and three hangars, a naval headquarters and an administrative building on the quay were fired or damaged.)

Three Senators Demand U. S. Protect Coasts

By the Associated Press

Three influential Senators demanded yesterday that adequate provisions be made for defense of American coastlines.

Senators Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts; Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, and Johnson (Republican), of California, urged this protection despite an assertion by Secretary of War Stimson that dispersal of forces to halt enemy coastal raids might retard offensives elsewhere.

Stimson had warned that such attacks as those in the Caribbean area might be extended to American shores, but that in the grand strategy of the war the most important step is to prepare an offensive against the Axis.

Walsh, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, told reporters that while nothing should be done to interfere with far-reaching military strategy, "inadequate" coast defenses ought to be strengthened speedily.

Declaring that to follow the course charted by Stimson meant "doing nothing to protect ourselves," Johnson said he could see no reason why "some of the strength we have yielded so generously to Europe cannot be diverted to our own shores."

Byrd said he felt that the American people ought to be defended from attack to the extent that is necessary, although he was willing to leave the disposition of forces up to the military departments.

Secretary Stimson told a press conference Thursday it was likely that "pressure" would be exerted by "thoughtless persons" to scatter American forces to meet coastal attacks. Such a course, he declared, would be the surest way he knew of losing the war.

Johnson commented that it was "all nonsense" to talk about bringing pressure when he and others of like views have been demanding only that adequate protection be given to American areas.

"If the Secretary means that we should sit supinely by and see the great State of California—the most beautiful in the Nation—attacked and do nothing about it, I can't agree with him," the veteran Senator declared.

"To adopt his suggestion would mean, in the last analysis, doing nothing for our own shores," he continued, adding: "There are some of us who don't believe in fighting the war that way."

2 U. S. Ships, 4 Others Send Out S O S Calls

By the Associated Press

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 20.—Chilean authorities revealed tonight that six ship distress calls, at least five of them from vessels under submarine attack, have been picked up by Chilean stations in the last 24 hours. At least two of the ships were said to be United States vessels.

Unofficial sources were of the opinion that five S O S calls heard today came from ships which probably were in the Pacific, and this led to speculation that Japanese submarines may be preying on vessels plying the United States supply line to Australia.

The navy undersecretariat announced that the naval radio station at Playa Ancha, near Valparaiso, heard an S O S from an American ship at 3:30 a. m. today.

The naval radio station at Antofogasta reported that it picked up four distress calls from ships under submarine attack early this morning.

Late last night a Chilean ship relayed to the naval radio station at Lanquihue, Chile, an S O S picked up from an American vessel in the Caribbean Sea which said she had been torpedoed.

Caracas, Venezuela, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Venezuelan Navigation Co. announced today that in view of Axis submarine activity in the Caribbean, none of its ships would leave port until further notice.

U. S. to Convoy, Brazil Hears

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—United States warships will convoy Brazilian merchant vessels between Brazilian and United States ports, a reliable source said today.

(A United States Navy spokesman in Washington declined to comment on the report.)

The same source said that Brazilian merchantmen plying the North and South Atlantic seaboards would be armed as a result of the torpedoing and sinking of two Brazilian steamers by submarines, apparently German, within 72 hours this week.

Announcement by the foreign office today of the shelling and torpedoing of the 4053-ton freighter Olinda, caused high public tension, and the press, in extra editions announcing the sinking, demanded that the government take immediate reprisal action.

U-Boat Drive Called Move To Aid Japs

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 20.—Germany has launched a major submarine offensive in the North Atlantic from the Azores to Greenland, to cooperate with Japan by keeping United States naval units in the Atlantic and preventing reinforcement of the U. S. Pacific Fleet, informed British sources said today.

These sources declared that, according to information from the Continent, the Nazis had 34 U-boats at sea in the North Atlantic early in February. This probably means, they added, that actually there were three times that many operating in this area at that time.

Japanese demands for naval cooperation were said to have been made at an Axis conference in Bavaria early in January. Vice Admiral Karl Doenitz, in command of the U-boat fleet, was said to have told them he would use "pack tactics" on the sea lanes near Europe while his largest submarines and best crews would range the North American coast.

Original opening date for the campaign, according to these reports, was April 1. Instead, Japanese urging led the Nazis to open their campaign two months ahead of schedule, the sources added.

Hitler was said to have given Doenitz the same latitude which the Kaiser gave Admiral von Tirpitz in the spring of 1917, when the Germans announced the opening of unrestricted submarine warfare.

German U-boat building was said to have been stepped up this winter at inland factories, from which the ships then were shipped to Bremen and Kiel to get their "blood baptism" in minor operations.

The attacks on Allied tankers moving out of Aruba in the Dutch West Indies and along the eastern coast of the United States were seen as designed to cripple the world's dwindling tanker fleet.

But British sources predicted that the Germans, after three months of the heaviest U-boat offensive that ever has been seen, might gamble on sending one of their larger warships into the Caribbean to attempt a knockout blow at Aruba and its refineries. By then, according to this plan, the submarines already would have forced the Allies to disperse their heavier surface ships and such an operation might be executed successfully.

The informants said that among the submarine commanders operating in the western Atlantic are Capt. Hardegen, directing operations of a flotilla off the coasts of the United States, and Capt. von Tiesenhausen, credited with the sinking of the Barham in the Mediterranean last November.

The flotilla headed by Hardegen, one of the most publicized U-boat officers in Germany since the death of Guenther Prien, was credited in a recent Berlin communique with the sinking of eight ships, "including three tankers in the immediate vicinity of New York harbor."

Captain, Radio Man Quizzed, Then Set Free

By Alton B. Parker
United Press Staff Writer

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 20.—A "pocket-sized" submarine sank the 5000-ton Brazilian steamer Olinda, picked up her captain and radio operator for questioning and photographing and then released them and crash dived when a United States Navy plane hove in sight, survivors disclosed today.

The attack occurred Wednesday noon off the Atlantic coast. All 46 of the Olinda's crew were rescued and put ashore here yesterday. Twenty-three of the crew were hospitalized and treated for exhaustion and exposure.

Survivors said the submarine shelled the vessel—one of the oldest in the Brazilian merchant marine—about 18 times and then sent her to the bottom with a torpedo. The Olinda was second Brazilian vessel sunk within a week. The other was the Buarque, torpedoed Sunday off North Carolina, with the loss of one life.

18th Attack Announced So Far

The attack was the 18th announced by the Navy since the German underseas campaign broke upon the Nation's Eastern Seaboard January 14. Sixteen ships have gone to the bottom. One of two which survived was the American tanker, Blum, which was the victim either of a submarine or of mines probably sown by an enemy submersible.

Olinda crew members said that while their captain and radio operator were being questioned aboard the submarine, the submersible's crew chatted with them and asked if they thought they would get cold adrift in the sea.

Radio Operator Francisco Nagueira, of Sao Paulo, described his experience aboard the enemy craft. He said that as the Olinda's two lifeboats were pulling away, the submarine drew alongside.

"I was in lifeboat No. 2," he said. "The captain of the submarine came out on deck and motioned us to pull up against the submarine. The captain spoke three languages—English, Spanish and Portuguese. He first asked for the captain. I told him the captain was in the other boat. He then asked me to come aboard."

Treated Him Courteously

Nagueira said he was aboard the submarine ten minutes, during which he was asked where his ship was from, the cargo aboard and its intended destination.

"They treated me courteously," he said, "took my picture and also a picture of the two lifeboats and the sinking ship. Then they told me to get back into my lifeboat."

Nagueira said the other lifeboat then was ordered to pull alongside and the Olinda's captain, Jacob Bellemond, of Rio de Janeiro, was lifted aboard and questioned and photographed.

Capt. Bellemond said the submarine was very small.

"It was so small I don't see how it could possibly come across the Atlantic and go back without refueling," he added. "It undoubtedly must be fed somewhere from a mother ship. I even asked the commander about it. He laughed and did not answer my question."

He said several Navy planes came over shortly after the ship sank. They flew high at first, then came lower. The submarine, he said, made a crash dive as soon as the planes began to circle.

"The planes dropped a locator buoy with a sign on it which said, 'Help on way.'"

Portuguese To Hear Story Of Timor Job

By the Associated Press

Lisbon (Saturday), Feb. 21.—Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar early today summoned an extraordinary session of the national assembly to meet later in the day to hear a statement on the Japanese invasion of Portuguese Timor.

The call was issued after a two-hour cabinet session late last night. The Japanese minister had made two calls on the premier to declare that Japanese troops would evacuate the half-Portuguese, half-Dutch island "after obtaining their objective," and if Portugal would "maintain its neutral attitude."

The German minister also called on the Portuguese premier before taking a special plane to Berlin yesterday.

Simultaneously the Portuguese press called the Japanese incursion "a new violation" of Portugal's territory. It was reported that a Portuguese troop ship and escorting naval sloop were due at Timor February 27.

The Japanese announced today they had invaded both Dutch and Portuguese portions of Timor, which is 400 miles from Port Darwin, Australia.

On this basis Japan "is ready to guarantee the territorial integrity of the Portuguese part of the Island of Timor," the minister said.

War Prisoners

5 American Nurses Held By Japanese

Five American nurses, stationed on Guam when it was captured in December, are believed to be prisoners in the hands of the Japanese, the Navy Department reported yesterday.

At the same time, the War Department announced that one Army officer and five men were presumed to have been captured in the fall of Wake Island in January, in addition to others already announced.

The nurses were Marion B. Olds, Chicago; Lorraine Christiansen, Gunnison, Utah; Virginia J. Fogarty, Akron, Ohio; Leona Jackson, Union, Ohio, and Doris M. Yetter, Philadelphia.

Army personnel reported missing and presumed captured were Capt. Henry S. Wilson, Douglas, Ariz.; Sergt. Carl W. Dilks, Bridgeton, N. J.; Private Paul F. Futtrup, Bloomville, N. Y.; Staff Sergt. Clifford E. Hotchkiss, Cincinnati; Sergt. James B. Rex, Philadelphia, and Sergt. Ernest R. Rogers, Saltville, Va.

Altogether, the Navy Department said, 2214 Marines, Navy personnel, nurses and civilians were taken prisoner in China and on the Pacific islands which fell to the Japanese.

Navy Launches 4 Destroyers In One Day

By the Associated Press

Kearny, N. J., Feb. 20.—Two more fighting ships were launched today in a twin ceremony hailed by Rear Admiral Adophus Andrews, commander of the Eastern Sea Frontier, as "a powerful symbol of the day of reckoning dawning for the enemies of this free country."

Eleven minutes apart, the destroyers Lansdowne and Duncan slid down the ways at the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. yards, six months and 20 days after keel laying.

The Duncan, sponsored by Mrs. Dorothy Clark Thayer, of Wellesley, Mass., was named in honor of the late Commander Silas Duncan, a native of New Jersey who served in the War of 1812. Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne Hunt, of Washington, D. C., sponsored the Lansdowne, named for her father, the late Lieut. Comdr. Zachary Lansdowne, commander of the dirigible Shenandoah, which crashed in Ohio September 3, 1925, carrying Lansdowne to his death.

Two More at Boston

Boston, Feb. 20 (AP).—As a bitter winter wind whistled through gaunt cranes and scaffolding, two sleek destroyers glided down the ways today at the Boston Navy Yard to augment the Nation's growing sea power.

One was the U. S. S. Hutchins, named for Lieut. Carleton B. Hutchins, of Coronado, Calif., who gave his life in a plane crash that his mates might have time to bail out and live.

The other was named for Capt. John Guest, U. S. N., Civil War hero, whose record included deeds of daring in the Far East when that region was new to Western eyes.

The attractive widow of the hero air pilot sponsored the Hutchins, breaking a traditional bottle of champagne across the prow. Lieut. Hutchins' mother stood on the launching platform with his widow.

The ceremony was repated a few minutes later, with Mrs. Ann Guest Walsh, of Annapolis, Md., acting as sponsor for the U. S. S. Guest, named for her grandfather.

The ceremony was complemented by laying of two new keels, for the destroyers Hudson and Charatte, on the ways just vacated by the Guest and the Hutchins.

Roosevelt to Ask 10 Billions to Pay And House Army

(Copyright, 1942, by Chicago Sun)

President Roosevelt is expected to send to Congress next week a special request for about 10 billion dollars to provide housing and pay for an Army of 3,600,000 men, Democratic leaders disclosed yesterday.

Approximately $2,500,000,000 of the fund is to be spent for expansion of present training camps and the building of new cantonments. The balance is slated to go for pay.

A member of the Senate Appropriations Committee said it was possible that the Regular Army supply bill "may approach 25 billion dollars," bringing the war program to around 175 billion dollars.

salvo, blew up.

More E-boats appeared and there was a general chase, the communique said, during which the second enemy ship was sunk.

Early this morning still more E-boats attacked, for the last time, but were put to flight by a trawler, the Turquoise.

Eighteen German survivors were picked up.

Later, in a daylight sweep over the Channel to the south of the battle scene, British fighters set another Nazi E-boat afire, destroyed a German fighter and swept inland to attack two factories in occupied France. One British plane was lost in this sweep.

Refugee Ship Arrives in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Portuguese ship Serpa Pinto arrived at quarantine today with more than 300 passengers, mostly Jewish refugees brought from Europe through the efforts of the joint distribution committee.

Those arriving held visas issued before the United States entered the war. The joint committee said they had been able to remove about 2200 persons since December 7 and that about 1000 more who held United States visas were awaiting passage to this country.

Destroyer Delivered To Turks by British

Alexandretta, Turkey, Feb. 20 (AP). The British-built 1400-ton destroyer Sultan Hissar arrived at this southern Turkish port today and was handed over to Turkish naval authorities by her British crew.

The Sultan Hissar is the first of several destroyers Turkey has ordered from Britain.

Army Paper Praises Stories By Clark Lee as War's Best

By the Associated Press

Clark Lee's dispatches from the Bataan fighting front in the Philippines were praised yesterday by the Infantry Journal as "the best this war has produced on any front from the standpoint of the military reader."

The Journal, a semi-official publication edited by officers primarily for Army men, noted editorially that the Associated Press war correspondent reported "the main details of the fighting," and "not merely the highlights."

One dispatch, relating the exploits of antiaircraft gunners with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces, was reprinted by the Coast Artillery Journal.

The Infantry Journal said that "some correspondents may have exhibited more literary skill, although to the Journal Clark Lee's dispatches seem to stand high in this respect."

"But for military detail—the things that show just how our troops and the enemy are fighting, without giving away any secrets of war—Mr. Lee's reports are unexcelled," it added.

"Take, for example, his delayed report of February 5 which appeared in the Sunday papers of the eighth, in which he describes the jungle fighting against the battalion of 306 Jap soldiers that attempted a landing from the sea some days before. Reading this news the soldier can visualize most clearly the difficulties that marked this particular fighting and the ability with which our troops carried it to success.

"Clark Lee's reports show vividly the close-line fighting in the jungle where fields of fire are measured almost in inches, rather than yards. He shows us the most difficult action that tanks can undertake—thrusting through the matted undergrowth toward the unseen enemy. It was just before that attack, he reports, that Capt. C. A. Crome, with his arm in sling, shouted to the Japs, 'Surrender, you sons of bitches!' Another sling, shouted to the Japs, 'Surrounded,' (or words to that effect), and some English-speaking Jap replied, 'Nerts to You!'

"But Clark Lee also shows us the wavering and breaking of the stout Japanese spirit when a hail of accurate fire from infantry mortars lobbed above the jungles into their positions and hand grenades hit their marks. It was then, writes Clark Lee, that one American soldier said to another, 'I wish Bob Feller were here to toss them down the middle.' But it is apparent that many a man in Gen. MacArthur's forces is able to put them in the groove practically as well as Bob Feller.

"In this correspondent's reports we see clearly the tremendous value of accurate infantry fire, as well as the tenacity and endurance of the Philippine and the American soldier. For his reports as a whole show plainly that this is a major element in the splendid resistance of Gen. MacArthur's forces. They know how to shoot far better than their enemies. And it's the rifle or machine-gun bullet, or the hand grenade, or the mortar shell, which strikes its target that does the deadly business of war with hundred per cent efficiency. And the same is true of the fire from tank and plane. If it depends merely upon the law of chance instead of the rule of straight and deadly aim, it wastes 99 per cent of the ammunition fired, if the enemy knows the use of cover.

"Clark Lee's report of February 5 and all he has written before give us the measure of our own and the hardy Philippine forces, and of their foes. As one American officer told Clark Lee, 'The Japs are tough cookies—but we can take 'em.'" missing, as well as those of living heroes.

Although, along with the rest of MacArthur's army, the Thirty-first had had its share of aerial bombing daily from December 8 on, first actual contact with the Japanese came early in January near Layac Junction, while the U. S. A. F. F. E. was still withdrawing into prepared positions on Bataan.

After strong artillery preparation, large forces of Japanese drove against Philippine units on the night of December 31.

Lieut. Col. Jasper Brady, of Seattle, Wash., gave his Third Battalion a crisp command: "Fix bayonets and attack with a rush."

The battalion rose from positions behind an irrigation wall in a rice paddy and charged across the field. The Japanese fled.

After that first taste of direct conflict, the Thirty-first Regiment was withdrawn to reserve positions on MacArthur's right flank—the very spot the enemy chose for a terrific attack 10 days later.

Youthful Filipino troops experiencing their first combat were in the front lines of this sector, along the south bank of the Labangan River, when the assault began.

They gave way before overwhelming numbers of Japanese strongly supported by artillery and aircraft. The enemy succeeded in crossing the river and driving a wedge approximately a mile wide and a half mile deep into the U. S. A. F. F. E. lines. Some of the defense units were turned to positions at right angles to the front.

Then Col. Charles L. Steel, Davidson, N. C., commander of the Thirty-first received orders to counterattack, push the Japanese out of the salient and restore the position, which had been held by a full division.

The regiment moved up under bombing and shelling and prepared to go into action on a mile-wide front while maintaining contact with the division on its right and other Philippine army units on its left.

The attack was launched at 8:15 a. m., with the Thirty-first's Second Battalion on the right and its First Battalion on the left.

Maj. Lloyd G. Moffett of Denver led the First Battalion through a deep ravine and up its opposite slope. A 50-yard advance then was made into an uncut tangle of sugarcane, where the Americans ran headlong into a wave of Japanese attacking the exposed left flank of the division.

The entire field, one grizzled veteran commented later, was "lousy with Japs."

The Second Battalion also pressed forward, slashing paths through the sugarcane and advancing single file in the face of heavy machinegun fire.

Private Elmer P. Bushrig crawled through the rain of bullets in an attempt to rescue a wounded companion. For his bravery, he gave his own life.

The Second's attack, moving inch by inch, covered only 150 yards to the edge of a second ravine by nightfall, but the First Battalion, after its initial brush with the enemy, encountered less resistance.

With Lieut. Col. Edward H. Bowes, of San Francisco, taking direct command, it reached the main Japanese positions on the bank of the Labangan by 4 p. m., closing half of the original gap in the defense lines but leaving a large pocket of enemy resistance on its right rear and flank.

Next morning the Second Battalion, aided by fire support from the First, resumed the attack, driving into the second ravine and up the farther side.

Five times the Americans reached the top, but five time they were driven off by machinegun, rifle and mortar fire.

One of the main obstacles was a machinegun nest pouring fire into the ravine from the left. Private Ronald T. Wangberg volunteered to blast it. He crawled close and tossed a grenade but missed, thus exposing his own position. He threw a second grenade, which failed to explode, and then was killed.

(Clark Lee advises that the rest of his dispatch concerning the Thirty-first Regiment has been delayed. There was no explanation.)

Canadian Commons To Hold Secret Session

Ottawa, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Canadian House of Commons will meet in secret session Tuesday for the first time since the first World War, it was announced today.

Capital Hike Tomorrow

The Capital Hiking Club will meet at the end of the Rosslyn carline at 10 a. m. tomorrow to follow a trail along the Potomac to Gulf Run, then past Civil War fortifications, woodlands and the Palisade Trail to Chain Bridge. Anyone interested in making the hike, to be led by Robert Shosteck, is invited to come along.

Japs Invade Bali; Battle Is Raging

found their targets on an enemy cruiser and a transport, and eight near misses had rocked and possibly put out of action an enemy destroyer.

There was no report of a single Allied loss aloft, on the surface or underseas.

Strong Action Being Taken

"Naturally strong action," the Dutch command remarked with its characteristic restraint, "is being taken against landings which the enemy is carrying out."

This newest of the enemy's invasions—this push to get at Java, the last great Dutch position remaining wholly in Allied hands, and perhaps to move on down upon Australia—apparently had been developing for days, but only yesterday had begun overtly to shape up.

There were widespread enemy air raids over Java—ineffectual, the Dutch said, in their purpose of knocking out the island's airdromes and thus to protect the enemy invasion fleet being marshaled off the Bali shores—but Sourabaya, itself, whose American and Dutch defenders had destroyed at least ten Japanese raiding planes on the two preceding days, was left alone.

Meanwhile as night came on Allied warships and submarines went into strong offensive action against the enemy sea invasion trains, an action that thundered on today.

All the circumstances suggested that the great test was approaching for Java itself, where only yesterday it was disclosed that small American and other Allied expeditionary forces had arrived to aid in the defense.

Japanese reports that Timor also had been invaded brought the comment here: "This is the first we have heard about it."

It was pointed out, however, that there already had been enemy air action against Timor, which lies across the small Timor Sea from Port Darwin, Australia, the last known attack having been a raid on the City of Kupang on February 17.

Japs Rain Fire Bombs on MacArthur's Rear Positions

Yanks Suffer No Damage, Stand Firm

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Behind the lines of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, still holding fast in the Philippines, Japanese airplanes have rained incendiary bombs on rear positions, the War Department reported yesterday.

These attacks, possibly aimed at supply and assembly points, caused no damage. They also were interpreted here as a possible experiment in the effectiveness of air-laid smoke screens in future assaults on the American-Filipino position.

The bombs, MacArthur reported, were filled with white phosphorus, a substance inferior for incendiary purposes but much used for making smoke in battle.

Landing Tactics Summarized

Along the entire front across Bataan Peninsula, fighting continued from entrenched positions without reported advantage to either side.

Methods used by the Japanese in landing on Luzon and Mindanao were developed in the vast proving ground of China, the War Department revealed yesterday in a special summary of enemy tactics and equipment. Landing beaches were reconnoitered by air and by special agents before the landing was attempted, the statement said.

"On the night before the landing," it continued, "troopships, landing boat carriers and naval convoys establish a rendezvous at a designated anchorage. If a suitable anchorage is not available, vessels arrive off the beach between midnight and dawn.

"Landings are usually made just before dawn, on days when high tide comes just after dawn . . . Men are transferred from transports and landing craft carriers just off the landing beach."

Transports lying offshore, the summary said, are protected by screens of war vessels, while an aircraft carrier remains nearby to provide an "umbrella" of fighters over the landing fleet. The actual landing is prepared for by a barrage from the warships and is made in special barges with steel shields and machine guns.

"Fishing boats and lighters are known to have aided the Japanese in some of their landing operations in the Philippines," the summary added. "However, the complete extent to which Fifth Columnists have been used is not known."

Japanese landing parties are armed almost exclusively with automatic weapons and hand grenades, though tanks and other combat vehicles are landed after a beachhead is established. Portable radios are widely used by the enemy.

Army Communique No. 116.

Text of the War Department communique issued yesterday as of 9:30 p. m. follows:

Philippine Theater: Positional fighting continues on all sections of the front in Bataan. Enemy airplanes dropped a number of incendiary bombs on installations behind our lines. An examination of these bombs discloses that the Japanese are using white phosphorous as an incendiary filler.

Gen. MacArthur, in behalf of his troops, acknowledged with appreciation the cordial greeting transmitted to him by 60,000 arsenal employes of the ordnance department of the Army in the United States.

There is nothing to report from other areas.

British Rout Enemy Units Near Tobruk

By the United Press

Cairo, Feb. 20.—British forces yesterday routed "several enemy parties," including tank units, in a brisk artillery duel south of Tmimi, 55 miles northwest of Tobruk, a general headquarters communique said today.

Despite poor visibility, the communique said, British patrols and mobile columns operated in a general area south of a line extending between Tmimi and Mekili, Axis-held road junction 100 miles west of Tobruk.

"Enemy columns appeared to be concentrated north of the Tmimi-Mekili Road," the communique said, "although MeKili itself was again found to be strongly held."

The British activity was in the Jebel El-Achdar heights, to which Gen. Erwin Rommel has withdrawn his Axis units from advance positions within 40 miles of Tobruk.

(An Italian communique said that continued "exceedingly unfavorable" weather curtailed air-force activities in the Mediterranean area and there were no events in Cyrenaica "of note."

(Enemy motor trucks traveling along the Libyan coastal roads were said to have been attacked effectively by German bombers.)

Maps Needed To Follow Fireside Chat

President Roosevelt yesterday urged the American people to have world maps or globes handy when they "let him in" for his first "fireside" review of the world at war Monday night between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

The Chief Executive, who is confined to his quarters with a head cold, made the suggestion through Secretary Stephen T. Early with the explanation that, thus equipped, his radio audience would be in a better position to follow him as he draws the dramatic picture of the unprecedented struggle being fought simultaneously throughout the world's far-flung battle fronts.

"He asked me to say," Early explained, "that had he held his customary press conference today, he would have asked the press and radio to say with respect to his address Monday night that if the people of the United States will be good enough to open their doors and let him in, he hoped they would have a map of the world or a world globe at hand so they might very clearly or much better understand him as he talks with them."

Early said he thought the address would "show that military actions and naval engagements, wherever they are fought, thousands of miles from here, have a definite effect on each little community, on each man in a workshop, on the production lines."

Mr. Roosevelt, the secretary added, sees the war "through the copies of every Army and Navy dispatch, through other channels of information available to the Government and the information interchanged among the United Nations."

The President's address, now practically ready, Early said, would be aimed in the main to give the American people "the picture of the world at war—as he sees it."

Forecasting a "realistic" picture, the Presidential secretary commented that when Mr. Roosevelt has finished talking "it will be very clear that the oceans washing our two coastlines are no longer the protection they were said to be by some—not very long ago."

To eliminate confusion, which might hamper the Nation's war effort, the Chief Executive, in his "chat" will place clearly and in his inimitable style, before every military trainee, factory worker, housewife and white-collar employe the enormity of the task facing the Nation and the part each must play toward ultimate victory.

Riom Court Hides Truth, Blum Says

man hammer fell in the spring of 1940, and who now is in prison himself, will be called as a witness in an effort to prove charges of a lack of military preparation on the part of his predecessors, it was learned tonight.

Bonnet to Testify

Other witnesses will be Georges Bonnet, who was foreign minister at the war's start; Edouard Herriot, former president of the Chamber of Deputies; Albert Sarraut, a veteran politician who has held many ministries; M. Laurent-Eynac, air minister in Reynaud's cabinet; Gen. Maxime Weygand, successor as Allied generalissimo to Gen. Gamelin; Air Marshal Gen. Joseph Vuillemin, and Generals Alphonse Georges, Dufieux and Decamp.

Official sources estimated it would be August 1 before a verdict could be reached.

Most of today's session, second of the trial, was taken up with technical arguments, enlivened only by Blum's impassioned defense of his Popular Front government and a verbal tilt between presiding Judge Pierre Caous and Daladier's attorney, Maurice Ribet.

The attorney charged that the court had deliberately changed the wording of the accusation to prevent discussion of the conduct of the war and consequently of military operations.

Argue Over Word

Responding to Ribet, the chief prosecutor declared that the wording of the indictment had been changed to avoid ambiguity, that the change was "merely grammatical." He insisted that a questioned word—"afterward"—referred not to acts committed after France entered the war but to acts committed before France entered the war and effects of which were only apparent "afterward."

Blum appeared much less impressive today in defense of his Popular Front government than in his initial appearance yesterday when his address was considered by legal authorities as a brilliant example of pure logic.

Nevertheless he did develop carefully the point that Hitler came to power in Germany, quit the League of Nations, started conscription and occupied the Rhineland all before June, 1936, the crucial date picked by the prosecution as the time France should have started strengthening her defenses.

"A Political Trial"

Then he drew the conclusion that selection of this date, which also was when his Popular Front government came into power, "means that this is a political trial" aimed at blaming his social reforms and the parliamentary system for France's military defeat.

Of the defendants only Gen. Gamelin appeared to take no interest in the proceedings. He sat with eyes straight ahead and shoulders squared.

Even La Chambre, who up until today scarcely moved, showed animation and turned from time to time to regard the orators.

Daladier conferred frequently with Ribet and once interjected a loud "No!" when the prosecutor referred to him.

Dutch Revive Old Title to Honor Navy Minister

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—Queen Wilhelmina today revived a rank not used since the seventeenth century days of Dutch naval power in appointing J. T. Furstner, navy minister of the Netherlands government-in-exile, a lieutenant-admiral.

The title was conferred "in recognition of his great services in connection with the continuation of the fight for liberty after the fall of the Netherlands," the news agency Aneta reported.

Last previous holders of the rank of lieutenant-admiral were Holland's three most famous naval commanders—Michiel Adriaanszoon de Ruyter, Martin Pieterszoon Tromp and Piet Heyn.

Furstner, now a vice admiral, was given his new rank February 15.

New Epoch in Relations Of India, China Seen

Calcutta, Feb. 20 (AP).—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the Indian National Congress, said today the visit of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to India "will mark a new epoch in the relations of India and China."

"It has been, I think, something that will affect the history of India and China," he said. "I am quite certain that there can be no peace or solution of the world's problems unless the problems of India and China are solved."

"Some people imagine," Nehru said, "that because Japan or Germany happen to be against Britain, they therefore deserve our sympathy."

He said the Congress had declared its policy before the war "with regard to fascism and aggression and with regard to many things Japan and Germany have done."

"We have always said we would neither have British imperialism nor any other type of imperialism—not fascism or nazism. Let us be brave and take courage for the example of the Chinese and face any oppressor, any aggressor who dares to think in terms of oppressing or dictating to India."

British Press Attacks Along Bilin River

By the Associated Press

Rangoon, Feb. 20.—British imperial troops fought on desperately today in their positions on the western shores of the Bilin River, in an area some 80 miles northeast of Rangoon and only 50 miles short of the Rangoon-Mandalay Railroad leg of the Burma supply road to China.

Counterattack after counterattack was hurled at the invader's columns. The loss of the Bilin line probably would force a withdrawal 30 miles to the west for the next naturally strong defensive area—that of the Sittang River.

[In London, Exchange Telegraph heard the Paris radio broadcast a Tokyo report that Japanese had reached the Mandalay - Rangoon Railway and that a Chinese division had been annihilated. This account, which had no substantiation even from Tokyo, claimed the Japanese were within 30 miles of Rangoon and still advancing.]

The R. A. F. and American volunteer pilots continued to hold air superiority on the Burma front and were getting in telling blows against the invaders. The open nature of the country made it easy for the airmen to obtain good targets.

Rangoon itself, where civilian evacuation continued, remained peopled by only about half of its normal 500,000.

The British command's late afternoon communique thus summed up the urgent situation:

"Fierce fighting has continued during the past 24 hours behind the Bilin River. Allied forces made repeated counterattacks throughout yesterday.

"Successful (British) air action yesterday had a considerably heartening effect on our troops." Japanese shock troops crossed the Bilin at some points two days ago.

"The enemy is reported to be using rubber bridges (probably pontoon spans) for conveying motor transport across the river," an army spokesman said. "These are not expected to be of much use in the swiftly flowing current."

Japan's Scouts Dressed In Costumes of Natives

On the Bilin River Front, Burma, Feb. 18 (delayed) (AP).—Japanese forces now engaged by the British in the offensive along the lower Bilin River are using bicycle scouts dressed in native Burmese costumes, the British asserted today. (Similar reports came from the British during the Japanese drive through Malaya.)

The Japanese, dressed in khaki and wearing peaked caps, concentrated in detachments of 200 to 1000 and advanced only at night, following jungle trails or keeping close in the cover of wooded hills. Occasionally they were guided by Burmese natives, it was alleged.

Axis Seeks to Weaken India's National Unity

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Axis is attempting to weaken national unity in India with a radio campaign from Berlin and Rome and the use of so-called "secret Indian stations," a news analyst for the British Broadcasting Corporation said tonight in a broadcast.

The news analyst, James Ferguson, said the "secret stations" supposedly were operating in India, but actually were directed by propaganda Minister Joseph Goebels in Berlin.

He said the fake stations were called "Free India Radio" or "Radio Himalaya," with the speakers pretending to be patriotic Indians.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THE "SQUIRE" AT HOME—Sir Stafford Cripps and his wife enjoy a bit of byplay with their dog, Andrew

By the Associated Press

Sir Stafford Cripps, new figure in Britain's war cabinet, is a scion of aristocracy who once was ousted from membership in the British Labor Party because he was considered too radical.

The recently retired Ambassador to Russia and long-time advocate of cooperation with the Soviet Union was reported to have earned $200,000 a year in legal practice—only to give it up in the '30s because he grew tired of "taking large sums of money from one capitalist to give it to another capitalist."

Now lord privy seal and leader of the Commons, where he will be Prime Minister Churchill's lieutenant, Sir Stafford once was called "the most dangerous revolutionary in England."

He is the youngest son of the first Lord Parmoor and was reared in the traditional "old school tie" atmosphere, but this man who recently declared for full political collaboration among Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia has shown scant regard for precedent.

"Squire" to His Neighbors

Tall, bespectacled, 53, he appears in public in the conventional black coat and gray-striped trousers of the barrister—but to his farmer-neighbors he is known as "Squire," recognition of his knowledge of agriculture demonstrated in the field.

Science was his first interest after his education at Winchester College and University College, London, but he left the laboratories of Physicist Sir William Ramsey for a legal career.

In World War I he drove an ambulance in France, but officials "drafted" him, because of his scientific knowledge, as manager of a government explosive factory in England.

By the time he was 41, in 1930, he had been elected a master of the bench of the Middle Temple, named solicitor general in the Labor government, and knighted by King George V.

As a Labor member of Parliament, he was a gadfly critic of the Conservative policy of appeasement.

But he was as ready a critic of his own party leaders when he considered them over-cautious, leading to his expulsion by the Laborites in 1939 for efforts to consolidate all progressive elements in a united front against fascism.

From the advent of Adolf Hitler to power in Germany in 1933, he began warning his country that "war is inevitable."

Early and late, even after the Russian-German nonaggression pact of 1939, he urged close relations with Russia as essential to the survival of both Britain and the Soviet Union.

His pleas rejected, Sir Stafford set out on a tour which took him during the winter of 1939-40 to India, China, Japan and the United States. His chance to go to Moscow on a trade mission came in the spring of 1940, and when Russia refused to admit him without diplomatic standing, he was named ambassador.

A Lonely Mission

For months it was a lonely mission between two nations scarcely on speaking terms. Soviet authorities, who liked him personally, drew a sharp line between Cripps, the man, and Cripps, the representative of the Imperial Crown.

Only after the sudden attack on Russia by Britain's enemy did the value of the groundwork of friendship he had built up become apparent.

At home again with his wife, son, three daughters and two adopted sons, Sir Stafford clings strongly to his belief that cooperation with Russia is the key to victory in peace as in war.

"Perhaps the war has taught us to be less opinionated about the virtues of our own political system and more tolerant of what we consider defects of others," he wrote recently.

"If this is so, we may hope to concentrate upon the possibilities of useful constructive common action in the future rather than upon fears and suspicions of possible rivalries."

Reds Predict Nazi Defeat This Year

usual told of continued Red army advances today without giving details, and indicated a sharp increase in air activity with 24 German planes listed as downed on Thursday and seven more destroyed on the ground. It acknowledged the loss of 12 Soviet craft.

Dispatches from the battlefront continued in much the same tone as all those of recent weeks—reporting the Red army still forging to the west and beating down German counterattacks.

From the southern front, where snow is giving way to rain and warmer weather, there was word of new gains in the Donets Basin, and German counterattacks in one sector were said to have cost the Nazis 1500 men in three days.

(Observers in London said there were indications that the Red drive to recapture the great Donets industrial center of Kharkov is near a climax, with fighting close to the city.)

Northwest of Moscow the Russians reported winning back 12 more villages, and on the still-frozen front in the far north a unit of Spanish volunteers serving as ski troops was said to have been wiped out.

China to Get Defense Supplies Duty-Free

New Delhi, India (Saturday), Feb. 21 (AP).—The government announced today that defense supplies will be permitted to move duty-free from India to China over the new route worked out by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in his current conversations with Indian leaders.

The new route passes through northern Burma into China, involving railroad and river transportation.

Filipino Kills 11 Charging Foes, Last 2 With Jap Gun

By Frank Hewlett
United Press Staff Writer

With Gen. MacArthur's Forces in the Philippines, Feb. 20.—His machine-gun jammed and his pistol ammunition exhausted, Private Narcisco Ortilano, of the Philippine Scouts, wrested a rifle from an enemy to complete the job of killing 11 Japanese and win recommendation for the Distinguished Service Cross.

This one-gun gang representing a race of soldiers which two generals and a Marine colonel on Bataan Peninsula have described as the finest in the world, got in his licks against the Japanese in a recent hand-to-hand battle.

Eleven Japanese attacked the machine-gun nest that Ortilano manned alone, according to the citation recommending him for the award.

Then There Were Seven

He picked off four with the machine-gun and then there were seven. The gun jammed, but Ortilano drew his pistol and calmly shot down five more before his ammunition gave out.

The two remaining Japanese charged his post with bayonets, but Ortilano stood his ground. He grabbed the rifle of the first, and, although he lost a thumb, managed to wrest the weapon from the Japanese, whom he then stabbed.

The surviving Japanese had seen enough of the doughty Filipino and fled, but Ortilano brought him down with the borrowed rifle.

Ortilano had repaired his machine-gun and was ready for more action when companions relieved him.

American officers said that Ortilano's feat, although outstanding, was just one of the examples of how the Filipinos have out-fought and out-dared their foe in the defense of Bataan.

Their infantry, artillery, cavalry, engineer and signal corps units have played a mighty role in this defense, even exceeding the expectations of the American officers who trained them.

Mexicans Helping, Too

Mexico City, Feb. 20 (INS).—More than 100 Mexicans are fighting with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces on Bataan Peninsla, according to a report received by the government today from the Mexican consulate at Laredo, Tex. Among these volunteers, the report said, was Sergt. Rosio Paz, former colonel in Mexican revolutionary forces.

Cashiered British Brigadier Rises In Canadian Army

Camp Borden, Ontario, Feb. 20 (AP).—G. P. L. Drake-Brockman, brigadier who was court-martialed out of the British army for striking two German prisoners, has risen from ordinary tank trooper to major in the Canadian army in little more than a month.

Anxious to get into the fight again under the colors of the empire, Drake-Brockman enlisted as a Canadian trooper January 9, scrubbing floors, carrying coal and standing sentry duty.

"Great country, this Canada," he declared enthusiastically today.

Shortly after Dunkerque, he struck two German airmen after Spitfires shot down their bomber.

"They spit on the floor, spat on my shoes, then spat on me and called me a bloody English swine," was his explanation.

Woman Defendant Repudiates FBI Statement at Spy Trial

Fish Denies He Knowingly Aided Viereck

the same story that Hill told the grand jury which indicted him, Hill was then "my secretary." After Hill was indicted, Fish issued a statement in which he said, as he did in court yesterday, that the slight little World War veteran was "a clerk, not my secretary."

Hill's former boss appeared voluntarily yesterday, without being subpenaed. Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney, who examined him, bore immediately into what Hill had said.

Q. Now, Mr. Fish, do you know the defendant, George Sylvester Viereck?

A. I do.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. I think I have known him 10 or 15 years.

Q. Did you in July or August, 1940, introduce George Hill to Viereck?

A. I did not have that recollection. If I did, until I read Mr. Hill's testimony. I was under the impression that Mr. Viereck had met Mr. Hill by himself in my outer office, but evidently, from his testimony—and I am not going to quibble with that—Mr. Hill claims I went outside of my office and introduced Mr. Viereck, and I see no reason—although I do not recollect it—I see no reason to deny it.

Q. You see no reason to deny it?

A. I do not see any reason to say it was not possible—I would rather put it that way.

Q. You would not say it did not happen, would you Congressman?

A. I would rather say it might very well have happened.

* * * *

Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Viereck Senator Lundeen's speeches or their distribution?

A. That I don't remember.

Q. Is it possible that you might have?

A. I might have, yes.

* * * *

Q. Did you give Mr. Hill permission, or direct Mr. Hill, to mail out Senator Lundeen's speeches to the persons whose names were on that mailing list of that committee?

(Hill said Fish told him to mail, for Viereck, a speech by the late Senator Ernest Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, to the mailing list of Fish's isolationist committee. Two of Mr. Lundeen's employes had testified the German agent wrote the speech.)

A. I don't remember that at all, because as I told you I don't remember the meeting. I do not say that is not possible.

* * * *

Q. And is it not a fact that you directed Mr. Hill to mail out Senator Lundeen's speech to that mailing list?

A. No, I could not say that at all; I have no memory of that at all.

Q. That might have been the fact, but you don't remember?

A. That might have been the case.

Q. You have no independent memory of it now?

A. I certainly would have no reason not to do it.

* * * *

Viereck is being defended by Daniel F. Cohalan, jr., and Emil Morosini, jr., of New York. Cohalan cross-examined Fish.

Q. Were you in the habit of taking people out and introducing them to your clerk?

A. No, I was not.

* * * *

Q. You state that you had a conversation in your office with Mr. Viereck on that day. That is true?

A. Yes.

Q. And you recall that he was in your office?

A. I do. Well, I cannot say that day or even that month. I am not going to quibble. Mr. Viereck was in my office and I talked with him.

* * * *

Q. When you have seen Mr. Viereck, you have always had occasion to have talks with him, is that true?

A. Oh, yes, I think Mr. Viereck was an intelligent man. He used to be a great publicist.

Q. In all those times did you ever hear Mr. Viereck make any statement that would give you the impression that he was not a 100 per cent American?

A. No, I have always considered Mr. Viereck an American citizen of long standing and good standing.

* * * *

Q. Did you know that besides his activities in your office, he (Hill) was doing some extra work on the outside?

A. That is a very difficult question for me to answer yes or no. Mr. Hill was—I knew this—was a private contractor, sending out speeches, mailing them, employing women on the outside.

Prosecutor Maloney, conducted the redirect examination of Fish:

Q. Do you know, Mr. Fish, that in 1930, this good American citizen, Mr. Viereck wrote a book called "Spreading the Germs of Hate," in which he said, and I quote from page 55: "The objective of German propaganda was three-fold, to strengthen and replenish Germany; to weaken and harass Germany's foes, and to keep America out of the war." Do you know that he wrote such a book?

A. No, I do not. I have never read the book.

Q. Is it a coincidence that his views as a German agent coincide so closely with your view as a Congressman at this time?

A. No, it is not. How do you mean it? I don't understand that question at all. What do you mean by it?

Demands His Rights

"I have no further questions," said Prosecutor Maloney quietly, but Fish had. "Have I any rights in this court to be insulted?" he shouted.

Maloney rejoined: "I will have the reporter repeat it and I have no further questions." Official Reporter Horace Webb read the question from his notes and Fish half stood up to shout:

"The man who made that speech lies! The man who made that statement lies!"

Q. You are referring to the defendant, Viereck, are you?

A. I am referring to you!

Justice Letts said that Fish might make a statement if he wished. Fish said:

"I suspected, of course, your honor, that sooner or later this Attorney General, Assistant Attorney General, would make a statement of that kind. I have been in Congress 20 years, 22 years. Not one bit of Nazi propaganda ever went out from my office with my knowledge or consent at any time.

"Furthermore, I want it known, despite what is carried in the headlines of the press, these speeches of Lundeen were not over my frank, that they were not sent out from my office, or mailed from my office; that I never read one of those speeches; never saw one of those speeches; did not know how many went out; had nothing to do, nothing to do about it, and yet I see in the paper that I have sent out Nazi propaganda and that these speeches were franked from my office.

Hoped to Meet Issue

"I had hoped those questions would be raised.

"As far as what this gentleman has said here, I have no connection with Mr. Viereck except I only know Mr. Viereck as an American citizen, the same as any other American citizen. I did not know that he was registered as an agent of the German government or a foreign newspaper. I knew nothing of that sort about him. I didn't know he was a German propagandist. I never read this book. Mr. Viereck's acquaintance with me is the same as it is with Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Prosecutor Maloney broke in, saying, "I object to that statement very strongly. I ask that it be stricken from the record. That is a public insult to a great American."

After a few lesser exchanges, Fish left for the House, where he told reporters he would make a speech in a few days, correcting "inaccuracies" in the two speeches in which he said The Post's revelations of Hill's aid to Dennett were "lies."

Hill told him "untruths" about this, said Fish, and his speech in the House was based on them.

Denies Franks Were Used

Fish also told the reporters that Hill's activities were "perfectly legitimate" but that Hill "never" used Fish franks.

Dennett did, however.

Prosecutors Maloney and Edward J. Hickey, jr., refused to vouch for the veracity of Prescott Dennett, Washington agent of the Viereck propaganda machine. Justice Letts called Dennett from the cell where he was held in $3500 bail to insure that he would testify, as "the court's witness."

Dennett said he knew Hill.

Claiming that the answers would incriminate him, Dennett refused to say how long he had known Viereck or Hill, whether he gave Hill manuscripts to put in the Congressional Record, whether he discussed such manuscripts with Viereck, how much money he paid Hill, or anything about the isolationist committees under whose names he mailed out Viereck's propaganda.

Prosecutor Hickey called as the next witness Edward Corneaby, former secretary to Mr. Lundeen.

Corneaby said he resigned his job after remonstrating in vain over Viereck's being in the office. He confirmed other testimony that Viereck wrote speeches for Mr. Lundeen, including the one Hill said he mailed out for Viereck at Fish's direction.

Phoned Nazis for "Data"

Corneaby said once Viereck, working in Mr. Lundeen's office, telephoned the German Embassy for data, and it was delivered in an envelope with the return address of Dr. Hans Thomsen, acting Ambassador.

Corneaby called Viereck a "dangerous character" and a "vicious man" and said he was trying to protect "my country and my Senator" when he pried into Viereck's brief case without permission.

Mrs. Phyllis Posivio Spielman, former Lundeen secretary, said she too saw Viereck working on speeches with the late Senator and that once a Lundeen manuscript was sent to Viereck and came back wholly rewritten.

The court will not sit today or Monday.

On Tuesday the prosecutors expect to conclude the evidence on which they seek a $3000 fine or 2 to 6 years in jail, or both, for Viereck.

Hill's cross-examination will be finished then, having been put off so the defense could obtain copies of the speeches Hill said he had printed and sent to Dennett.

When Morosini demanded these yesterday, Maloney said he had only one with him, an extension of remarks by former Representative Jacob Thorkelson (Republican), of Montana. Tossing the speech to Morosini, Maloney taunted him:

"It contained the remarks on one Hitler."

Mrs. Mayer Is First of Six To Take Stand

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Helen Pauline Mayer, the first of six defendants to testify in their Federal court trial on charges of espionage conspiracy, today repudiated statements attributed to her by the FBI and which she acknowledged she had signed.

The trim, 26-year-old Long Island housewife and former secretary was called to the stand as the Government rested its case after 17 days of trial. Sessions were adjourned until Tuesday.

The prosecution rested after Judge Henry W. Goddard granted United States Attorney Mathia Correa's motion to make all prosecution testimony and exhibits applicable to all defendants, including Kurt Frederick Ludwig, whom Government agents called the master-mind of a German spy ring.

The attractive Mrs. Mayer, whose husband, Walter, Government witnesses reviously described as a German agent who fled to Germany via Japan last year, faced the jury calmly and showed no indication of nervousness.

She identified two statements which she said she signed at FBI headquarters last August and October, the first after six hours of questioning.

The statements, read to the jury by her counsel, Warren J. Heeg, related that she knew Ludwig only as "Fritz" and that after being introduced to him by Heinz Hillebrecht, former leader of the German-American Bund in Brooklyn, she believed he was a leather salesman.

Replying to questions by her counsel, Mrs. Mayer described her first grilling by the FBI from 6 p. m. until midnight on August 27, 1941.

"They asked me if I knew what Fritz was," she said.

"I told them I could never know what he was because he spoke so disparagingly of Germany and of conditions there. He said that conditions in the United States were so much better and that Germany should not have entered the war because it could not win.

"They put down that I was suspicious of him. That's not true, because I was never suspicious of him."

Mrs. Mayer also denied a portion of a statement quoting her as saying that Lucy Boehmler, 19-year-old high school girl and the star Government witness who previously pleaded guilty, ever told her to "watch your mail."

"There was no reason to watch my mail," she said.

Again shown the two statements she signed for the FBI the witness flatly declared that portions of each did not truly represent what she had told the questioning agents.

Well, Maybe They Don't Like Hitler

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—German claims to have discovered a Dutch plot to assassinate Adolf Hitler foreshadow a move to intensify the Nazi stranglehold on the German-occupied Netherlands, Aneta news agency said it learned today from reports reaching London from the continent.

Aneta said the allegations that Netherlands Foreign Minister E. N. Van Kleffens was behind such a plot were made in an effort to discredit the Netherlands government in London preparatory to setting up some form of Nazi puppet government in Holland.

Van Kleffens now is in the United States.

Viereck Subpenas Lundeen's Widow

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—Deputy United States Marshal Albert H. Hunt said today he had served a subpena on Mrs. Norma Ward Lundeen, widow of the late Senator Ernest Lundeen, of Minnesota, to appear as a defense witness in the Washington trial of George Sylvester Viereck, charged with violating the foreign agents' registration act.

Hunt said Mrs. Lundeen was reported ill when he attempted to serve the subpena Wednesday, but that she accepted it today.

On Conscience

Laura Ingalls Orates as She Is Sentenced

Laura Ingalls, aviatrix and erstwhile America First lecturer, was given a jail sentence of eight months to two years by Justice James W. Morris yesterday for her failure to register as a paid agent of the German Reich.

The stocky little stunt flier, who was convicted by a District jury last week, delivered an address on freedom of conscience as she stood before the bar awaiting sentence.

Followed Her Conscience

Reasserting her claim that she had only been conducting a lone counterespionage campaign, she declared that she believed herself "a better patriot than my fellow Americans who convicted me."

"One of the great fundamentals implicit in the Constitution," she stated, "is liberty of conscience. With the interests of my country at heart, I thought I had the right to follow the dictates of my conscience."

"I do not consider myself morally guilty of commiting an act against my country," she declared. "My motives were born of a burning patriotism."

Justice Morris, in pronouncing the sentence, reminded her that she had not been convicted for the isolationist views which she had expressed, but for her failure to acknowledge that she was in the employ and under the direction of Nazi officials.

She was convicted on February 13 after a five-day trial, in which the Government contended that she made isolationist and anti-British speeches under the supervision of Baron Ulrich von Gienanth, Second Secretary of the German Embassy.

Admitted Taking Money

She admitted receiving money from the Germans, but defended her failure to register as a foreign agent by contending that she was merely trying to ingratiate herself with the Nazis in order to spy on their activities.

She said that she planned to turn over her findings to G-men at the proper time.

"If my motives were not believed," she said yesterday, "I can do nothing but accept the sentence."

Then, bowing her head, she concluded:

"I salute the public of the United States."

Dies to Offer Data on Jap Invasion Plan

By Cecil B. Dickson

(Copyright, 1942, by Chicago Tribune)

Evidence pointing to plans of the Japanese to attempt an invasion of the United States West Coast in the spring will be contained in a report the special House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities will make next week, Chairman Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas, said last night.

"Evidence in the report of widespread Japanese espionage activities on the West Coast stretching from Alaska to the Panama Canal convinces me that the Japs plan an attack on the West Coast this spring," Dies said. "The report will show that the Japanese have taken every advantage possible in recent years to obtain information on our defenses on the West Coast; that their information on the West Coast is as detailed as that which led to their successful raid on Pearl Harbor and the invasion of the Philippines."

Dies made the statement when informed that President Roosevelt had issued an Executive order giving the War Department authority to declare war zones in the dangerous areas of the United States, primarily prompted by the activities of some of the 90,000 Japanese in California, Oregon and Washington.

Says Reports Were Ignored

"I am glad that the President acted," Dies said. "Last September, I made available to the Government agencies information gathered by our investigators on the activities of the Japanese in Hawaii, the Philippines and in California, but they generally ignored it."

"I am led to believe by findings of our committee that the Japanese plan to raid the West Coast first to test our defenses. The raids undoubtedly will be conducted by submarines, warships and airplane carriers. I also am led to believe that they will attack Dutch Harbor in Alaska and that they will seek to close the Panama Canal, either through air raids or sabotage.

Operated in Gulf

"In fact, the report will show that the Japanese spies operated in the Gulf of Mexico, especially around Houston, Galveston, Beaumont, three great shipping ports for wheat, cotton and oil, and at Corpus Christi, the site of our second great naval aviation training station. They even made a study of the West Indies, but showed little interest along the Atlantic Coast.

"It also will show that the Japanese have information on the vast hydro-electric power plants and water mains supplying the great cities of California. Undoubtedly the Japanese know the location of the water lines from Boulder Canyon Dam to Los Angeles and how much protection is afforded the long line."

bers of Congress who previously had demanded prompt removal of Japanese aliens to inland points.

"My only desire," said Representative Sheppard (Democrat), California, "is to see that California citizens and the defense program are not jeopardized, and the method announced by the President is a step in the right direction. I appeal to every citizen, and especially those in places of responsibility in California, to support the program."

The order was lauded as "a step in the right direction" by Senator Wallgren (Democrat), of Washington, chairman of the West Coast Congressional Committee on Aliens and Sabotage. He said the President had promised to see the committee as soon as possible and that meanwhile its members would study the working of the new plan on the West Coast.

Enemy Aliens Seized In Brooklyn, Queens

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Federal agents took into custody tonight an undisclosed number of enemy aliens in the Queens and Brooklyn waterfront and airfield sections after a search of their homes for contraband.

The arrests were the first here since 577 Japanese, Italian and German aliens were apprehended at the start of the war.

The raiding agents were armed with special warrants issued by United States Attorneys Mathias Correa and Harold M. Kennedy.

Contraband sought by the agents consisted mainly of firearms, cameras and shortwave radios ordered turned in weeks ago.

Argentina's Ruling Clique Bets on Nazis

By Turner Catledge
(Copyright by Chicago Sun)

Buenos Aires, Feb. 20.—The ruling clique in Argentina apparently is playing its game in the belief that the Axis will win the war but it is widely disputed that this feeling extends to more than a small minority of the public.

One hears on every hand that the overwhelming majority of the rank and file in the country is wholeheartedly with the Allies, despite the reverses of the last few weeks.

But a belief in an Axis victory is strong among the group surrounding Vice President Ramon S. Castillo, now at the head of the government in place of the ailing president, Roberto M. Ortiz.

Until this belief is reversed by Allied victories, by the war coming closer to home, by more direct and practical action by the United States or by an internal upheaval in Argentina, the rest of the Americas cannot count on this country's cooperation.

Nazis Close to President

Argentines and foreigners alike are authority for the statement that outright Nazi influence is exerted on the Castillo regime by certain advisers close to the acting President.

They rattle off name after name of Castillo's influential Nazi-minded friends, including members of the families of at least two of the country's highest officials.

Nazi agitation and propaganda is still being conducted on a wide-open scale. Moreover, there is a sentimental attachment in some sources for Italy, whose nationals and descendants make up an important part of Argentina's population.

But of even greater significance now is the natural pro-Fascist, ultra-conservative provincialism demonstrated by Castillo and his clique. This is compounded by intense anti-United States feeling which has been burning in them for more than half a century.

British Share Blame

To put it bluntly the upper crust Argentines who have been able by means of short-circuiting the democratic processes to remain in power, detest North America. This is not all due to German propaganda of recent years. One tragic truth of the case is that we are now dealing with the fruits of anti-North American agitation carried on in previous years by the British as a weapon in their business competition with the United States. The Nazis now are simply shaking the trees and the ripe plums of dissention planted by the British are falling into their laps.

Belief in an Axis victory is not the only thing which makes Argentina reluctant to break relations with Germany, Japan and Italy and take the other strong measures devised at the Rio de Janeiro conference of American foreign ministers. There is actually a feeling among some people that fence-sitting is the best policy.

Hope to Gain Profits

It is obvious to anyone that Argentina is not war-minded and wants to avoid conflict. The whole temper of the country and her people strikingly resembles that of the United States a year ago. Take the United States at that time and put isolationists at the head of our Government and you can imagine a good working model of present-day Argentina.

They believe that they can continue to sell their beef, wheat, corn and wool at good prices and convert their incomes into automobiles, electric refrigerators, radios and fine homes. The war simply is not yet a reality either to the man in the street or to the rulers in Casa Rosada.

But the thing that really gives life and direction to this complacence—and complacence here easily has life—is the belief and even half hope in high governmental quarters that the Axis will win. This is further excited by admiration in the Argentine army for the performance of Germany and Japan's armed forces.

Bulletin Buys Name, Good Will of Ledger

Philadelphia, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Evening Bulletin today purchased for $40,000 the name, good will and Associated Press membership of the defunct Evening Ledger.

Federal Judges Harry E. Kalodner and Guy K. Bard approved the Bulletin's offer and directed the Ledger's three court-appointed trustees to carry out the transfer at once.

Efforts of the Ledger to reorganize under the Chandler Bankruptcy Act failed and the paper ceased publication last January 5.

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

From Eleanor Roosevelt . . .

WASHINGTON

February 18, 1942

Dear Dean Landis:

I feel that the organization for civilian mobilization is now complete as far as the Washington office is concerned, and therefore I am giving you my resignation to take effect on Friday, February 20th, 1942.

As you know, I recognize fully the importance of civilian protection under your direction, but I also believe very firmly that all the civilians of our country must be mobilized in order to make civilian protection possible. For that reason, I have felt that the organization on this side of the program, undertaken under the Executive Order, was extremely important.

I did not wish to leave the Office of Civilian Defense until I could feel that I was doing so with completely competent people in charge. That is now accomplished, and by remaining I would only make it possible for those who wish to attack me, because of my beliefs, to attack an agency which I consider can prove its usefulness so completely to the people, that it should be free of attack, in order to render its maximum service.

No individual is more important than a good program. I feel that yours is and will be a program vital to the well-being of the people of the country.

With every good wish to all of you, I am

Very cordially yours,

Eleanor Roosevelt

Harris & Ewing

. . . TO JAMES M. LANDIS, director, Office Civilian Defense

port that I know it will still receive from you."

"To do so," he continued, "would be to have a civilian army without those faiths that alone make for victory."

Mrs. Roosevelt, who has served without pay as assistant director in charge of community and voluntary participation since September, wrote Landis she considered civilian mobilization now complete "as far as Washington is concerned."

"I did not wish to leave OCD until I could feel that I was doing so with completely competent people in charge," she declared, expressing belief "that is now accomplished."

She said that while she recognized the importance of civilian protection, she believed "very firmly that all civilians of our country must be mobilized in order to make civilian protection possible."

Mayor LaGuardia, in his final OCD report to the President, suggested all except the protective services might well be stripped from the agency and placed with permanent Government departments already engaged in such or similar activities.

When the First Lady came to OCD—at a time when the country was "clamoring for something to do" and Pearl Harbor was beyond the realm of imagination—she brought as special assistant her friend Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury. Mrs. Morgenthau left the agency on January 22.

Mrs. Morgenthau served without compensation, as have many other consultants and volunteers in Mrs. Roosevelt's division. One appointment in the section, however—that of Mayris Chaney, dancer friend of the First Lady to a $4,600 job as director of folk and children's activities in the physical fitness division—brought widespread criticisms of "overpay and useless frills." Miss Chaney resigned last Wednesday.

Landis yesterday also announced the resignation of T. Semmes Walmsley, former mayor of New Orleans, who has been heading the OCD inspectors general division to be abolished March 1. Walmsley has been called to active duty as a reserve officer with the Army Air Corps. He holds the rank of major.

Sidelights of the War

Axis Makes Indians See Red; They Elect Stalin 'Big Chief

By International News Service

New York, Feb. 20.—After tonight it's "Big Chief Joe Stalin" to the Indian tribes of the United States, Canada, Mexico and Central America.

While the war drums throbbed in competition with the click-clack-click of the subway and the Braves danced their tribal routines in competition with the shag, the head of all the Red Russians tonight was officially named an honorary chief of the red Indians.

Gen. Archibald Wavell ran pretty close to Stalin in the voting for the outstanding warrior of 1941 but other entries trailed far behind and the United States entered the war too late in the year to qualify a candidate.

The Indians associated with the Indian Confederation of America admit that at the moment Gen. Douglas MacArthur is a sure candidate for the honors next year.

A magnificent war bonnet, fashioned by wives of the chieftains, will go to Stalin.

Bond Sale Boosted

Ord, Neb., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Reich of Adolf Hitler has bought $3500 worth of United States defense bonds, involuntarily. Here's how it happened:

Ign. Klima, jr., chairman of the Valley County defense committee, is executor of an estate in which $3,500 was left heirs in Germany. Money owed to residents of Axis countries can't be paid, so Klima invested it in defense bonds.

Cock-and-Bull Story

Tokyo, Feb. 20 (Radiocast recorded by United Press, San Francisco). Hundreds of barking dogs, squealing pigs and crowing roosters helped the Japanese conquer Singapore, military observers said today.

They said it was all part of the "time-honored fear tactics employed by the Japanese centuries ago."

The Japanese collected the dogs, pigs and roosters and made them give off an "infernal clamor" close to the enemy positions, which "fooled the British into thinking they were being attacked by a tremendous force."

British Army Purge Asked

London, Feb. 20 (INS).—Warning that if a thorough housecleaning of the army is not carried out Britain may never emerge from "the middle of the war," the magazine Economist said today:

"Russia may be winning the war, America may be preparing to win it, but Britain is losing it . . . Nowhere in the world is the scorched earth policy more necessary than in Whitehall."

Capt. Lovette Named To Public Relations Job

Capt. Leland P. Lovette has been appointed assistant director of public relations of the Navy Department, relieving Commander Robert W. Berry, it was announced yesterday.

Commander Berry will remain as assistant to Rear Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, director of the bureau. Capt. Lovette, whose ship, the flagship of a destroyer division, was sunk under him at Pearl Harbor, was in the bureau before being assigned to sea duty last year.

Atlanta Bishop Dies; Ill Since Heart Attack Feb. 9

Atlanta, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Right Rev. Henry Judah Mikell, 68, one of the South's best known churchmen and Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta since 1917, died early today at a hospital.

Bishop Mikell had been ill since February 9 when he suffered a heart attack after returning from a meeting of the House of Bishops at Jacksonville, Fla.

The body will lie in state here at the Cathedral of St. Philip all day Sunday. The cathedral, seat of the diocese he served, will be the scene of funeral services at 10:30 a. m. Monday with Bishop F. A. Juhan, of Jacksonville, officiating.

Noted as an administrator, scholar and speaker, Bishop Mikell was an authority on the liturgy and English history of the church and was recognized as one of the outstanding leaders of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States.

Bishop Mikell was chairman of the commission of 27 bishops, priests and laymen who recommended and succeeded in getting the church to approve changes in the Protestant Episcopal Church hymnal. He was a member of the liturgical committee of the national church and three times served as a delegate to the Lambeth Conference in London.

U.S. Production Rate 'Amazes' Senate Group

By the Associated Press

Senate Appropriations sub-committeemen said yesterday that Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson "amazed" them with a "most encouraging" report on the rate of increase in this country's war production.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, said the Patterson report showed that the Government "really has gone to work on the bottlenecks and they're moving heaven and earth to turn out the materials."

Agreeing with him was Senator McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, who said he was more encouraged by the Patterson report than by any report heretofore reaching Congress on the war effort.

The hearing developed the impression, said Thomas, that this country's over-all war production was designed eventually to turn out war materials equal to the combined output of enemy nations.

Production Not Lagging

Detailed information presented by the Undersecretary, committeemen said, blasted any impression that war production was lagging. They said they were impressed how quickly the country geared itself to all-out production, once the Nation actually was embroiled in war.

Other witnesses told the committee that lend-lease programs were operating full steam ahead, and that not only was this country providing materials vital to its Allies; but that its Allies were providing the United States with critical materials this country lacked.

Patterson was called to testify on a $32,070,901,900 Army, lend-lease and Martime Commission appropriations bill.

Pointing out that if Congress approves the pending bill in its present form it will have voted military appropriations and authorizations totaling $71,286,646,702 since January 5, committee members said they wished to learn whether the production program was being speeded accordingly.

145 Billions to Be Spent

At the same time, the War Production Board said that authorized outlays for war, plus war funds requested of Congress, totaled an estimated $145,400,000,000.

The sum was only slightly under the national income for 1939 and 1940 combined, estimated at $146,709,000,000.

Pending legislation accounted for $31,500,000,000 of the total, the analysis showed, while funds actually authorized came to 113,894,000,000. Authorizations included $78,553,000,000 for munitions, planes, weapons and naval and merchant ships; $18,602,000,000 for construction of cantonments, industrial plants and emergency housing, and $12,583,000,000 for miscellaneous items, including soldiers' pay, stock piles, travel, training, civilian defense and administrative costs. Also included was $4,066,000,000 of foreign orders, but the breakdown of this sum into munitions, construction and other outlays was withheld as "confidential."

Lend-lease agricultural exports were not included in the foreign orders classification, but in the "miscellaneous" category.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation commitments totaled $5,130,000,000.

Two May Receive Congress' Pensions

is not likely that the House will restore the provision.

Civil Service experts, however, believe that because the legislators have continued to make payments into the retirement fund, a contractural obligation has been established between them and the Government which Congress may not set aside.

House leaders yesterday decided to put off action on the Byra repealer until Tuesday in view of Washington's Birthday exercises scheduled for Monday.

One of Three Amendments

The Byrd repealer comes to the House as one of three amendments to a bill continuing pay and allowances of missing members of the armed forces, thus posing an intricate problem on how to get a separate record vote on the repealer.

This is a matter of extreme importance to House members. They permitted Congressional "pensions" to go through by unanimous consent and without a roll call vote January 21. With the possible exception of a dozen members, they all want to show the voters—who, incidentally, go to the polls again in November—how quickly they can repent—for the record.

Leaders believe they can meet the situation by calling up the Senate amendments separately, with a record vote on the Byrd repealer.

Last Rites Today For Mrs. White, Wife of Cleric

Funeral services for Mrs. Catherine R. H. White, 70, wife of the Rev. William Curtis White, retired Episcopal rector, who died Thursday at the Home for the Incurables, will be held today at 2 p. m. in Bethlehem Chapel with burial in Philadelphia, her birthplace.

The daughter of William H. and Josephine Hansell, Mrs. White graduated from the Friends Central School in Philadelphia, and after her marriage in 1900 lived in Key West and Aurora, N. Y., coming to Washington in 1916.

She was active in diocesan missionary work and served on the boards of the House of Mercy and the Episcopal Hospital. She was a member of the Livingston Manor Chapter of the D. A. R.

Mr. White, who lives at 3420 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, was formerly rector of Christ Church, Washington parish, and assistant pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Besides her husband, Mrs. White leaves two nephews and a niece who live in Philadelphia. A daughter died in 1904.

Flare-up Seen Over Easy Commissions

By Francis J. Connor
(Copyright by Chicago Sun)

A flareup over the plentitude of commissions distributed in both the Army and Navy to the politically influential and prospective selectees seeking to duck the draft will feature Congressional committee hearings next week, it was predicted yesterday.

Spokesmen for the Selective Service system said, that due to the disclosures to be demanded from Army and Navy officials, legislation is anticipated soon which would make it mandatory for Senate confirmation to accompany any commission below the rank of lieutenant colonel or major in the Army and lieutenant commander or commander in the Navy, unless the commissions were achieved through established Officer Training Corps.

Winchell Under Fire

Fireworks are expected Monday when the House Naval Affairs Committee, in secret session, will summon before it Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, to explain the status of Walter Winchell and how he "won" his rank of lieutenant commander in the Navy. But Winchell's case, it was explained, is only the first of many so-called personages holding sinecures in the military and the Navy to be aired.

Another phase of the highly criticized commissioning procedure, predominantly noticeable in Washington and expected to be probed, is a recently reported private meeting of the War Department bigwigs in which they sought to base the policy of the War Department on granting commissions to college graduates only, unless, of course, an individual came through an officers' training course.

Draft Officials Disapprove

Selective Service officials, learning of the proceedings, put a heavy stamp of disapproval on the plan and made their protests known to the proper quarters until they felt assured the project had been pigeonholed in the War Department.

Meanwhile incidents of a secret session of the House Military Affairs Committee Tuesday at which Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, was reportedly interrogated about the alleged cafeteria system of serving officers' commissions to "prominent persons" facing the draft, tended to add fuel to the Congressional indignation.

Awarding of commissions is not an operation of Hershey's office and he is not legislatively empowered to prevent the War Department from fulfilling that operation indiscriminately. However, persons close to the Selective Service director have maintained a silent but stern opposition to the practice in vogue and believe that every man faced with prospective military service should be inducted before being commissioned.

Walter S. Frisbie's Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral services for Walter S. Frisbie, 60, chief of the Office of State Cooperation, Food and Drug Administration, will be held at 3 p. m. today at the S. H. Hines Co. funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest. Burial will be in Meriden, Conn.

He died Thursday in his office here. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

A native of New Haven, Conn., Mr. Frisbie came to Washington in 1921 after a number of years' service with several States as a chemist and administrator.

In addition to heading the Office of State Cooperation, he served as chairman of the food standards committee of the Federal Security Agency at the time of his death.

He was a fellow of the American Public Health Association.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mae McDermott Frisbie, of 1718 Irving Street Northwest, and a son, John McDermott Frisbie.

Comdr. Pollard, Civil Engineer In Navy, Dies

Commander Willard A. Pollard, jr., 46, Washington-born civil engineer on Naval projects at East Coast ports, in the Virgin Islands and Panama, died yesterday at his home, 4931 Butterworth Place Northwest, after a long illness. He was retired from active duty in the Navy's Civil Engineer Corps since his return from an assignment in Panama because of illness.

He graduated from Central High School in 1912 and received a scholarship to Lafayette University in Easton, Pa., where he was an honor student and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He then was employed by a New York engineering firm until he entered the Navy in the first World War. He was successively promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander and commander. He served first in Washington and later in Yorktown, Philadelphia, Norfolk, Panama and the Virgin Islands. He was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. at Fort Myer Chapel with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

He is survived by three children, Willard A. 3d, 19, a midshipman at the Annapolis Naval Academy; Anne, 13, and Philip, 13; his father, Willard Pollard, sr., of Washington, and a brother, Philip, of Tulsa, Okla.

Uncle Sam Must Save On Tires, Too

The Government will take tires from some of its own nonessential automobiles and put them on other Government-owned vehicles eligible under tire rationing regulations, Price Administrator Leon Henderson reported yesterday.

In the case of Government-owned gas cars and trucks now being used for purposes which make them ineligible for tires, the vehicles themselves may be transferred to eligible uses, under the plan outlined by Henderson.

At the same time the price administrator took action to halt the bringing of tires into this country except under express authority of his office. This was in answer to complaints that Americans were driving into Mexico, having new tires mounted on their cars and returning to this country.

The import ruling, contained in a letter to the commissioner of customs, said no tires might be brought in, either for use or resale, without permission of the OPA, and that any tires imported were subject, "as soon as they enter this country," to rationing under OPA's control.

The Government will classify its own vehicles as eligible or ineligible to obtain new tires from Government supplies, Henderson said, and will set up an emergency "fleet pool" of 2000 new tires and 2000 new inner tubes.

The final decision as to whether a car is eligible for new rubber will remain with the regular local rationing boards, the price chief said, to the others and plotting its execution. He pleaded guilty.

The 200-pound heavyweight broke down after telling the court that he had been deserted by wife, family and friends as a result of his offense.

"The strongest punch in the world can never hurt me like that," he declared, while standing before the bench awaiting sentence.

"I'll go straight," he told the judge. "I've lost my friends, my wife, my family——."

At this point he broke down in tears, and sobbed:

"Oh—what's the difference—go ahead."

Natie Brown Is Sentenced

Prizefighter Natie Brown, who once lasted ten rounds against the thundering fists of Joe Louis, went down sobbing before one punch in District Court yesterday.

The knockout blow was a jail sentence of 18 months to four years delivered by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough for Brown's admitted complicity in a $3000 payroll robbery last August.

Brown's confederates in the hold-up of a Valley Forge Distributing Co. employe, Sam Greenstein and Harry Roth, were sentenced earlier in the day, and given one to three years each. Though Brown did not participate in the hold-up itself, he was accused of suggesting it

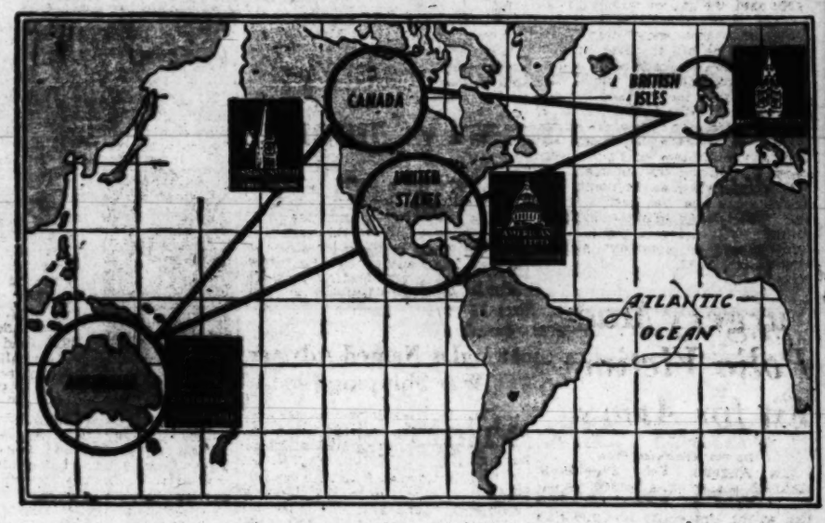
Exclusive Wartime Coverage Of Public Opinion in the Four Allied Democracies



Four Allied people—American, British, Australian and Canadian—are now linked by Gallup Polls of public opinion. The Gallup Poll has operated in the United States since 1935; the British Institute in Britain since 1936. The Canadian and the Australian Gallup Polls were organized in 1941. WARTIME POLLS: "In time of war the value of this system of testing public opinion becomes greater than ever," wrote the London News Chronicle soon after the outbreak of the war September, 1939.

"First, in a nation at war, for the survival of free democracy, it is vital that liberty of expression of opinion shall, within proper limits, flourish.

"Secondly, if the will and effort of the people are to be sustained at the highest level, it is important that some regular consecutive guide to the trend of public opinion shall be made available to those who frame and direct the nation's policy."

N. J. Governor Orders Food Buying Probe

By the Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 20.—Gov. Charles Edison today ordered an investigation of "preposterous" food purchases at the State-owned Governor's cottage at Sea Girt last summer.

He assigned State Adjt. Gen. James I. Bowers to "determine if there was any provable dereliction of duty" on the part of Quartermaster Gen. Stephen H. Barlow.

The Governor told Barlow by letter:

"Frankly, I am shocked at the laxity of supervision by you as the departmental head in charge of the expenses at the Sea Girt cottage. I suspect that some sort of swindle has been perpetrated in connection with these expenses, which would have been prevented if you had adquately discharged your responsibility."

The August food bill at the cottage totaled $5523. Payment has not been approved.

Items Listed

Items in the bill criticized by Edison were these:

Meats, $937.26, an average of $30.23 a day for the month; poultry, $693.10, or $22.36 a day; lobster, $242.80, or $7.83 a day; caviar, $224.05, or $7.23 a day; other sea food, $240.71, or $7.76 a day; heavy cream, 81 quarts, an average of 2.6 quarts a day; milk, 328 quarts, or 10½ quarts a day; butter, 345 pounds, or 11 pounds a day, and eggs, 280 dozen, or 9 dozen a day.

"I would say that was enough eggs for a daily Easter roll on the Sea Girt lawn and enough milk for quite a few growing children," the Governor commented.

He said a story going around the State House about a $178 bill for soda water held that he was fond of Coca-Cola. "At the price of 5 cents a bottle, that would be 111 bottles a day available for my consumption," Edison wrote.

20 Guests a Day Estimated

The chief executive said a "generous" estimate was that 20 persons a day ate at the cottage during August and at that rate "the unprepared food supplies for each person for each day averaged $8.90, or $275.90 a month."

Edison said according to these figures "it would be cheaper to let the chef go and have caterers supply the place from New York or Philadelphia or any other center of good cooking."

He said the grocer supplying the cottage "has informed the Governor's office that some items were placed on the bill to cover up purchases of liquor which could not be charged according to law." Declaring Barlow had stocked the cottage cellar with $1200 worth of liquor before he arrived, Edison said: "It is hard to understand why any purchases of liquor were necessary during the summer."

Bowers, sworn as adjutant general a week ago, has been a friend and associate of Barlow in State military circles for 20 years. Barlow refused to comment on the Governor's letter.

Surgery Made Polio Victim Fit for Army

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 20.—Mason Hohl, 18, was given a perfect physical rating in his medical examination at the University of California at Los Angeles. Doctors probably wondered how he got that 2-incn scar on his right leg, just below the knee. But they didn't ask.

Young Hohl didn't mention that it was his only physical reminder that he barely was able to stumble along only 18 months ago. He was badly crippled by infantile paralysis.

Now he's a member of the U. C. L. A. R. O. T. C. unit and walks and runs as easily as any of his fellow cadets.

Hohl was presented to the Los Angeles County Medical Association as Dr. Anthonie van Harreveld, and Dr. Harvey E. Billig, jr., a lieutenant in the United States Navy Medical Corps, told how they discovered a polio treatment which effected marvelous results on five patients. Dr. Van Harreveld is a faculty member at California Institute of Technology and Dr. Billig has been assigned to active duty there for research.

The treatment consists of crushing an entire nerve, degeneration of which caused paralysis in the muscle. As the nerve fibers struggle to reestablish connection with the muscle they grow and multiply by division. Thus they eventually motivate not only the muscle fibers which the nerves supplied before the crushing, but many times that number.

Dr. Billig said the research began with rabbits and it "took a bit of daring to try it on the first human"—Hohl, son of Dr. Elizabeth Mason Hohl, president of the American Women's Medical Association.

Hohl and the next three patients underwent operations in which incisions were made on their legs.

The fifth was a 42-year-old woman who became an infantile paralysis victim in 1904. Instead of surgery, manual pressure was exerted against the left femoral nerve in the thigh. Muscles supplied by the nerve have improved so much that she now can straighten her knee. Treatment began only three months ago.

The next step is to determine to what extent manual pressure will crush nerves and thus obviate surgery. Dr. Billig said the nerve-crushing discovery probably explains why the most publicized treatments, including muscle re-education and deep massage, sometimes are surprisingly successful. He theorized that some nerve crushing was caused accidentally in such treatments.

Oriental Pearl Valued at $8000 Reported Missing

Lieut. Robert D. L. Gardiner, of the United States Navy, reported to police last night that a 35-grain Oriental pearl valued at $8000 is missing from his apartment at 1711 Twenty-second Street Northwest.

The pearl was set in a yellow gold stickpin, Lieut. Gardiner said.

Glamour Girls Rise At 6 A. M. Daily and Adore Factory Work

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—"Eight a. m. sharp—factory" now is the most important memo in the datebook of several Philadelphia debutantes.

For the glamour girls are turning into calloused-handed laboring ladies in their determination to do what they can in the Nation's war drive. They get one day off a week, and work six Sundays out of seven.

Three debutantes of this season and last already have deserted the stag lines of the ballrooms for the assembly lines of plants. Another is learning welding in a trade school to qualify for an exciting job in the munitions industry, while still another is waiting for a call from Frankford arsenal.

And for those who think its just another society fad, the pretty aspiring young welder answers:

"Nobody ever spent 400 hours with an oxyacetylene torch just for a whim. I'm in earnest about helping—and so are the other girls."

Maysie Morris, a pert belle of the season, was apparently the first to shed stylish clothes for coveralls. She deserted volunteer auxiliary services and stood in line at employment windows until she landed a job at the Bendix Aviation Corporation plant. Soon she was one of the most proficient coil-winders on the line. Working associates didn't discover her identity until photographs of Maysie during a fox hunt appeared. But by that time she could out-wind the best of 'em, and the only teasing was good-natured.

Berthe Churchman and Betty Fehr also were employed by Bendix—on their own—to fit intricate instruments into airplane panels.

"It was a little hard, the first day or two, to roll out of bed at 6 in the morning," said Berthe. "But I'd get up earlier than that if I had to, to have a job like this."

Then she echoed the sentiments of the others:

"It makes you feel that you're in the midst of the war effort. I guess everyone in the plant feels the same way I do."

Mrs. Pinchot Has Uniform, But No Advice

The red-haired Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, natty in a bright blue uniform with brass buttons, made her first public appearance yesterday as head of the combined emergency feeding and housing units of the District Defense Council.

The audience of 29 women, three men and one small boy, meeting at American University under auspices of the American University Park Civilian Defense Area's executive committee, had expected to hear the former Pennsylvania governor's wife talk about emergency feeding and housing.

But, "It seems foolish to try to tell you about things I don't know myself," Mrs. Pinchot said, explaining she had only taken over the post ten days ago and was "learning."

Members of the audience marveled afterward that Mrs. Pinchot had managed to get such a handsome uniform together in so short a time.

She wore a blue tunic, skirt and overseas cap to match. Drawn up somewhat and knotted beneath the cap, enough of her flaming red hair was visible to lend the impelling Pinchot touch to the ensemble.

Anderson A. Murphey, chairman of the executive committee, told the audience he would ask Mrs. Pinchot to come back when she is able to give advice on how to set up a housing and feeding program in the American University Park area.

Douglas Named Adviser To War Shipping Chief

Lewis Douglas, former budget director, yesterday was appointed adviser to War Shipping Administrator E. S. Land.

He will "advise on and survey the economic aspects of world shipping problems," Land said.

Three employes of the Maritime Commission also were named to the War Shipping Administration. The appointments were S. D. Schell, executive officer; David E. Scoll, assistant to Land, and W. C. Peet, jr., secretary.

14 Firemen Are Promoted In Capital

Fourteen promotions and a new appointment to the District Fire Department were approved by the Commissioners yesterday.

Six lieutenants were made captains. They are: Walter A. Weber, Charles L. Galer, John B. Dutton, Raymond E. Huntt, Charles L. Byram and Walter L. Hurley.

Four sergeants promoted to captains include Elmer C. Jones, James F. Mills, Warren W. Smith and Rodney K. Thomas.

Privates given the grades of sergeants were Edward O. Moeller, Aubrey B. Mattingly, Roger L. Barnes and Maurice Harbin.

Harvey Fritter was appointed to the department as a private at $1900 a year. The captains will receive $3000 each, the lieutenants $2840 and the sergeants $2600.

The Commissioners also approved the retirement of Private Timothy J. O'Neil under the 64-year-age limit for service.

Each promotion becomes effective March 1.

Dr. J. W. Hancher, D. C. Churchman, Dies in Portland

Dr. John William Hancher, 85, of Washington, educaotr and Methodist churchman, died in his sleep Thursday night at Portland, Ore., where he had gone for a relative's funeral.

DR. HANCHER

Dr. Hancher, whose residence was 3275 Macomb Street Northwest, was president of the National Memorial Park, in Arlington, and since 1928 had been counsellor in philanthropy of the Methodist Church.

As director of philanthropic campaigns for many years, Dr. Hancher is said to have raised more than 200 million dollars for educational institutions, hospitals, churches, orphanages and the like.

A native of Noble County, Ohio, he held nine college degrees. He entered the Methodist ministry in 1880 and was president of Iowa Wesleyan College from 1901 to 1907.

He was an honorary life member of the Methodist Education Association, the first ever elected.

Testimony Concluded, Ewing Case Goes to Jury Today

cusations, asserting that he did not see the girl from about 1:45 a. m.—before the time of the alleged assault—until 10 o'clock in the morning. He has told the jury that at the time of the reported attack he was attending to a bathroom repair in the building's upper stories, and investigating prowlers at the rear of the building.

Says Police Distorted Statements

Under cross-examination yesterday, he repudiated police statements that on the night of his arrest he told them he had been "liquored up" and did not remember clearly what had happened.

"They took my statements and twisted them to another meaning," he charged angrily.

In summing up the defendant's case, Attorneys Homer L. McCormick and Charles Henry Smith asserted that the girl's description of the attack was "inconsistent" and showed no evidence of any force being used against her.

"Nothing is claimed," McCormick declared, "except the unsupported testimony of a charming young woman who says she was ravished against her will."

He went on to point out that the girl did not summon police in the case until 22 hours after the attack was alleged to have taken place.

Pleads Chivalry

Ewing would have had a perfect defense, he contended, had he chosen to claim that the girl consented, but added that the facts were that the defendant had had nothing to do with her that night.

Smith asked the jury to regard both the complainant and Ewing "impersonally" and turn a "searchlight of reason" on the evidence. He emphasized that the Government must prove to the jurors "beyond a reasonable doubt" that Ewing was guilty, and that Ewing himself must be considered innocent until that time.

Fihelly and Coprosecutor Charles B. Murray, in their summations, told the jurors that Ewing had committed "an aggravated, vicious, unwarranted rape," and asked that a death penalty be levied against him.

Calls Defendant Arrogant

Murray described the complainant as a young, clear-eyed girl" and referred to Ewing as "arrogant, self-assured and middle-aged." Hester Chamberlin—described previously by the defense as a "typical old maid"—he referred to as a "faithless, drunken puppet."

They asked that a guilty verdict be returned not "as vengeance" but as a protection for society against an offense which should be "viewed with distaste and wiped out as intolerable."

Fihelly, who spake last for the Government, said that the defense had failed to show any reason why "this little girl" should try to "frame" Ewing. He further charged that the defense had failed to account for a broken chain lock which was taken off the door of her room or for the house coat which she said she was wearing that night.

Three Verdicts Open

Under District law, the jury may return any of three verdicts in the case—not guilty, guilty or guilty with death penalty.

Ewing, who testified yesterday, was subjected to an hour's grilling by Fihelly.

Among the statements credited to him by police which he repuditated was an assertion that the girl involved had sat on his lap and kissed him on the night of the alleged offense, and that he remembered nothing more until the next morning.

He said that this had actually occurred several days before and that when he told police about it, he had been relating the events of the week preceding the night of the alleged attack.

Rebutial Offered

When the defense rested its case after Ewing had left the stand, the Government recalled the complaining witness and Robert Payne, 21-year-old RFC clerk, who had been out with her on the evening of October 25.

Both denied a charge made by Ewing that he had seen them together on the second floor of the apartment, near Payne's room, about 1 a. m. of the Sunday morning in question.

Also called as rebuttal witnesses were Third Precinct policemen, who testified that Hester Chamberlin had made a statement to them in which she allegedly said she was too drunk to remember what had happened.

During the trial she testified that she was sober and had slept beside the door which Ewing is alleged to have broken open. She said he could not possibly have passed through her room and broken into the girl's bedroom.

Tidal Wave

Every time we turn around the stupendous problem of preparing Washington for its war role has grown bigger. Only a few weeks ago a huge housing program was launched. Then came another plan to appropriate 50 million dollars for housing and essential streets, water mains, sewers, and so forth. Now W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public buildings, frankly admits that this sum will not be enough to meet the emergency conditions which the unprecedented influx of Government workers is creating.

The one fact which stands out from all the discussion of the problem is this: all prewar calculations of the city's requirements must be thrown to the winds. Washington has been inundated by an American tidal wave with about the same suddenness that the Japanese tidal wave has swept over the British, American and Dutch possessions in the Far East. It must be met by heroic measures. The city can expect to endure hardships and inconveniences, but Congress must not allow either congestion or epidemics to slow down the war effort at its headquarters. Only bold and seemingly fantastic expansion will safeguard Washington from these dangers.

It is well to remember that the special Lanham bill for metropolitan Washington covers only houses and public works. It makes no allowance for the extension of municipal service to the new army of warworkers. That must be provided for through the District budget or supplementary appropriations bills. Obviously the budget now before Congress is obsolete. Much time might be saved by sending the budget back to the District Commissioners to be brought up to date even before the House begins hearings on it.

First Things First

Congress has wasted a good deal of time approving and rejecting pensions for its own members. Out of this experience, however, has come a new appreciation of its responsibilities in this world-wide crisis. Pensions for Congressmen were approved some weeks ago in the spirit of "business as usual." That attitude provoked a storm of protest from all parts of the country. The effect of the protest can be measured by the 75-to-5 vote by which the Senate has withdrawn its approval of retirement benefits for elected officials. Even more overwhelming was the vote against Senator Downey's scheme to grant larger pensions to the aged. And on the House side the Ways and Means Committee has flatly rejected the plan to increase unemployment benefit to the extent of 300 million dollars.

Undoubtedly the Senate was influenced by the stirring appeal from a man who had originally voted for Congressional pensions, Senator George. "This war will not win itself," he told his colleagues. "The war will be won not on this floor. It will be won by every father and mother, every sister and brother who gives up blood; and the American people know it. Somehow I have the feeling that they are saying to us, 'Do not waste your time on pensions or retirement benefits for yourself; or on additional benefits to the old who must stay here. Stop arguing about things like that. Shut off the debate, and face the big question we must answer' . . . Let us remember that if we are to fight over such questions as the one now before us, there will not be any tomorrow to fight for anything in America."

There are gratifying indications, both in this debate and in the votes on these measures, that Congress is beginning to see clearly its gigantic obligation. That obligation is not to cajole and pamper a people faced by the grim realities of war. Rather it is to give the Nation an example of courage, of self-sacrifice, and determination to subordinate all else to victory in this catastrophic struggle. Molehills like the granting of pensions to members of Congress and the employment of glamour boys and girls by the OCD have been made into mountains only because, as Senator George suggested, they indicate to the people that officials in Washington are not effectively playing their parts in a world aflame with war.

It should not be necessary for the people to discipline their Government in a time of such peril. Government should be leading the way. Any failure to do so is likely to bring forth a rebuke no less devastating than that which has been administered to Congress for voting pensions to its own members. The experience thus gained will not be wholly negative if it drives home the point that in this crisis first things must be put first.

Fish On The Hook

There can be no more sorry looking person in our public life today than Hamilton Fish. He did not improve that appearance in court yesterday. Not anything he said could undo the evidence which was offered the previous day by his former secretary, George Hill. Mr. Fish did not enter any specific denial of Hill's new testimony, though he sought to avoid categorical answers by verbose explanations of his hazy recollection.

George Hill had been sent to jail for perjured testimony that he had had no relations with George Sylvester Viereck, the well-known German propagandist, who is now on trial for violating the Foreign Agents Act. On Thursday his reappearance in court was for the purpose of recanting. Of course, he knew Viereck. His boss, Hamilton Fish, had introduced him to the German agent. His boss had instructed him to mail out franked speeches for Viereck. Judged from what Hill added to the statements of other witnesses, this misuse of the Congressional frank for drenching the country with isolationist speeches was a sizable industry. Sometimes Viereck seems to have actually written the speeches.

Hill, after his reappearance, is now back in jail, where he is serving a sentence of two to six years. The state of his feelings toward the man upon whom he relied to see him through may be imagined. That man, his boss, is back in the House. He says he plans to make a further explanation in the House. In preparation the members should refresh their memories by turning to the Congressional Record of September 29 and October 2. In those speeches Mr. Fish came to Hill's defense—not to mention his own—in several speeches reaffirming those statements by Hill which the Court found, and Hill now acknowledges, to be perjuries.

Certainly his New York constituents will look over Mr. Fish's record. For they have a dignity to sustain which Mr. Fish has affronted, as he has affronted the dignity of the House of Representatives.

Getting The Facts

There used to be—strange as it may seem—a few commentators on naval affairs who did not subscribe to the thesis that we could lick Japan with one hand. They claimed that we would be magnificent on the offense and disappointing on the defense. And they assumed, first, that the war would be long and tough, and second, that if circumstances forced us into defensive action for a considerable time, the American offensive tradition would work against us.

It is depressingly clear that the war in the Pacific will be long, tough, and in the immediate future defensive. Accordingly we need to take stock of the generalization about our being disappointing on the defense. Certainly this does not apply to American fighting units. Once aroused, both services fought back the Japanese at Hawaii with heartbreaking heroism. In the Philippines the sheer fighting will of General MacArthur's men continues to thrill the country. So, too, do the naval and military exploits of our greatly outnumbered forces in the Southwest Pacific. The fact is, of course, it is not the services which are being disappointing on the defense, it is the home front. For this there are many reasons. Not the least of these reasons is the inadequate public grasp of war realities in the vast Pacific theater. In one sense that is not surprising. For until the outbreak of the war, most Americans had not—and many still have not—the foggiest conception even of elementary geography in the war zones.

But the War and Navy Departments bear a large measure of responsibility for the disappointing performance of the home front. Neither has made more than a gesture toward satisfying the increasing demand for the low-down on events in the Pacific. The result of such shortsightedness is now apparent in the clamor for more fleet action, for more air action, for reinforcing General MacArthur, and so on. These calls have their root in the American offensive tradition. This tradition and this clamor are recognized in Secretary Stimson's statement that "we are building an offensive on the land and in the air, and we shall seize every opportunity for attack, and utilize every opportunity for surprise." Yet the public can hardly be blamed for being bewildered and indignant that there is not more evidence of our living up to that tradition.

It is a situation which breeds distrust of staff decisions and deprives the Army and Navy command of an indispensable backlog of domestic confidence. Moreover, considering the long, uncertain course ahead, it is a situation which will worsen, unless the public feels that it is getting the cold, hard facts, to which it is unquestionably entitled. Whether it gets the facts depends, of course, on how important the War and Navy Departments judge civilian currents of opinion to be. So far, neither department seems to put much of a premium on a truly informed public. But the services are not alone in fighting this war, and the sooner they are made to realize it, the better for the state of the Nation.

Drive On Suez

Whether sufficient air reinforcements will reach the British in Libya in time to influence the outcome of the developing struggle in that battlefield is not clear. It is certain that the Axis will allow no grass to grow under its feet to capitalize the gains it has recently made over the British in Africa. The intensive and continuous bombardment of Malta, which sits astride the main supply route between Sicily and Tripoli; the reported concentration of German air power in Crete, southern Greece and the Dodecanese Islands; the flight of the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen from Brest—which indicate a strategy of forcing the British to withdraw sea power from the Mediterranean—all point to a great spring offensive by the Axis on British positions in the Near East.

The purpose, of course, would be first to deprive the British of the use of the Suez Canal and ultimately to bring about a junction of German and Japanese forces somewhere in Asia. And we can take it for granted that the Axis will throw every available resource into the scales to achieve these objectives. Indeed, circumstances are compelling speedy action. Great Britain has had to weaken her reserves in the Middle East in order to strengthen remaining British outposts in the Far East. And with each passing month the American arsenal is turning out more and more implements of war.

By the same token, however, the necessity of reinforcing United Nations' positions in the Far East should not result in an undue weakening of the Allied position in the Near and Middle East. Now that Singapore has been lost, there is all the more reason to do everything possible to keep Suez and prevent the lifeline between the American arsenal and the Middle East from being cut.

A Pacific Charter

One of the most significant speeches since the outbreak of the Pacific war was the address the other day in Philadelphia by Senor Elizalde, the Resident Commissioner of the Philippines. It is therefore regrettable that for the most part the speech was given only perfunctory attention in the press. For Senor Elizalde came to the crux of the whole problem of this struggle for the preservation of freedom and democracy—namely, whether it means merely freedom and democracy for Americans, Britons, Dutch and other European peoples, or whether it is freedom for all concerned.

Senor Elizalde contrasted the heroic resistance of Filipinos and Chinese to Japan with the almost submissive attitude of the natives in Malaya, Indo-China and elsewhere. The simple explanation, he said, is that the concept of personal and political freedom can mean very little to those who have neither experienced it, nor been encouraged to expect it.

Senor Elizalde is right. If we expect the peoples of eastern Asia to cooperate in this struggle, we shall have to offer them something better than a mere choice of masters. We shall have to make it plain to them that this war is not a war to defend an obsolete imperial and colonial system. We should rather encourage them to recognize that, for them as well as for us, it is a struggle of peoples, white, brown and yellow, against military groups, white and yellow, who seek to enslave the entire world. As Senor Elizalde puts it, we must make the Asiatics understand they are not pawns but partners in this struggle.

In truth we need a Pacific Charter to match the Atlantic Charter. With cooperation from the subjugated peoples of Asia comparable to that which we are receiving from the subjugated peoples of Europe, our task will be much easier. And fortunately we also shall have an unwitting but effective cooperation from the enemy. For those Asiatic people from whom we have the greatest good will, and whose hopes of victory are identified with ours, are precisely those peoples who have most cruelly felt the Japanese heel upon their necks.

CAEDMON AND THE ANGEL

At the stable of the abbey
Caedmon bedded down the stall;
And he heard across the courtyard
The harmonic rise and fall
Of the hymns of praise sung nightly
As the harp passed round the hall.

While he toiled alone one evening
Lo! a rush of shining wings
And the angel's voice came chiding,
"Only Caedmon never brings
Song for tribute: Sing, poor creature,
As God's humble lover sings!"

And the herdsman of St. Hilda
(He the lowly cremite, Earliest of England's poets)
Mirrored in his song a light
Like the dawnfire of Creation,
Like an angel in the night.

Comics And Editorials

A contributor to your "Letters to the Editor" column suggests that we do away with comics in order to save paper. We could dispense with editorials before we could spare the comic supplement. Comics are not only entertaining, they are good morale builders, as we well learned from World War I. Comics and beer parlors are two of the most important morale builders we need to maintain during the present emergency.

Frequently, as in the case of two comics, "Napoleon" and "Joe Palooka," we find more democracy and common sense than we can ever discover in an editorial. In the current "Joe Palooka" we find two soldiers on a lonely outpost remarking: ". . . them furrin titled phoneys . . . lots of em were fascist spies." It is almost impossible to find a Washington editorial that reaches such a level of intelligence, even though local editors are aware that Washington is full of Axis phoneys drawn here by the city's importance as a diplomatic and military center. The tragedy of American journalism allows comic strips to cavort without editorial restriction, while more serious items in the press are too often censored in favor of pro-fascist or Axis opinion.

Employing Fascists

I wish to protest the employment of Fascists to help us win a war against fascism. It just doesn't make sense to do this, as everyone knows, and yet it goes on. Specifically at this time I wish something to be done about the employment of George E. Deatherage, executive engineer of Doyle & Russell on naval contracts in and around Norfolk, Va. . . . in fact, inside of the naval base.

We should know our enemies in this country, they are much more obvious in Japan. I have seen in print and I have heard speakers refer to the Fascists in the State Department. If this be so, why is it tolerated? Let's treat as traitors all those who have shown pro-Fascist bents. William L. Shirer has warned us against being soft like the French. Let's not be, let's remove all those who are so inclined from positions where they can retard our all-out war effort. Surely everyone wants to win, and if there are any who don't, let's get them out of the way until we have won.

Poll Taxes

In your editorial on poll taxes in The Post of February 16, you state "The President is unquestionably right in objecting to the poll tax itself." After long and careful study of the requirement of payment of poll taxes as a prerequisite to voting, we agree entirely with the President and with The Post that this requirement should be abolished. We commend your enlightened stand on this particular question.

You state, however, that "changes in State laws—or possibly an amendment to the Federal Constitution—are the only suitable remedies for poll-tax abuses." You and your readers will be interested to know that there is yet another remedy embodied in a bill now pending before the Senate. All of the States which could abolish the poll tax through legislation have done so. The one possible exception is Tennessee, where it has not been determined whether the provision in the State constitution is mandatory or permissive; in that State the citizens have become sufficiently aroused to abolish the tax county by county in 19 counties. In the other seven States the provision for the tax is imbedded in the State constitutions and an amendment to the State constitutions will be necessary so far as local and State elections are concerned. The procedure is complicated and lengthy and gives every advantage to the entrenched group who benefit by the poll tax.

However, the bright side of the picture is that with the passage of the Pepper bill, on which hearings are to begin before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee on March 12, it would be possible to abolish this undemocratic tax as a prerequisite to voting both in primaries and general elections for persons to hold office under the Federal Government.

This would enable us to have representatives in Congress at least who are the choice of the majority of the people in a given State or Congressional area. At present some of the so-called "servants of the people" from poll-tax States, reached Congress with as few as 12,000 votes, yet they have as much influence, once arrived, as the man from the nonpoll-tax State who was elected by ten times that many citizens.

Outlawing of the poll-tax requirement in federal elections would provide the solvent necessary to make possible the important reform of repeal of the poll tax in State and county elections.

Help MacArthur

Not sending bombers and other supplies and reenforcements to Gen. MacArthur has becomes a national disgrace. The present Administration in Washington shows a peculiar distaste to help these sorely beleaguered American troops, but aid has gone during the last six weeks to Singapore, the Dutch East Indies and Australia.

Why not a series of vast mass meetings in all the cities and towns, whose theme will be: "Help must be sent to MacArthur at once!"

President Must Unite Resources

Several days ago, on publication of your excellent editorial calling for the establishment of the Federal Government on a war basis, I wrote you a congratulatory letter in which I expressed the hope that you would continue the campaign and would not "pull your punches." Apparently this was hoping for too much. You seem to have drifted off along the by-ways and become lost among the less essential and petty difficulties which impede our national Government's efficiency. Moreover, you seem to have accepted tamely the President's characteristically sarcastic "reply," which displayed again his never failing resentment of criticism, his inability to benefit from suggestions which do not coincide exactly with his own point of view, and his unvarying habit of passing off with some wisecrack any pertinent question or criticism which he cannot answer.

Words, no matter how eloquent, bitter or sarcastic, will not win this war or save this Nation from catastrophe. We have vast natural resources and we also have administrative and military genius and organizational ability that exceeds that of any other people. These must be united for the successful prosecution of total war. It is the duty of the President to accomplish this. He can do so only if he is willing and able to recognize first his own limitations, chief of which are his administrative incompetence, his egotistical desire to share the spotlight with no one, and his equally egotistical determination to direct personally every administrative, military, financial, legislative and diplomatic move made by the Federal Government.

If Mr. Roosevelt is the big man he would have us and future generations believe him to be, if he aspires truly to a high place in history, let him put aside his selfish desire to "win the war with his own friends" and prove himself a real patriot and an inspired leader by adopting the following four-point program.

Let him:

1. Designate a chief administrative assistant, selected on the one substantial basis of qualifications and proved ability, without regard for past or present politico-social affiliations, and place in this assistant full responsibility and authority for organizing, planning and directing the nonmilitary functions and activities of the Federal Government.

2. Create a three-man board of strategy consisting of one representative each of the Regular Army and Navy, together with one outstanding authority on aeronautical warfare, and place in this board full responsibility and authority for planning and directing the conduct of the war by our armed forces.

3. Refrain from meddling with the administration by his chief assistant of the nonmilitary functions and activities and by the board of strategy of the conduct of the military functions and activities; confine himself to current and continuing analyses of the results obtained and make promptly such changes in his appointees as are justified by definite evidence of inefficiency, bungling, unnecessary waste or lack of progressive accomplishment.

4. Devote his own energies to being the official spokesman of the Nation, to maintaining the public morale by reporting regularly, fully and factually to the Congress and the people upon the state of the Nation, and to the shaping of such broad legislative and diplomatic conduct of the war, strengthen our constitutional form of Government and establish and fortify the dignity, influence and standing of the United States of America throughout the world.

Let me point out that there is ample scope for all of the energies and talents of any one man in the latter item of this four-point program. I earnestly commend this program to your analysis and for public submission to the President.

The Post Impressionist

"—Situation Well In Hand"

It has long been one of my convictions that the United States Marines can do just about anything they make up their minds to do. This belief dates from my youth, when one of my neighbors was a retired marine who had belonged to that creme de la creme of the American forces, the Fourth Marines, and had taken a not inglorious part, according to him, in the engagements at Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry.

Sergt. Moran stated in no uncertain terms that the Marines were the best outfit in the world and that there wasn't a thing they couldn't do, once they took the notion to do it.

Later years many have weakened my faith in Sergt. Moran's statements, but the glorious history of Wake Island has convinced me that he was right, after all. In fact, if I were Mr. Roosevelt, I should call Gen. Holcomb in and say to him, "O. K., Butch, I'm turning this war over to you. You send your boys out after the Japs, and let me know when you've got 'em treed."

Fortified as I am by this unquestioning faith in the Marines and all their works, I was nevertheless a bit shaken when I read one Wednesday morning that the United States Marine Band Symphony Orchestra would perform the Symphony in B Minor No. 6 ("Pathetic"), by Peter Ilyitch Tschaikowsky, at the Marine Auditorium that night. Sergt. Moran had taught me that the Marines would emerge victorious from any encounter, but I doubt that he had an encounter with the "Pathetique" in mind when he made that assertion.

With due respect to the Marines, I have heard some pretty good orchestras come out a poor second from an encounter with the "Pathetique." There's something about that symphony that seems to gum up the best-intentioned orchestras. My theory is that its supersaturated saccharinity leads to the precipitation of a gummy exudate on the strings and bows of the string section and of lumps of molasses in the tubes of the brasses and woodwinds. At least that's the impression I got one afternoon many years ago when Sergei Koussevitsky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra got themselves hopelessly mired down in it, sounding for all the world like a swarm of flies, hornets, and bumblebees bogged down in a sheet of Tangle-Foot.

So it was as one going to witness the death of his last illusion that I boarded a Navy Yard car Wednesday night and went down to Eighth and I Streets Southeast. It was going to be painful, I told myself, but after all I'm a big boy now and I have no business harboring illusions, even about the Marine Corps. My spirits rose, however, when I remarked that the sentinel at the gate was wearing a very Russian-looking fur helmet. Evidently the Marines were going to meet Pyotr Ilyitch on his own grounds.

My spirits rose still higher when the members of the orchestra, brave in their blue and scarlet, their golden chevrons and hash-stripes gleaming, filed in and took their seats. They all had that look and air, peculiarly the Marine Corps' own, of calm, confident capability. If anybody can handle Tschaikowski. I told myself, those lads can.

And they did.

It might be that as he picked up his baton, Capt. Santelmann in a low voice repeated to his men Gunnery Sergt. Daniel Daly's immortal remark: "Come on, you so-and-so's, do you want to live forever?" At any rate, the Marines, with calm, confident capability, marched into the "Pathetique" and conducted themselves in a manner of which the Marine Corps may well tell.

For the first time in my life, I heard the "Pathetique" played as though it were a rational piece of music, written by a rational man for rational listeners, instead of a lot of hysterical sobbing and shouting. The Marines played it with delicacy and tenderness, as it should be played, but with restraint and reserve, as it is not usually played.

The Marine Orchestra has all the cardinal virtues of an orchestra, all of those things which sound so obvious, being the very backbone of a musical group, and which yet are so rare. They have absolute precision of attack, and if you think that's easy just remember the hideous time Koussevitsky had in achieving it with his group. And if you think it's not essential, just think back to some of the fuzzy performances of Mozart you have heard, when the lapse of an infinitesimal part of a second has muddied the whole clarity of line.

Their conductor has a precise and unfailing sense of timing, and, what is just as important, the ability to impose it on his men. That, too, sounds easy, but as a matter of fact it is very rare. A metronome, to be sure, can mark the intervals with mechanical precision, but only a good conductor can keep the whole thing flowing evenly and surely, accelerating or diminishing the pace and then returning unerringly to the original tempo.

Furthermore, the orchestra is completely responsive to its director. They play together, and not each man for himself, and that again sounds simple and easy and is actually the reverse. They watch the conductor as much as they watch their scores, and that is a healthy sign.

Finally, what makes it really interesting to listen to them is the fact that they are enjoying themselves tremendously, or at least they give that impression. They like to play as an orchestra, and this shows itself in their vitality, their freshness, and their clarity of attack. Yet with this vitality they have a delicacy that found exquisite expression in Debussy's "Nuages," played very creditably indeed.

I'm not saying that the Marine Orchestra is one of the country's really great orchestras, as this enthusiastic outburst would seem to imply. It isn't and it doesn't pretend to be. It is, however, a highly capable group of musicians, performing some of the world's greatest music with sincerity, taste, zeal, and technical finish.

Next week they're doing the Schubert "Unfinished," and I'm going to be right there on the front row, cheering. Sergt. Moran was right, after all.

Today And Tomorrow

The Post-Singapore War In The East

LIPPMANN

THE FALL of Singapore has brought about an important change in the British government, and it will now bring about, one may hope and believe, a fundamental change in the United Nations' conception of the war in the East. For until this time the war in the East has differed deeply from the war in the West. It has been waged with different and even contradictory aims.

Thus it has never seemed possible to the pre-Singapore British government that it could apply the principles of the Atlantic Charter east of Suez. Though China is a principal member of the United Nations, it has not been possible in the Asiatic theater to make the struggle, as it is in the West, a war of liberation. The United Nations have found themselves in a position where they could be accused, not without warrant, of fighting to preserve the rule of the white man over the peoples of Asia and of being committed at fearful cost to a war for the restoration of empire.

THE FALL of Shanghai, Hongkong, Singapore, and the prospective fall of Rangoon are as regards the immediate strategical problems of the war very serious indeed. But in the longer view it may be said that their fall was a foregone conclusion, and that the final effect can, if the statesmen are equal to the occasion, be to make the war in the East a war that is worth winning and a war that can be won.

For the western nations must now do what hitherto they lacked the will and the imagination to do: they must identify their cause with the freedom and the security of the peoples of the East, putting away the "white man's burden" and purging themselves of the taint of an obsolete and obviously unworkable white man's imperialism.

IN THIS DRASTIC reorientation of war policy, the leadership of the western nations must be taken by the United States. For as Mr. Churchill explained in his speech on Sunday, the main burden of the eastern war rests upon the United States. With this responsibility must go authority in the political conduct of the war. Now it is evident that for the American people the objective of the eastern war is not and cannot be the recapture and restoration of the white man's empire. The American objective is bound to be the defeat of Japanese imperialism, in alliance with the peoples of Asia—the Chinese, the Indians, the Filipinos, and the Russians. And now that Singapore and what it represents and what it symbolizes have fallen, we are bound to wage the war on the principle that the freedom and security of the peoples of Asia is the best guaranty of our own security in the Pacific.

For such a war we are, fortunately, not unprepared. Though we have dabbled in empire, we have had no stomach for it. Though we have many grievous sins and follies of our own to expiate, it is not self-righteousness to say that in this particular field it is not a case of the devil was sick when we identify our cause with the freedom of the Asiatic peoples.

THE BASIC PROOF of this matter is that we are at war with Japan because we refused to sell out China, and make a deal with Japan in which we participated in the exploitation of China. For at least four years it has been clear to those who understood the situation that if America became involved in total war, it would be the result not of our aiding the democracies of Europe, as our misinformed isolationists believed, but of our resisting the Japanese conquest of China. During those years many of us hoped ardently to avert a war in the Pacific, realizing how destructive and dangerous and difficult it was certain to be. But always, whether we talked with Japanese diplomats or with Japanese agents, of whom there were many, or with Japanese visitors, the discussion always ended against the same blank wall: the price of peace in the Pacific was to abandon China to Japan.

This it was impossible for Americans to do. On the ground of elementary morals, such a bargain with Japan would have been a kind of black treachery that would have haunted the conscience of America for generations to come. On the ground of national interest, a bargain with Japan at the expense of China would have meant the overthrow of the free Chinese government and the rise of Quisling puppet governments which would certainly have joined with Japan, playing upon the bitterness of the Chinese people, in a terrible and endless struggle of the white and the yellow peoples. Thus we are at war with Japan because we would not and could not betray China, and these are the credentials of our sincerity in our alliance with the peoples of Asia.

WE HAVE REASON to think that the peoples of Asia will believe us. That is being proved on a small scale perhaps, but nevertheless is an immensely significant way on the Bataan Peninsula. Gen. MacArthur leads an Army of Americans and Filipinos in a struggle which is as noble as it is glorious. For the Filipinos know that under American law, their own independence is assured to them. When they fight in the Bataan Peninsula side by side with our men, they are fighting for their independence. And we are fighting to reach a state of affairs in which it is possible for the Filipinos to enjoy their independence because all the nations of the Pacific, including ourselves, are secure.

Those are the terms on which Americans are willing to fight Japan and those are the terms on which they wish to be the allies against Japan of the Chinese, the Indians, and, if they wish it, of the Russians. In this partnership, how being demonstrated on the Bataan Peninsula, there is no question of imperialism, of the white man's burden, of privileges and concessions. This is the only kind of partnership that deserves to work. It is the only kind of partnership that can work.

THE NEW BRITISH government and the recent visit of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek to India mark, we may infer, the reorientation of British policy to the irreversible historic developments in the Far East. No doubt die-hard Tory imperialism will die hard. But it must die. It must die if the British peoples are to put forth their full strength. It must die if the British Commonwealth is to survive. It must die if the United Nations are to become indissolubly united. It must die if Nazi and Japanese imperialism are to be overthrown by the peoples of the world.

If, as we may believe, Mr. Churchill has seen these great truths, this will have been the most critical moment in a career which fixes him already among the greatest of all English statesmen. If now, hand-in-hand with Mr. Roosevelt, he transcends the imperialist war in Asia and transforms it into a war of liberation, the longer future is ours, whatever the next months may bring.

The Gallup Poll

Pay Deduction Views

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 20.—With income tax day, March 15, just around the corner, American taxpayers have a suggestion to make to their Treasury Department and to the great majority of their employers.

Because future income taxes are going to be progressively heavier on the "little fellow," a growing number will find that they either cannot pay the taxes when each March 15 rolls around or that they will have difficulty finding the money.

Therefore, nearly half of all citizens who are regularly employed and who are subject to income taxes would like to have a regular amount deducted from each pay check to pay the next year's income tax.

45 Per Cent Favor Plan

That is what they have told the American Institute of Public Opinion in a Nation-wide survey. Forty-five per cent, to be specific, want this pay deduction plan covering future taxes, while 45 per cent favor the present system, and 10 per cent are undecided.

Some employers are already using the pay-deduction-for-taxes system when the employe requests it. Hollywood motion picture companies frequently deduct income tax payments in advance from the salaries of motion picture stars.

The Treasury reports great success with its tax certificate plan whereby income tax payers purchase certificates in advance which can be used in the payment of the tax. Judging by today's survey results, nearly half of the taxpayers are in favor of going even farther with plans for advance payments.

The payroll deduction principle has certain definite advantages for the Treasury, chief among which is that it would enable the Treasury to collect tax money much earlier.

Canada uses the payroll deduction system in collecting its 5 per cent withholding tax. The employer computes the tax for each employed person subject to the levy, and subtracts a regular amount from each pay envelope. In this way the government receives its tax revenue without delay.

Pay deductions have likewise been widely discussed in the United States as a way of increasing the sale of defense bonds and stamps. It has been suggested that employers deduct a given amount from the pay check of each worker in order to buy defense bonds or stamps for him.

In a Nation-wide survey of public opinion, the Institute recently found that two-thirds (66 per cent) of all full-time employed persons are willing to have 10 per cent of their pay deducted for the purchase of defense bonds, and that a majority (51 per cent) are even willing to accept a 15 per cent deduction for that purpose.

Civilians Have Got To Work

PEGLER

I THINK we will presently adopt some means of compelling a man to work at his essential task in the noncombatant industries of war and turn in an honest day's work per day after he has been excused from service as a fighter on the ground that he is one of the indispensables. If he is a farm laborer, he will be required to work reasonably hard and well, either on his own place or on his employer's, and not permitted to drift down the road to an easier job, or better pay, frying hamburgers in a jook-spot. If he is a machinist he will be made to meet certain rates of production and standards of quality and put in his days working, not fishing or loafing. Even if he is only remotely eligible for military service, or ineligible because of age or physical impairment, he will be placed under some compulsion to deliver.

This probably is Hitlerism and may amount to the conscription of Labor at union wages, but, if so, we shall have to make the best of it, for the civilians have got to turn out the work in this war and strikes, loafing, stalling and hijackering will not be tolerated. Men have been conscripted for fighting, and industry and wealth, or capital, which is the aggregate result of work of many individuals, have been called up. The farm properties and factories are under the Government's command.

Only civilian workers have been excused from this great draft and both the Government and the bosses of the union movement have placed themselves on record as recognizing the fact that the labor of the multitude is essential to victory. Because this work is essential some form of compulsion will be adopted to equalize the burden of duty.

THE CASE of the exempted loafer of military age and fitness is easily settled. His exemption can be revoked on proof that he has violated the conditions of his deferment and he can be sent to some combatant outfit to fight. The others present a more difficult problem, but one which should not abash a determined and desperate Government. Fines, possibly prison sentences, suggest themselves as goads.

Hitler and our cherished comrades-in-arms, the Russians, have used compulsion on civilian labor in war industries, including agriculture, for a long time. Hitler rounded up battalions of men and set them to work building his West wall and farm workers were chained to their occupation and shifted about as the need for their services came with the seasons.

IN OUR COUNTRY it might not be necessary to move bodies of civilian workers from place to place, but, again, it might be. If 10,000 more or less skilled men are idle in Detroit, for example, awaiting the conversion of a certain plant, and there is a desperate need of their skill in, say, Cleveland or Chicago, the transfer of these men from idleness to productive work would be no greater problem, in its simplest terms, than the movement of a like number of drafted soldiers from a reserve position to a threatened point on the front.

Morally and politically, of course, such a measure would be very trying and we might have a revolution and kick our country apart and defeat ourselves from the inside. But we are being collectivized at a fast rate these days and we might be surprised at our own readiness to yield our liberties for the defense of liberty.

Certainly we will not stand for many more demonstrations like that in which several thousand workers in the motor industry quit and sulked because one member of the union received a pop on the nose from another member. The union demanded that Ford fire the assailant, and Ford said he couldn't because the man was a union man. Finally, the union suspended him so that Ford could lay him off.

IT WAS SAID that this man had already popped two other ardent union men because he had been antiunion himself and had joined only when he had to do so under the closed shop agreement. This undoubtedly meant that union hecklers had been tormenting him with all the dirty little persecutions of which they are masters in such situations and that the victim, being a man, clouted them down. But this union has no right to object to a little clouting. It has mercilessly beaten and mauled hundreds of nonunion men by mob action in its time, so the strike was just treason and its like will not be tolerated long.

Oh, we are in for some very interesting changes in our way of doing. This war is going to take every ounce of our energy and that element which by its own boast holds the power to deliver or withhold the tools required for victory will be compelled to make good like everyone else and no argument.

Little Filipino Lavals

Ricarte And Ramos Back Up Aguinaldo

EVEN AS he nervously paced the deck of a Japanese battleship protecting its troop landings on Vigan shore in northern Luzon shortly after the outbreak of the Japanese-American war, Gen. Artemio Ricarte had a smirk of self-satisfaction on his wrinkled face as he surveyed from a distance the mountainous shoreline of the country from which he was banished almost four decades ago by the Government of the United States.

As he waited impatiently for the admiral's launch to carry him ashore, Ricarte could visualize the chagrin of those pro-American Filipinos when he tells them "I told you so . . ." And because he came with the Japanese who promised to liberate Filipinos from the American yoke, he could not help but feel that the rest of the natives would accord him a welcome worthy of a hero.

Unfortunately, unlike the return of the proverbial prodigal son, Ricarte's homecoming occasioned no rejoicing, no killing of the fatted calves, and no ringing of the church bells in Te Deums. On the contrary, his sudden and unexpected arrival ushered in a new reign of terror among his people as if he were a Scourge of God. Reverberation of guns and the roar of airplanes filled the tropical air with their terrifying crescendo. Ricarte was amazed to know that Filipinos were bitterly fighting his Japanese masters with everything they could command. Filipinos resistance, unluckily, was all in vain. Their bolos and homemade guns called "paltik" are no match against airplanes, tanks, hand grenades, and against machine guns that spit wholesale death.

IN JUSTICE to him, Ricarte probably never anticipated that Filipinos would fight. Most likely he thought that the natives would welcome with open arms the Japanese offer of collaboration under the "New Order" without hesitation, especially considering that such offer is being tendered through him.

But Ricarte was not a person to accept a rebuff very easily. A man without much education and vain to an infinite degree, he was overly sensitive and proud, living up to what we call in Tagalog pikon and mayabang. So he followed in the wake of the invaders' march through the fertile central plains of Luzon toward Manila. On the way, Ricarte must have thought that events had turned just as well in his favor: he could then impress upon his Japanese bosses how indispensable his services were for the pacification of unruly Filipinos. How well he succeeded was indicated in the news dispatch coming from the beleaguered forces of Gen. MacArthur in Bataan which state that Ricarte now roams around Manila in a big and luxurious automobile under always a military escort.

Ricarte's high life in Manila now is a far cry from that one he lead during his exile in Japan. Living in a ramshackle shack in one of Yokohama's tenement districts, he made his livelihood haunting the waterfront on the watchout for Filipino tourists. Once he collared a Filipino, he told the victim of the goodness and the hospitality of the Japanese people, how disgusting was the attitude and the policy of the American Government toward the Philippines, how he dreamed of the day when Japan would assume full control of the whole Pacific basin from Alaska to Australia, how he preferred to remain in Japan until America was driven away from his homeland, and, unfailingly, how destitute he was. Nine times out of ten, Filipinos—with the exception of Ilokanos who venerated their own provincemate—usually parted with whatever spare money they could afford, primarily, to help him, and, secondly, to escape his ugly and depressing presence. Much as they respected the old man—and in the East such respect for the oldsters often smacks of servility—the Filipinos could not stand his display of ignorance in world affairs, of his hatred of the American people, and of his love for the Japanese, their institutions and their ideals.

THE JAPANESE militarists, more than anybody else, fully appreciate the potential value of Ricarte since the defeat of Russia in 1905. His decrepit home on the outskirts of Yokohama used to be the rendevouz by the members of the Black Dragon Society, a terrorist organization unparalleled in the extent of its crimes in modern history. Ricarte's claim of poverty was just a pose; he never was a poor man. He could have had everything within reason in Japan for the asking. He feigned to be poor to get the sympathy of Filipinos both at home and abroad.

Notwithstanding other claims, Ricarte, more than any other living Filipino, is the one directly responsible for the Japanese invasion of the Philippines. Even before Japan began to look southward, Ricarte had already conceived what role the Philippines should play in the Japanese "Greater East Coprosperity Sphere" and what propaganda method should be used to alienate Filipinos from their American allegiance. It was even intimated in Manila circles as late as 1941 that Ricarte was the Himmler behind all Japanese fifth column activities in the islands; and that he alone was the one responsible in influencing the Nipponese government to subsidize at a great loss the influx of Filipino tourists—students and teachers—into Japan from early 30's up to the outbreak of hostilities.

It was by no stroke of luck that Ricarte—in the absence of any exploit to earn for himself a higher title during the war against the United States, dubbed himself the Vibora (Viper)—should be found always at the side of Gen. Masaharu Homma, the Japanese commander of Philippine campaign, constantly giving advice. He had long ago been found tried and true pro-Japanese.

NOTWITHSTANDING many efforts to minimize Benigno Ramos, the Sakdalista leader, he is by far the most dangerous Filipino alive today. He is ambitious, unscrupulous, vengeful, an orator par excellence, and is a possessor of a quick trigger mind. Although his political following is not comparable in size and in influence to that of President Quezon, his adherents are nevertheless people, common taos, who will willingly go through fire with him, as witness the tragic incident that happened at Cubuyao (Laguna) on May 2-3, 1935, where over 60 persons lost their lives.

War, ironically enough, had found Ramos lodging in a cell in the new Bilibid Prison, located at Muntinglupa (Rizal) just a few miles from Manila. He was incarcerated in early 1940 by the commonwealth government for his offense in soliciting public contributions on behalf of his political party, Gasap, without first obtaining the requisite official permission. In all probability the first act of the Japanese upon the capitulation of Manila was to release Ramos from his prison home.

Ramos is a dangerous man. Because of all Filipino radicals, he alone believes in the employment of arms to achieve his objectives. Even the rabid Filipino Communist, Pedro Abad Santos, of Pampanga, deplores the use of force among his constituents. During his short stay in the United States in late 1934, when he tried to see President Roosevelt and could not, Ramos made speeches before Filipino groups in Chicago urging armed revolt against the United States and proposing that all Filipino leaders be executed. His countrymen in Chicago laughed at him and thought he was a crackpot. Several months later, they got goose pimples when they heard Ramos engineered the abortive revolt in the Provinces of Laguna, Nueva Ecija, Rizal, Bulacan and Cavite.

With Aguinaldo as the Quisling, Ricarte as the Laval, and Ramos as the hatchet man, the Filipino people are in for a hard time ahead. Only a speedy relief from the United States in terms of arms, ammunition, airplanes and tanks could prevent the annihilation of many Filipino youths and men and women at the hands of these blackguards.

U. S. Sends 14,580 Autos and Trucks Abroad; Russia Asks for Large Supplies of Foodstuffs

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board and the Board of Economic Warfare disclosed yesterday that 14,580 automobiles, trucks and other motor vehicles had been exported to "friendly countries," including Latin America, between January 1 and February 18.

The countries, a joint announcement said, were cooperating with this Nation in distributing the vehicles to fill essential requirements only and have made use of freezing orders and rationing mechanism similar to that operating in the United States.

Other motor vehicles will continue to be exported, the announcement said, although the number of cars and trucks available for this purpose during the next two years will be limited.

Officials emphasized that the disposition of the vehicles authorized for export would be equitable and would depend upon distribution and requirements within the United States.

Foods Asked by Russia

Russia is asking the United States for considerable quantities of canned meats, animal fats, vegetable oils, butter and other concentrated foods in addition to the wheat, flour and sugar it already is receiving.

Agriculture Department officials in charge of lend-lease food purchases for this country's Allies said foods other than those staples would be furnished the Soviet Union, but that ocean shipping would be perhaps the controlling factor in determining the amount.

This country and Great Britain are jointly committed to supply the Russians with about 2,500,000 tons of wheat and flour and 850,000 tons of sugar this year. Canada will supply part of the wheat.

The American officials said the necessity of giving vital war materials first priority to shipping facilities of the United States may make it advisable to use lend-lease funds to purchase food for Russia in friendly countries closer to unobstructed Russian ports.

Several Sources of Sugar

Such an arrangement is being made for sugar. While 940,000 tons of the 1942 Cuban sugar crop have been allotted to Russia, it may be possible to get part of the promised quota from such producing areas as Hawaii, Australia and Java, depending on shipping and war developments.

The more sugar that can be secured for Russia in the Pacific, the greater will be the portion of the Cuban crop available for this country.

It may be possible, officials said, to obtain vegetable oil in Africa for Russia. The United States itself may turn to Africa for increased supplies of vegetable oils, now that its peacetime sources in the Pacific have been obstructed by the war.

Pointing out that Russia has lost many of her important agricultural producing areas, officials said the Soviet government needs considerable quantities of foods to keep its army and civilian population going. In retaking land from the Germans, the Russians were said to be adding to their food problem. Civilians in such areas must be fed until they can get back into agricultural production.

Big Illicit Liquor Ring Smashed, U. S. Claims

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa claimed today the smashing of a liquor syndicate which he said had defrauded the Government of $3,439,500 in taxes. A total of 89 defendants were named in an alcohol conspiracy indictment.

The alleged syndicate included seven prohibition era bootleggers who, Correa said, continued their activities up to the present. All but four of the defendants have been arrested by alcohol tax unit agents. The ring was said to be the largest yet uncovered from the standpoint of alcoholic output.

The indictment alleged that during the last six years the defendants operated or set up for operation 19 illicit stills.

Resolutions For An American Citizen

Reprinted from the Congressional Record of February 18.

Mr. Austin: Mr. President, I wish to have printed in the Record "Resolutions for an American Citizen" — and this means every American citizen—conceived by a Vermonter, Mr. Levi P. Smith, who is president of the Burlington Savings Bank, a patriot who is contributing much to the campaign for the sale of defense savings stamps and bonds. If every American would rise in the morning and make these resolutions, I think he would be a much better soldier on the economic front than if he did not do something of that kind.

I should like to have the resolutions printed in the Record. They start off as follows—and I think this indicates justification for the printing:

I resolve to remind myself every morning—

That there is a war to win:

That I must be as devoted, diligent and determined as those who man the guns;

That a glorious heritage is at stake—an ideal worth fighting for; and

That our cause is the cause of freedom everywhere.

And the resolution continues in that vein.

I think it is well for every citizen of the United States repeatedly to remind himself that we are fighting this war to win it. I ask unanimous consent to have the resolutions printed in the Record.

The Vice President: Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolutions are as follows:

In total war—Resolutions for an American Citizen—

I resolve to remind myself every morning—

That there is a war to win:

That I must be as devoted, diligent and determined as those who man the guns;

That a glorious heritage is at stake—an ideal worth fighting for; and

That our cause is the cause of freedom everywhere.

I resolve to dedicate to this cause, anew each day, the zeal, intelligence and initiative of a free man fighting for his freedom, a measure and quality of service beyond the power of a totalitarian state to exact of its subjects.

I resolve to pray that the greatness of our cause may drown out doubts, disputes and questionings;

That it may submerge consciousness of class or race or party; and

That it may lift me out of the littleness of ordinary life.

I resolve neither to be cast down by reverses or buoyed up by successes, but to see things as they are, with the steadying conviction that drudgery and endurance, as well as inspiration and heroism, will count in the ultimate victory.

I resolve to be cheerful for the effect on those about me.

I resolve to be courageous with the gallantry of those who fight the good fight.

I resolve to take my place in the line as a good soldier—cool and firm and considerate—neither giving way to panic nor crowding for preferment, but content with the privilege of serving so vital, great and sacred a cause.

Simpson Retracts His Criticism of British in Burma

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Elliot H. Simpson, American crude rubber buyer, who said last week on his return from the Far East that the British had failed to provide for the evacuation of Americans from Malaya asserted today he regretted certain statements he made to reporters.

"Particularly, I want to correct the impression that the British authorities ordered the evacuation of Penang without notifying American residents," he said in a statement issued from the West Side Hospital, where he is a patient.

"This is untrue," he asserted, "and I also want to state that the day on which I left, December 16, with the party of Americans, was the first day of the evacuation which continued throughout the next day."

"I also wish to deny that I am going to Washington to complain to the State Department," his statement said. "I have no complaint to make, and my only concern now is to regain my health."

German Envoy, Kissed by Jap, Leaves Argentina

Buenos Aires, Feb. 20 (AP).—After having a farewell kiss planted upon his cheek by a Japanese colleague, Baron Edmund von Thermann, German Ambassador to Argentina, sailed for home today.

The Nazi envoy, for months a stormy issue in Argentine politics, left aboard the 2000-ton Spanish steamer Montegorbea. He received a summons from home seven weeks ago shortly after Argentina recalled her envoy to Germany "for consultation."

Von Thermann was kissed by the secretary of the Japanese Legation.

Although the Argentine Chamber of Deputies sought to have Von Thermann declared persona non grata last September, he returned to the fatherland with extreme reluctance. He remained doggedly at his post, defying demands for his expulsion which political circles said would normally have made any diplomat's position untenable.

Japs Step Up Attacks On Indies, Australia

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

1 BALI, the Dutch island one mile from the eastern tip of Java, where the Japs landed a strong invasion force, giving ominous form to their multiple front offensive in the Southwest Pacific. Until yesterday the war had been little more than a fable of the white men to the colonial paradise. The landings again shortened the radius of the semicircle attack moving southward against Java from various bases (flag symbols).

Only 400 Europeans Live on Bali . . . .

By the Associated Press

Bali, the Travelogue-publicized island of flowers, feasting and dancing girls, has a treacherous coastline which affords safe landing at only three places, and these are linked with roads the Dutch built for tourists—and defense.

The safest anchorage is at Benua, the little port for Denpasar at the opposite end of the island from the mile-wide strait which separates it from Java to the west.

Temuxu, also on the east coast, has a little-used port. The roadstead of Buleleng, port for the capital at Singaradja in the north, is only used seasonally, being exposed to the sweep of the west monsoon.

Elsewhere the shining beaches are ringed with coral reefs or the coast rises sharply from the pounding sea.

Inland the 1,200,000 Indonesians who populate the island have tilled almost every usable acre—planting some of the finest rice terraces in the Indies—and yet because of mountains, crater lakes and ravines most of Bali remains much as it was centuries ago.

A mountain range runs the length of the island, topped by the 10,499-foot peak of Mount Agung (Bali Peak) and the double cone of Bali's only active volcano, Mount Batur.

Only 400 Europeans live on Bali, most of them at Singaradja.

The natives are a sturdy, well-formed, people of Hindu-Javanese extraction with an original strain of Papuan blood. They are artists, artisans and music lovers by choice and by training, generations long.

Their wood carving and gold and silver craftsmanship is reflected in their temples. Their religion is a blending of Hinduism and Paganism. Women as well as men are priests.

Men and women alike wear their hair long, except for princes and nobles whose hair is cropped.

Caste is observed in four degrees as in India; the cow is revered, and cremation is practiced to a greater extent than anywhere else in the East Indies.

Dancing and drama play a large part in Balinese life. The Bali performers use both the shadow show and the stage, with male actors taking the part of all characters, male and female.

The women are the chief entertainers at dancing, with each motion carefully rehearsed and fixed to a pattern generations old. Each little village has its own orchestra, and each trains its own dancers, beginning in their early childhood.

Gold, Oil Among Timor's Riches

Timor is a mountainous island of 12,000 square miles whose Portuguese eastern section was occupied by Netherlands and Australian troops December 18 in a move to block its use by the Japanese.

The warring Dutch govern the western area of Timor, which as a whole is the largest of the Lesser Sunda Islands and home of 800,000 persons. Neutral Portugal protested the occupation of her holdings and was reported December 26 to have dispatched troops to take over guard duty from the occupying troops.

2 TIMOR, where the Japs effected landings yesterday in an attempt to oust Allied forces occupying Portuguese soil. Tokyo said the landings were made near Dilli and Koepang, the capitals of Portuguese and Dutch Timor, respectively

Japanese planes raided Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor, February 4 in the first direct thrust at the island, which lies at the end of the Malay Archipelago only 450 miles northwest of Darwin, Australian military and naval base newly brought under assault.

Timor, about 300 miles long, is traversed by a series of parallel mountain chains, many of which rise from 3500 to 8000 feet. The highest peak is Mount Rameau, 9600 feet in the center of Portuguese Timor.

The island produces gold, copper, gypsum and petroleum. Sandalwood, copra, ponies, cattle and hides rank high among its exports.

Darwin, Australia's Leading Airport

Darwin heretofore has been considered Australia's backdoor. But it is a front door now from the troubled world to the north, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society, which goes on to describe Darwin as "a small town of less than 5000 inhabitants with the appearance of an early mining town.

"Australians explain Darwin as the victim of the tropics and transients," continues the bulletin. "Its excellent harbor gave it birth, but, as the best port on Australia's north coast, the sailors give it color.

"Chinatown, through which ship passengers must pass on arrival, greets the traveler with its Oriental odors, a mixture of joss-sticks, fish and drains, to the clashing tones of the one-string fiddle and radios.

"Most of the houses are one-story high. Many buildings of unpainted iron house Chinese, Malays and assorted aliens, formerly including many Japanese. The central portion of the town is almost devoid of trees. The sidewalks of the business section are roofed over. Government is housed in low stone buildings.

"The majority of Darwin's better homes on the outskirts stand high above the ground on stilts of ironwood or concrete posts as a protection against termites. Life is lived for the most part on the shuttered verandas surrounding the houses, of which the open rooms are a part. Only a dressing room and a bathroom are entirely inclosed. The almost unbearable heat at 12 degrees south of the Equator is relieved somewhat by cool breezes throughout the year.

3 DARWIN, naval-base capital of Australia's northern territory, was raided by Japanese bombers. The Japs' claim to have inflicted severe losses to Australian navy and land installations was without confirmation

"Darwin has one motion picture house, the center of activity, especially on Saturday nights. Cowboy pictures have the most appeal for the native blacks, who hoot the villian and cheer the hero. Groups of strange, dark men of many races lounge at corners, as Chinese children clatter along on wood sandals, with Chinese women in sky-blue trousers and wide-sleeved black silk coats. Natives favor the hotly-flavored spiced meats cooked on red-glowing braziers in the streets, where Chinese dispense chocolate from wheelbarrows. This is peacetime Darwin.

"The town occupies a bluff, 60 feet above the sea, and to the west overlooks one of the best harbors on the Pacific. In normal times it had regular steamer communication with Java, Singapore, Hongkong and India.

"Darwin is the capital of the Northern Territory which covers a half million square miles of sparsely settled, wild country. During the long dry season this region has a scorched appearance. With the rains of the wet season, when the luggers come into port to lie up, the country blossoms almost over night in scarlet poinciana, frangipani, Japanese honeysuckle, and many flowering trees.

"Normally Darwin had air connections with Singapore over a route that followed the length of the Netherlands island of Java and across Sumatra. Since the establishment of its first commercial line, 20 years ago, Australia has developed internal air routes second only to the United States in their 20,000-mile extent, over which more than nine million miles are annually flown.

"Four years ago a new line was established from Darwin across the continent to Adelaide on the south coast. The projected railway between these two distant points has never been completed, and Darwin did not develop as a distributing center. Since the beginning of the war a new military highway 620 miles long has been built to connect the rail heads at Alice Springs and Birdum, the latter 316 miles south of Darwin.

"The rail-highway route requires nine days for the trip between Darwin and Adelaide. The new air route of 1650 miles put the two ports within two days of each other."

'Button Your Lips . . .'

Artists Try To Get This Idea Across

Wartime is one time when talk isn't cheap.

In a series of ten "Button Your Lips" posters, some of the Nation's top-flight illustrators are trying to get this idea across to the American people.

Under the theme, "Loose Talk Can Cost Lives," the posters show loose-mouthed civilians and servicemen inadvertently airing information that reaches the enemy's big ears. It is hoped the posters will be placed about everywhere.

One poster shows a soldier seated on a park bench with a girl friend casually relating to her information that a large-eared sitter-by with a face like that of Hitler is eating up.

One headed "Sailor, Beware!" pictures a Navy man about to succumb to the wiles of a sultry blond babe, who fastens her coils about the lad's neck and gives him the one-two with her heavily convoyed eyes.

This is to fool the sailor into thinking she's falling for him, when all the time she wants only to find out where Uncle Sam is sending a batch of sailors next week so a Nazi sub will be on hand to play tag with them.

There are posters showing how civilians, too, can get on the Axis helpers' list without ever knowing it.

One such picture shows two workmen discussing over beers valuable information about things going on inside their construction plant. In the background, with a grin on his face like a cat that has just finished a bottle of grade-A cream, is the goofy guy from Berlin again.

"Don't be a dope and spread inside dope," says the slogan.

The posters are being sold by the British and American Ambulance Corps, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York, with the money going to buy ambulances for the United Nations. Prices of the posters are $1 per set, plus 10 cents for postage, and $45 for 50 sets.

Artists for the posters included Earl Winslow, Otto Soglow, C. C. Beall, John Falter, Steve Dohanos, Del Holcomb, William Stieg and Howard Scott, all illustrators for big slick magazines. Directors for the program included John Holmgren, president of the Illustrators Society; Adolph Treidler, chairman of an artists' committee set up for this purpose, and E. D. Button and Ed Graham, art directors for large advertising agencies.

Wife Who Expected to Enjoy Feeling of Perfect Peace and Security in Marriage Is Dismayed by Her Consuming Jealousy of Flirtatious Husband

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What can one do about a consuming jealousy that seems beyond control? Were it not for that trait, my life would be very happy, because I have a fine husband with a substantial income. I had thought that marriage would bring a feeling of perfect peace and security; or, rather, as much security as anyone could feel in these times. But we have been married a little over a year, and the tranquillity I had anticipated seems to elude me continually.

I say I have a fine husband. And I do. But his tendency to flirt with every attractive woman he meets constantly rekindles that spark of jealousy in me. And jealousy can take the joy out of any woman's life. It can make a sour-puss of the most optimistic "glad girl." I know that my husband's flirtations are innocent; because he is unquestionably honorable and above deceit. But he is ever fascinated by the opposite sex and doesn't care who knows it.

How can I control my unpleasant emotion of jealousy and claim that peace of mind which I realize is so essential to my own well being and the security of our marriage? Your counsel will be deeply appreciated. Sincerely,

ELAINE C.

Nurse Him Through To Emotional Maturity

DEAR ELAINE C.: As I have said here before, in discussing this type of problem, there is a vast difference between (1) jealousy, which is an hysterical manifestation of neurotic inferiority feelings; and (2) warranted uneasiness or resentment, occasioned by a loved one's disloyal or untrustworthy behavior. It is conceivable that a person possessed of such solid self esteem as to be a stranger to fearsome jealousy might experience almost continuous mental distress, in association with a marriage partner who habitually b u r n e d incense to every "passing fair" person of the opposite sex.

Most civilized persons consider it not only desirable but possible to maintain a sense of buoyant emotional vitality in their marital relationship; and it has been demonstrated that a consistent attitude of mutual romantic fealty is the best means of protecting and strengthening this centrally unifying bond of incomparably "special" feeling. And the more an individual inclines to be wholeheartedly loyal, the less can he sincerely (and with warrant) cherish the sentimental companionship of a married partner, who symbolically distributes his favors amongst all tolerably attractive contenders.

In saying, "I had thought marriage would bring a feeling of peace and security," you imply that you had felt twinges of jealousy before becoming a wife. Was this sense of insecurity in an emotional relationship characteristic of your dealings with all your best beaux? Or did you become acquainted with the gnawing anxiety which you call "jealousy," only after falling in love with the man who is now your husband? If his behavior has made you acquainted with "jealousy," it is probable that the prescription for cure applies to him, and not to you. It is probable that you can enjoy real peace of mind only if he changes his ways.

Yet, supposing you are a chronically jealous person,—who has been oppressed since childhood by a self disparaging sense of emotional insecurity,—still, that by no means exonerates your husband of responsibility for your "consuming" and "uncontrollable" uneasiness of recent months. If he were a psychologically mature, greatly understanding person, he would (and easily could) conduct himself in a manner so reassuring as to put all your old childish fears to rest. It would be his pleasure to assist you in gradually establishing full confidence in yourself and trust in him.

His "tendency to flirt with every attractive woman he meets;" and to be "ever fascinated by the opposite sex, not caring who knows it," must be labeled either adolescent or grossly animalistic behavior,—such as would offend the sensibilities of any intelligent wife, no matter how healthily insulated against jealousy she might be. The fact that you know him to be "unquestionably honorable and above deceit," is poor consolation in the face of his jaunty philandering.

Your willingness to believe that you are primarily at fault for reacting unpleasantly to his performance, and devout wish to eliminate jealousy from your feeling-repertory, suggests to me that you are the more responsibly-mind, cooperative partner in the marriage. Thus, if you are to contrive peace of mind concerning his presumably harmless weakness for women, I believe you must stop trying to measure him against standards of perfect manliness, and accept the fact that, on the emotional side, he is still a sophomore,—and that it is your job to "carry" him through to emotional maturity: a state of being which proclaims itself, eventually, by an air of sober contentment with one's mate. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

What Men Think Of Women's Styles

This is one of a series on what men in public life think of women's clothes. Today King Vidor, movie director, expresses his views.

By King Vidor

IT IS a mistake for a woman to be a slave to the fickle flattery of ever-changing fashion. Flattery, perhaps, but so often the reverse is true. To one woman's physiognomy a large, low-brimmed hat is becoming; this is the type headgear that offers the best background to her over-all features—height, width, body and facial characteristic. But large, wide hats are not in style this year, so what does she do? Goes to her favorite milliner, seats herself before a three-way mirror and lapses into a state of semiconsciousness brought on by the positive persuasiveness of the milliner's best saleswoman. The woman in question is then subjected to an ignominious performance while passing as the dummy for a parade of doodads and undulating pancake affairs that appear to have been conceived in nightmarish rage of an unsuppressed Dali.

AFTER half an hour of hopeless quest, milady succumbs to a sort of ski-slide little number with the jump-off spot placed most unbecomingly at the tip of our friend's nose. She then sallies forth into the street and into the cocktail lounge, unashamed and unafraid. Why she can't see what has happened to her rather pleasing profile, heaven only knows. But she is a slave to fashion, and this won't do. Many women can't wear large hats, and many can't wear little, precise, flowerpot affairs; their features can't take it. But they do!

I BELIEVE that a woman should spend a lot of time figuring out what is most becoming to her, and more or less stick to that general idea, regardless of what fashion dictates. I say more or less, because I don't believe she should become an Aunt Matilda and wear the same costume for 25 years. That's going to the other extreme. But I believe she should be well aware of changing trends and then adapt them to her particular style and personality. After all, shouldn't hats, clothes, shoes, all accouterments be an extension of one's own individuality as far as such a project is practical? Unless, of course, one has no individuality and is willing to blindly accept those of the peruasive saleswoman or the fashion dictators.

Little boy suits, such as the one above, are vying with dressmaker versions as favorites for spring. This one has the versatility of being practical for business or country week-ends. Four pockets, a soft turnover collar, and an action skirt are features of this ribbed Forstmann woolen suit in navy blue. Note, too, the large trimmed chapeau — a must for every "suit woman" this spring.

Happiness in Work Called Aid To Feminine Beauty by Actress

By Ida Jean Kain

The women who come up the hard way remain at the top long enough to form some ideas of success that are not according to Horatio Alger, whose homespun hero's talents were always recognized and rewarded.

When I asked Grace George, one of the great ladies of the stage, to give us a rule for success, she replied promptly, "A good play! And a good play means a good box office, always."

In a profession where a high premium is supposed to be placed on beauty, she does not see it as a factor in success. "I don't think beauty counts at all—or that it ever has," she declared. You wouldn't call Helen Hayes beautiful, or Katherine Cornell, and they are two of the women you think of first in connection with outsanding success back of the footlights. True, they have great talent—but, oh, how they have worked!"

Work a Beautifier

This star believes that work and the satisfaction of doing it well tend to improve a woman's looks and that combined with personal happiness they may even make her beautiful. And whom do you think she cites as proof? Lynne Fontanne, conceded to be one of the most beautiful and fascinating women of the stage. "It doesn't seem credible," she observed, "but I can remember a time when Miss Fontanne was quite plain. I believe her happiness in her work and in her personal life have had a lot to do with the transformation into a very beautiful woman."

Apparently Miss George herself has enjoyed her share of this beauty agent. She is one of the loveliest stars ever to take up permanent residence on Broadway. And she has so much poise and serenity that the thought flashed through my mind "Here is what is meant by a lady! I asked her definitely of the term and she looked startled for an instant and said she wouldn't know one if she saw one.

So we went back to discussing actresses and what they learn that can be passed along. Her tip for posture startled me—it is to get up from your chair with your chest, not with your seat. And for poise, not to think about yourself too much. With good posture and poise together, she thinks a woman can create any impression she pleases.

Modern Girls Taller

She notices a great change in the young girls of today—and it's for the better. "They are growing taller and standing much straighter," she said. You may be sure Miss George stands up to every inch of her 5 feet 3.

Her beauty routine consists of soap and water whenever her face needs cleansing, and plenty of cold cream to remove make-up. Her exercise program is to walk home after the theater, and it's a good jaunt. To put on a couple of pounds of weight she has added a glass of beer to her daily balanced diet.

All that sounds very simple, doesn't it? But if every woman took Miss George's view that satisfaction in work, happiness and a few rules for looks and living are what count, there might be more beauties.

Long-Range Swim Suit

QUERY: I am going to a swimming party in an indoor pool the end of this month. Since I need a new bathing suit, I should like to get one that would be in style for this summer. What would you suggest?

ANSWER: For women who are expert swimmers, the one-piece wool bathing suit is still an accepted fashion. Two-piece suits with separate bras and shorts in lastex fabric are slated to be seen more this summer, however, as they are now in high favor at Palm Beach.

Dressmaker swim suits will be even more popular than either of these fashions, according to present indications. The tendency to cover up has been growing for several seasons. This year the trend seems to be general. Dressmaker styles in linen, cotton and Hawaiian prints on rayon are being worn in Florida. Most of the suits are fashioned in one piece, with slight bodice and flared skirts. This type would be the kind to buy now and would be appropriate for wear in a pool or out-of-doors swimming in summer.

Figure Problem

QUERY: What spring styles would you suggest as suitable for me? My bust is large and I cannot wear fitted clothes. I want to get away from the spectator sports type of dress.

ANSWER: Although you do not describe your figure entirely, you probably have slender hips, trim ankles and wrists. The woman with the full bust usually has these good points to offset a fairly large waist and large upper arms.

Since, as you say, tight, slim-fitted clothes are not becoming, choose draped bodices. (The fullness then appears to belong to the dress, rather than your figure.) Flared skirts give an appearance of stability by width at the hemline. The tulip silhouette, which concentrates draping at the hemline, is one of the newest styles for spring and probably would look well on you. With this skirt goes the surplice bodice that is flattering to the full bust.

Other suggestions are light-colored stockings (to call attention to slim ankles), a high waistline, no belt, dark colors above the waist, and raglan or kimono sleeves.

Taboo on Black?

QUERY: Is it true that dark colors and black are not being worn this spring? I have heard so much talk about black not being appropriate for wartime. I would like to know before I get my spring outfit.

ANSWER: According to color theorists, dark hues, especially black, are out of favor during wartime. The reason is that these colors are associated with casualties. To most men and women, bright colors are preferred because they radiate gayety.

Color is going to be very important this spring, but black and navy will not be forgotten. On the contrary, some of the smartest costumes seen are dark, spiced with gay accessories. Many women who are buying on a long-range basis, tie to this scheme, war or no war.

James A. Pikes Establish Home In Arlington

Now making their home in Arlington Village are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Pike, who recently returned from a honeymoon trip to Havana. Mrs. Pike is the former Miss Esther Yanovsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Yanovsky, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Pike were married January 29 by Justice Bolitna J. Laws, of the United States District Court, in his chambers. Mrs. Pike was graduated from George Washington University in 1939 and is at present a student in the Law School of the university. She is a member of Delta Zeta sorority, Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Delta legal sorority.

Mr. Pike, who during the past four years was an attorney at the Securities and Exchange Commission, has been at the Office of Price Administration since the beginning of the year. Mothers Advised to Promote Children's Hobby Interest To Avoid Effects of Possible Postwar Letdown

By Genevieve Reynolds

WORRIED about the effect of the war on your child? Are you afraid that he or she will grow up in the same dizzy jazz era that followed World War I? If so, begin now to develop hobby interests of the child—and if there are no inklings now, stimulate them. This is the advice of Miss Mildred Manter, director of Boston's Children's Museum.

MISS MANTER

In town this weekend to attend the opening of the Washington Children's Museum, Villa Rosa, 4215 Massachusetts Avenue, Miss Manter said, "Give the child a hobby and when there's no money for ice cream cones and movies, he will have some inner resource to fall back on. Also, it will keep him alive and stimulated and at the same time break up the old 'cellar gangs' that promoted crime."

She pointed out that if men who lost their money during the bad depression years had had some hobby to fall back on instead of depending upon riches, there would have been fewer suicides.

The best place for a child to develop a vital interest in noncommercial entertainment is a children's museum, according to Miss Manter. Not only does the child find interest in the simple things of nature—hiking, collecting bugs, flowers, etc.—but he learns to work and play with other children. Also, she explained, the child learns the culture and crafts of peoples of other countries. Knowing something about life in foreign countries, the child has a broader and more tolerant as well as actual liking for them.

Clubwomen Face Busy Week

QUITE a busy and gay week is in the offing for Democratic clubwomen. This time, however, the men will share most of the festivities. Tomorrow afternoon from 5 to 7, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith will entertain members of the Democratic Women's National Council with a tea at their home, 2939 Macomb Street Northwest.

Assisting Mrs. Smith will be: Mrs. Paul D. Hammacher, president; Mrs. Clifford McLeod, vice president; Mrs. Raymond M. Greeley, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Redmon Day, recording secretary; Mrs. Floyd Cook, program chairman; Mrs. Mary Davis Watts, education chairman; Mrs. Mary Chivers, ways and means chairman, and Miss Julia Bannigan, Red Cross roll call chairman. Mrs. Walter J. Maloney will give a musical program. Other guests besides members of the council will be Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Senator Guffey and Miss Pauletta Guffey, Senator and Mrs. George L. Radcliffe, Representative and Mrs. Harry Sheppard, Representative and Mrs. John Kee, Representative and Mrs. Jennings Randolph, Representative and Mrs. Luther Patrick, Representative and Mrs. Frank Boykin—also members of the press and radio.

Then at 7 o'clock Monday night, members of the Woman's National Democratic Club will gather at the clubhouse for a dinner at which Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, will be sponsor and guest of honor. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will be the guest speaker. The organization, like the majority of Democratic clubs throughout the Nation is celebrating George Washington's birthday with a dinner. During the evening, members will listen to President Roosevelt's speech broadcast from the White House. A program of songs will be featured by Mrs. Walter Maloney.

MISS PERKINS

Committee on arrangements is composed of Mrs. Emmet Gudger, chairman; Mrs. Albert G. Black, Mrs. Herbert Grove Dorsey, Mrs. Stanley J. O'Connor, Mrs. Allen Cleveland Phelps.

Doings of the Day

Bernard Frank calls the numbers for the Washington League of Women Shoppers' square dance, 8:30 o'clock in Pierce Hall gymnasium, Sixteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest. . . . Y. W. C. A. sponsors sightseeing trip to New York City. . . . Elizabeth Jackson Chapter, D. A. R., meets at Chapter House, 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. H. S. Parsons is hostess at tea following business meeting at which time members contribute to the Phantom Dinner. . . . Political Study Club meeting.

Tea to Benefit Church Society For College Work

A tea in the interest of the Church Society for College Work will be held at the home of Mrs. Elvin R. Heiberg, 2016 R Street Northwest, Saturday afternoon, February 28, at 4:30. The speaker will be the Rev. Edward R. Welles, rector of Christ Church, Alexandria, Va.

Mr. Welles was the preacher New Year's Day when President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill attended services at Christ Church, Alexandria.

The Church Society for College Work is the co-operating agency of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church committed to the support of the church's work in colleges and universities. Mrs. Heiberg, president of the Woman's Auxiliary in the Diocese of Washington, has been an enthusiastic supporter of the society since its headquarters were brought to the close of the Washington Cathedral, Mount St. Alban, more than a year ago.

A.W.V.S. Requires Basic Training

Miss Anita Phipps, president of the American Women's Voluntary Services, has announced that after March 1 anyone registering for classes at the A. W. V. S. must first take two basic courses—20 hours of standard first aid and 10 hours of civilian protection before they may join any of the other classes offered by the organization.

The American Women's Voluntary Services is offering courses in air-raid protection for domestic servants. The classes will be of two hours' duration, and each course will have two sessions. The course will be given continuously, and anyone wishing to have their servants enrolled may do so by calling the American Women's Voluntary Services, 2170 Florida Avenue. Telephone, Dupont 1478.

Be a Worker For Uncle Sam

TO MEET wartime needs, the United Service Civil Service is hiring thousands of new workers for jobs of all kinds.

Right up at the top of the "Help Wanted" list are clerical workers.

Age limits for many of these jobs are as high as 53. Pay is good—$1620 for a senior stenographer.

Uncle Sam also hires professional and scientific workers of all kinds—including engineers, social workers, pharmacists.

In such jobs, a college graduate who has majored in his subject may start at $2000, rise to $9000. Subprofessional jobs as assistant, requiring only a year of laboratory experience or college training, pay $1440.

Men with mechanical skill are badly needed for the war program. A skilled machinist can make up to $8.88 a day.

For those with no skill or experience, there are jobs, too. The postal service takes men under 50 as rural carriers.

Find out how to apply for these and many other jobs from our 40-page booklet, "Guide to United States Government Jobs." Lists jobs, requirements, age limits, pay, type of test given. Discusses pensions.

Send 15 cents (plus 1 cent to cover cost of mailing) for our booklet, "Guide to United States Government Jobs," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Polish Foreign Minister Feted by Ciechanowskis

By Patricia Grady

"Two pages of my manuscript slipped away from me, but I seemed to get through all right," the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Poland, Count Raczynski, told a guest yesterday (after he had slipped away for a radio speech) at the reception which the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Ciechanowska gave in his honor.

Purposely making the hours—5 to 7:30—somewhat longer than the usual for afternoon fetes, an official group of Washingtonians streamed into the big stone Embassy on Sixteenth Street and waited until long after the approved closing hour to stream out. The extended time gave everyone a chance to meet the Foreign Affairs Minister who had to leave the party at 6 o'clock to make a Nation-wide broadcast. The Capital will have to wait until this evening to hear Count Raczynski's speech which was broadcast everywhere in America except the Capital.

Delightfully informal, as all Polish Embassy parties have been since the Ciechanowski regime began, the Ambassador and his wife had as good a time at their own party as any of the guests. The Ambassador, impatient of receiving lines, circulated here, there and everywhere, stopping in the dining room from time to time to sample some of the delicious pastries on the pastel snapdragon-decorated table. Mme. Ciechanowska, who followed her husband's example, was gowned in a simply-cut street-length frock of black crepe with white accents at the neckline.

Standing in a group, Mrs. Leighton McCarthy caught a glimpse of her husband, the Canadian Minister, in animated conversation with three very beautiful women. "I better go join him," she laughed, "I don't trust Washington women." "You certainly had better go to his rescue," chimed in the Portuguese Minister, Joao Antonio de Bianchi, "one of those women is not only charming, she's definitely hot—her name's Pepper."

Incidentally, Mrs. Claude Pepper will leave with her husband this evening for California, where her Senator-husband will make a speech in Los Angeles. Among the early arrivals was Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, who came with the Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann. "No more coffee," declined Mme. Cervenka, who was there with her husband, the Counselor of the Czecho-Slovakia Legation. "I have just had three cups of coffee at the Latvian Legation with Mme. Bilmanis this afternoon."

Much the center of attention were the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Litvinoff and the Agent-General of India and Lady Girja Shankar Bajpai, the latter in colorful Indian apparel. Seeing that everyone had what they wanted from the tea table or the bar was Countess Lasocka, wearing a filigree black hat on her chic up-hairdo, and her husband, the Second Secretary of the Embassy, busied himself with introductions.

Mme. Loudon Wears 'Keep-'Em-Flying' Hat

"That's a 'Keep 'Em Flying' hat," one guest told Mme. Loudon, whose chic chapeau of pink feathers had a bird poised on the brim, while her husband, the Netherlands Minister, stood nearby. Mrs. Richard Casey in a gay red-bowed hat, seemed to know everybody at the party and Representative Charles Dewey—in the beaming presence of his —wife accepted a goodby kiss from Mme. Ciechanowska. "He is one of Poland's best friends," said a member of the staff of Mr. Dewey, who at one time served as financial advisor to Poland.

Mme. Fotitch, whose white hat was swathed in plaid-trimmed black veiling, explained that she was now enrolled in Red Cross first-aid courses, and Mrs. Herbert Feis enthusiastically told friends that she had just returned from a "wonderful stay with her mother" in Pasadena, Calif.

Many Notables Among Guests

Others glimpsed in the throng were the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Concheso, the Assistant Secretary of State, Breckinridge Long; Mr. and Mrs. Jean Chapdelaine, of the Canadian Legation; Mrs. J. Lawrence Houghteling, Anis Azer, of the Egyptian Legation, who will entertain at the second half of a series of 'round-the-world dinners tonight in his Massachusetts Avenue apartment; Miss Pauletta Guffey, Representative Sol Bloom, Mrs. E. A. Brenneman, Mme. Hurban, wife of the Czecho-Slovakian Minister; the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo-Najera, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Castle, Mrs. Fred Livesay, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pasvolsky, Baroness van Boetzelaer and many, many others.

Mrs. Close Entertains At Legation

Pleasantly informal was the tea-time gathering at the South African Legation yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Ralph William Close gathered in a number of friends for one of her regular Friday "at homes." From 4 to 6 o'clock the spacious drawing rooms and library of the legation were filled with a representative number from Washington official, diplomatic and residential groups.

Receiving informally, Mrs. Close wore a floor-length dress of black crepe styled on straight lines and accented with diamond clips. The Minister moved through the crowd, chatting with one group and another and seeing that everybody had a good time.

Refreshments Served In Drawing Room

A small table at which coffee and sandwiches were served was a popular center of attention in one corner of the center drawing room. Across the room at another small table guests formed a line for cups of tea. There was punch in the library, and there a small company gathered and lingered during most of the party.

Wives of the legation staff members took their turns at pouring either tea or coffee. Spring flowers decorated the room in which open fires added a cheery touch of warmth to the interior.

Members of Legation Staff Assist the Hostess

Among those present, to mention but a few, were: Mrs. Mahlon Pitney chatting with Col. and Mrs. Frank Morrow; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams and a group that included Mr. and Mrs. Julian Chetwynd and Dennis Smith. Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock was among those present; as were Mme. Molekamp and Mme. Van Houten, of the Netherlands Legation, and Mrs. Bisset Norment arriving shortly before the end of the party.

Robert Webster, secretary of the South American Legation, mingled in the crowd and served as an assistant host. Other members of the staff who helped to look after the guests were the Commercial Counselor and Mrs. A. T. Brennan, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jordaan, Maj. and Mrs. J. D. de Villiers Rademan, and H. H. Woodward, attache of the legation.

Wade H. Ellises Give Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis entertained in their home on Massachusetts Avenue last night at the first of a series of small dinners.

The guests were Dr. and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Ralph Worthington, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank T. Hines, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, whose wife left for a visit in Boston earlier in the week, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Berryman.

Mrs. Harriman Hostess

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was hostess to a group of 40 Norwegian seamen yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in her home on Foxhall Road Uplands.

The seamen, who are members of the Norwegian Merchant Marine, are on leave in Baltimore between Atlantic voyages.

Last night, the seamen were feted at a legation staff party in the annex of the legation.

The Post Presents . . .

Mrs. Ralph B. Lovett . . .

. . Wife of Col. Lovett, of the U. S. Army Press Relations Department . . . Petite, blond and dynamic, Mrs. Lovett is filling the hours with war work these days, has been active in Red Cross work and the American Women's Voluntary Services, and can be found knitting furiously at any hour . . . Their only son, Colburn, 14, is now at Culver Military Academy in Indiana . . . Though Mrs. Lovett used to sketch and paint, and is fond of golf and riding, those occupations have been pretty much in the discard since war began . . . Informal parties, which Mrs. Lovett likes to give and does so well, have been included among the "on-the-shelf-for-the-duration" activities.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Definitely unofficial was the dinner which the president of the Export-Import Bank and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson gave last night in their Shoreham apartment in honor of the Brazilian Finance Minister, Artur de Souza Costa. Mr. and Mrs. Pierson are old friends of Mr. Souza Costa and of Valentim Boucas, who was also in the dinner group last night. During their trips to Brazil, the Piersons have spent a great deal of time with the Brazilian cabinet officer and Mr. Boucas.

With Mme. Alfred Sze, wife of the former Chinese Ambassador to this country, as guest of honor, Miss Elizabeth H. Johnson will be hostess at a luncheon for 14 today at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson have returned to Washington after spending a few days in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg will entertain at a dinner in their home in Spring Valley this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann returned from a tour of the West Coast yesterday. En route to Washington they stopped over in Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Lippmann made the Western tour in connection with her job as national director of the volunteer nurses' aid of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. E. M. Wallace will join her husband soon at Quonset Point, R. I., where he recently accepted a defense position.

The engagement of Miss Evangeline Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Rice, to Raymond J. Broderick, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Broderick, of Philadelphia, has been broken by mutual consent.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kaufmann have moved into their new home at 2812 Chesterfield Place, Forest Hills.

Dr. and Mrs. Lester Newman are vacationing in Hollywood, Fla., where they are staying at the Hollywood Beach Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hechinger have left for a vacation at Miami Beach, Fla. En route they visited their son, Lieut. John Hechinger, at Fort Bragg.

Miss Hazel Fenster, of New York, is spending the weekend in Washington as the guest of Miss Flora Anne Fischer.

Mrs. D. R. Pomeranz, of Philadelphia, has returned to her home after a visit here with her son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Alvin Newmyer, jr.

Cohens on N. Y. Wedding Trip, Will Make Home in Mt. Rainier

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Marion Cohen, who are now in New York to spend a few days, will be at home after their wedding trip at 4111 Russell Place, Mount Rainier, Md.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn headed the list of distinguished guests who attended their marriage ceremony on Thursday evening at St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown. The bride is the former Louise Wasson Kittrell. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kittrell, jr., of Dallas, Tex., and is now employed in the public relations division of the War Department.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in powder blue crepe, worn with a hat of darker blue and matching accessories. An orchid corsage further accented her ensemble.

Bridesmaids were Miss Frances Curtis, Miss Gertrude Loder and Miss Gail Dimpson, all of Washington. Their beige afternoon frocks were set off with brown accessories and corsages of Talisman roses.

Whitfield Cohen, the bridegroom's father was best man. The Rev. F. Bland Tucker, rector of St. John's, officiated, and the couple left on their wedding trip directly after the ceremony was over.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitfield Cohen, of New York, formerly of Birmingham University. A graduate of the University of Alabama Law School, he is a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity. He is now an attorney for the Southern Railway Co. Mr. Cohen is a nephew and namesake of Capt. Marion Cohen, U. S. N. Capt. Cohen's flagship recently was the destroyer Dallas, named for the city of the bride's birth. The former Miss Kittrell attended Texas State College for Women and the University of Texas. She has been living in Washington for some time.

The O'Deas Fete Radio Commentator

With Raymond Gram Swing, noted radio commentator, as their guest of honor, Mr. and Mrs. Mark O'Dea entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon in their home on Thirty-fourth Street, From 5 to 7 o'clock. Mr. Swing met a gala gathering of Capitalites, many of whom were already among his friends, and all of whom, apparently, wasted no time in telling him they listened to his broadcasts regularly, and thought he was, as one woman expressed it, "Simply tops!"

Graciously, and with infinite patience, Mr. Swing listened to each new speech of praise as if he had never heard anything like it before; and the party moved merrily along.

Planned as a strictly informal fete, and an "after-office-hours" get-together for a sizable gathering, the event also turned into a reunion before it was over. The principals in the latter were the guest of honor and Christian Herter, who recently came to Washington to take a position in the Office of Facts and Figures. Mr. Swing and Mrs. Herter were with each other in Berlin in 1925, and had not seen each other since—until yesterday.

Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer Assistant to Hostess

Receiving wherever she happened to be, Mrs. O'Dea was trimly turned out in a black crepe frock. The host, meanwhile, mingled in the crowd, and took pains to see that everybody present met everybody else. Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, smartly attired in a red frock with a matching hat, was another who spent a good part of the time effecting introductions and making sure that each guest had a chance to meet all the celebrities present.

The Undersecretary of the Interior and Mrs. John J. Dempsey were there, putting in one of their first social appearances since their return from a vacation in New Mexico. Objects of much attention were Mrs. Dempsey's natty cocktail hitts, that fit nattily over the hand but leave thefingers free. Mrs. Robert Patterson, wife of the Undersecretary of War was there; also Mrs. Leon Henderson, who reported that her husband was in Chicago, and Mme. Procope, who said her husband was in New York.

Maritime Commissioners Among Guests

The Chairman of the Maritime Commission and Mrs. Emory S. Land were popular centers of interest, as were Maritime Commissioner and Mrs. Thomas Woodward and Maritime Commissioner and Mrs. Howard L. Vickery, who were accompanied by their pretty daughter, Miss Barbara Vickery.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey and Col. Roy Dickinson, former publisher of Printers Ink, arrived during the latter half of the party and were immediately surrounded by friends. Still other especially popular guests included Representative and Mrs. Schuyler Otis Bland, James H. R. Cromwell, Representative and Mrs. Albert Thomas, Nathan Bartlett, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Peet, Ensign and Mrs. Thad Brown, and Capt. Edward McCauley.

Mrs. Wagner And Daughter Give Dinner

If a dinner for eight is given by two as the old fashioned arithmetic books might have put it, the answer would be a party of ten, which describes exactly the company which dined together last night at the home of Mrs. Ernest Wagner on N Street.

Mrs. Wagner's daughter, Miss Peggy Wagner, was cohostess at the dinner, following which the guests went on to the Friday Supper Club dance. Gowned in black—so long popular, still popular and it seems safe to say it will forever be popular—were both the mother and her daughter. Mrs. Wagner's dress featured a sequin scarf, while her daughter's was of black velvet and lace.

The table around which the diners gathered was centered with yellow roses, while in the living room were pale carnations. Mrs. Wagner, who has been in Washington about five weeks now, has furnished the house with her own things brought down from New York. Dashing back and forth between the two cities as she has been doing during the past three winters, which Miss Wagner has spent in this city at the home of Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, proved just too hectic.

So this year Mrs. Wagner decided against the trips fortnightly or oftener and took the N Street house to be near her daughter in the town which the latter "is crazy about."

Mrs. Wickard Is Honor Guest At Mrs. J. H. Hughes' Party

"I just dashed away from the office in time to come," laughed Mrs. Claude Wickard, who was the guest of honor at the benefit luncheon at which Mrs. James H. Hughes, wife of the Senator from Delaware, was hostess yesterday in her home on Harrison Street.

Because her husband, the Secretary of Agriculture, is taking "doctor's orders" and staying in bed nursing a cold and an infected foot, Mrs. Wickard's Westchester apartment has taken on all the aspects of an office with conferences, dictations et al going on all day. Yesterday Mrs. Hughes installed her honoree in a comfortable chair near the glowing fireplace and brought her guests up to meet her there.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot—in a dashing blue wool uniform—was the open envy of every woman at the party. She had spent the morning at her office at the OCD and was on her way to spend the afternoon at the District civilian defense office, which is located in an abandoned firehouse. "My husband calls it my COD office," said the be-uniformed luncher. Mme. Sze, wife of the former Chinese Ambassador to Washington, and Mme. Yu, wife of the second secretary of the Chinese embassy—both in graceful Chinese costumes—were counting their calories very carefully. "You see," they explained, "we don't dare gain any weight because we don't know when we'll be able to get more clothes from China." Mme. Yu was thrilled over the prospect of her husband's return to Washington in several weeks. He accompanied Dr. Quo, who was then Chinese foreign minister to Chungking last summer.

"I just can't get used to the idea that it isn't really 12:30," admitted Mrs. Josiah Bailey as she arrived on the dot for the 1:30 luncheon. "Wartime is awfully confusing especially early in the morning." Mrs. Bruce Smith and her hostess made plans for a trip to Florida to visit Mrs. Hughes' daughter, Mrs. John Martin, who was such a popular Capital visitor several weeks ago. Mrs. James F. Byrnes discussed the shivering weather with Mrs. George Becker and Mrs. Frank Hines and Mrs. John Clark found much of interest to talk about. Others at the pleasant luncheon were Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. Oman Hydrick, Mrs. Franklin Schneider, Mme. Elvina Orlicz-Dreszer, and Mrs. Neitah King.

Brazilian Party Again Delayed; Now Set Feb. 26

The reception that the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins postponed because of the death of the Brazilian Minister-Counselor, Arno Konder, is possibly the small brother of the recent "little ball" that wasn't there—for it is beginning to look like the "little" reception without a date.

Originally scheduled for the past Friday, the reception was postponed a week after Mr. Konder's death. But when Mme. Martins found out that the Navy Relief Fashion show is booked for next Friday, she changed the date again in order not to conflict with the benefit. So the Brazilian party is now set for Thursday, February 26, between the hours of 5 and 7. The Brazilian Finance Minister, Artur de Souza Costa, is the guest in whose honor the reception is being given.

Cuban Envoy Will Speak At Party Today

The Ambassador from Cuba and Senora de Concheso will be ranking guests at the Cuban Embassy day luncheon at Hotel 2400 today when the envoy will speak on "Highlights of the Recent Rio de Janeiro Conference."

During the luncheon Jack Segar, chairman of the board of the luncheon club, will present Miss Mabel Boardman, national secretary of the Red Cross with a $1000 bond purchased with the proceeds of this series of luncheons. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former Minister to Norway, will speak briefly on "Pan American Solidarity."

At the head of the table will be, in addition to the honor guests, the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Rodriguez, the Second Secretary of the Embassy and Senora de Herrera-Arango, Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, and Representative and Mrs. Joseph E. Casey.

Mrs. Clarence Goodwin will entertain a group at the luncheon tomorrow. Her guests will include Mrs. Robert Jackson, Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mr. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Robert Patterson, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. George Pettengill, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank Keefer, Lieut. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, John Saul, head of the newly founded Disaster Relief Committee in Washington, Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. John Gengrich, and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, of Chicago.

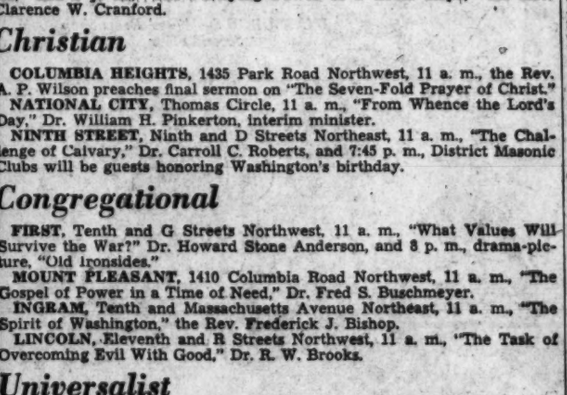
"BE THOU, O GOD, EXALTED HIGH"
- - - NAHUM TATE - - -

Be Thou, O God, exalted high
And as Thy glory fills the sky
So let it be on earth displayed
Till Thou art here as there obeyed.



This sublime doxology attributed to Nahum Tate has been rising to heaven for generations, from congregations round the globe wherever Christendom has built its altars. Because of Tate's outstanding religious poetry, he was appointed poet-laureate by King William III. . .

Rev. Dr. Sheerin Named to Board Of Church Society

The Rev. Lieut. C. Leslie Glenn, president of the Church Society for College Work, has announced the election of the Rev. Charles W. Sheerin, D. D., as vice president of the board of directors of the society.

Dr. Sheerin became rector of the Church of the Epiphany in Washington February 1, after having served as vice president of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church since 1938. He has been prominently connected with college and university work throughout his ministry. He is a graduate of Stone School, Boston, and holds degrees from Columbia University, the Virginia Theological Seminary and the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. At the latter, he is a member of the board of regents.

Other directors of the society living in Washington are Mr. William R. Castle, jr., Mr. Norman H. Davis, Mr. Coleman Jennings, Mr. E. R. Finkenstaedt and Dr. Glenn, now on leave of absence as rector of St. John's Church in order to serve as chaplain of the U. S. S. Prairie State in New York.

Other directors temporarily in Washington because of the war are William A. Coolidge, of Boston; Edward R. Stettinius, jr., of New York, and Dr. James Phinney Baxter, 3d, of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. The society's headquarters are in the close of the Washington Cathedral, Mount Saint Albans.

D. C. Methodists to Observe Laymen's Day Tomorrow

Laymen's Day will be observed tomorrow in Methodist churches throughout the District in services stressing the church activities from the layman's point of view. Services include addresses by prominent church goers, as well as open discussions of the layman's interpretation of religion in the light of world events.

Representative Luther Patrick, of Alabama, will speak at 9 a. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church on "What the Church Means to Me." He will be introduced by Arthur E. Martin. Judge Eugene Black will present Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce, who will speak on "What the Church Requires of Laymen" at the 11 o'clock service.

The Rev. Nelson Pierce will speak on "Men of Talents" at 8 p. m. Deane Shure will direct the cloister choir at 9 o'clock and the sanctuary choir at the 11 and 8 o'clock services. The Rev. Wilber H. Wilson, associate minister, will speak at the junior church service at 11 o'clock, after which the chapel choir will sing.

"The Holiness of Beauty" will be the theme of a sermon by Dr. Frederick Brown Harris at the 11 o'clock service at the Foundry Methodist Church. Twenty-five newly installed carrillon bells will ring out the hymns of the church for one half-hour preceding the 11 and 8 o'clock services. Patriotic airs will be played throughout the afternoon to commemorate Washington's Birthday. Two laymen will assist the minister at the service at 8 p. m., with addresses entitled "Only a Layman" given by Arthur S. Fleming, Civil Service commissioner, and Grover Hartman, an associate of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Mr. M. R. Speelman, lay leader for Lincoln Road Church, will have general charge of the morning and evening services tomorrow. The 11 o'clock service will feature Col. A. R. Brindley, of Mount Vernon Place Church in a brief address, with special music by the men's chorus. Interstate Commerce Commissioner John L. Rogers will be the speaker at the 8 p. m. service, to which all men of the congregation are urged to bring their friends. The young people's vested choir, under the direction of Mrs. Kempton, will provide special music for the evening service, after which the fellowship tea and social hour will be held in the church parlors.

The official board of Emory Methodist Church will sit in a body at the service tomorrow at 8 p. m., when F. Murray Benson, outstanding layman of the Methodist Church, will deliver an address. D. Stewart Patterson, a prominent member of the congregation, will speak at 11 a. m. The youth fellowship groups will meet at 7 p. m.

"Layman's Day" services will be conducted at 11 a. m. tomorrow at the Hamline Church by Harry A. Havens, lay member of the Baltimore Conference from Hamline Church. Other laymen participating in the service will be the speaker, Representative Knute Hill, of Washington State, and William H. Ramsay; William L. Evans, Frank L. Smith, G. Raymond Wilhelm and Lester L. Fansher. Prof. William Bradford will address the Brotherhood Bible Class at 9:45 and Dr. E. H. DeGroot will speak to the Young Adult Fellowship on the subject: "Jesus Appoints and Teaches the Twelve." The women's organized Bible classes will be taught by Mrs. Edward Stevens and Mrs. Thomas F. Law. The Hamline Young People will hold their devotional meeting at 6:45 p. m.

Henry Gilligan, lay leader of Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church, will preside at the special Layman's Day services tomorrow. Leading the discussion of the layman's viewpoint will be Mrs. W. J. Brewer, speaking on "My Church and Missions;" R. Donald Kinney, speaking on "My Church and Evangelism" and Charles C. Richardson, who will discuss "My Church and Its Youth." The Christian Endeavor Societies and Youth Fellowship will hold services at 7 p. m.

General Accounting Office has been the worst offender. It has a blanket order prohibiting transfers. Several of its temporary employes have been offered permanent jobs in war agencies but their requests were denied. Young scientists and engineers are at work in GAO filing papers. The Government is getting the least possible use from their talents in a time when manpower is at a premium and when the most effective use must be made of every person if the war is to be won.

It's difficult to believe, but GAO has even prevented some of its employes from taking civil service tests for better jobs. And GAO or any other agency has the power to do this, but it won't have for long as this authority is also slated for the Civil Service Commission. Of course, GAO has important work to do, but it could have helped along the war effort by releasing some of its trained people to war jobs and the morale at the agency would have been much higher. As it is, it's estimated that more than 1000 GAO employes are trying to get other jobs. And officials wonder why.

NLRB Follows Suit

Now the National Labor Relations Board has informed its employes that they can't be transferred. Moreover, the board has forbidden its employes even to be consulted about other jobs unless they get written permission from the board. Many other agencies also have taken unfair advantage of their employes through the transfer ban.

Employes aren't free to resign, or else they would do so by the hundreds. Under an executive order an employe must wait for at least 90 days before he can get back on the payroll. Furthermore, many agencies threaten to list their employes as resigned with "prejudice" if they quit for other jobs. The Civil Service Commission, however, won't recognize prejudiced resignations unless the employe is guilty of a wrong. Nevertheless, a prejudiced resignation could conceivably bar a person from further Government employment.

Fertilizer Unit to Move

Office of Price Administration's fertilizer unit will be moved to Baltimore over the weekend. It's being moved out because of the office space shortage and, besides, Baltimore is one of the largest fertilizer centers in the Nation. The unit has about 50 employes under T. E. Millman. . . . U. S. Housing Authority's New England regional office will be moved to Boston over the weekend. About 100 employes are being transferred. They, too, are victims of crowded Washington. The agency's southeastern regional office will go to Atlanta next week.

Former Ambassador William E. Bullitt has been assigned offices in the new Interior Building. He's doing confidential work for the President . . . Neal A. Melick, supervising engineer of Public Buildings Administration, has been transferred to Federal Works to work on defense housing. Murray Davis succeeds him at PBA . . . Basil Capella has been appointed personnel director at the Office of Government Reports. He has been succeeded as the employe representative on the board of appeals at Federal Works by Cornelius McNamara. Thomas Shaw is the alternate.

Holiday Work Approved

Federal officials have been told it is okay with the White House if it's necessary to work employes on George Washington's Birthday. Most agencies will work full staffs . . . Lend-Lease is supposed to be on a 44-hour week but most of its employes are worked at least 48 hours. Annual leave has been cancelled for several months and the employes there hope they'll be given a holiday for a change on Monday . . . Mayor LaGuardia will welcome Wage and Hour employes to New York City next Tuesday . . . About 260 of the 550 employes refused to transfer.

Charles R. Denny, jr., has been appointed general counsel of FCC . . . It's rumored that Clark Foreman, who was eased out as a defense houser at Federal Works, will be given an important assignment to go to Russia by Harry Hopkins . . . Maritime Commission employes are circulating a petition demanding that Parks Boss Harold Ickes open up the Ellipse for auto parking . . . Now they're trying to find a job in one of Jesse Jones' establishments for jobless Nathan Straus . . . Gertrude Aldrich, a Veterans' Bureau clerk during the day, is a Red Cross worker by night. She gives first-aid instruction, serves as a nurse's aide, and pilots soldiers on sightseeing tours of the Capital.

Taxpayers Paying Early, Cheerfully

Maybe Donald Duck did it. Or maybe everybody just figured they'd better, or maybe, having a grudge on the Axis, everybody wants to pay taxes now more than ever before in their lives.

Whatever the feeling—and on the surface it was cheerful—a line of income tax paying citizens shaped itself yesterday at the Collector's office at Twelfth Street and Constitution Avenue, 23 days before the March 15 deadline.

The shuffling feet made little noise, but the roar of tanks and great pieces of artillery and the drone of fighting planes will come out of the shuffling sound as the lines throughout the Nation move along to the collector's counters.

The response, while statistics were unavailable yesterday, is ahead of last year, officials believed, due perhaps to Donald Duck, who plugged tax paying on the screen, and to the obvious fact that more persons are having to pay this year than previously.

The office is remaining open from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. weekdays and from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Saturdays. The simplified form for the lower-bracket payees was said to be proving popular. The principal question asked continues the same—about deductions.

Well, He Could Stock a Store

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Sugar? Agents of the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit testified today that during a raid on a suspected illegal distilling plant they found 4580 pounds of it. Morris Heitner, in whose home the agents said they found the sugar, explained, "I was going into the grocery business."

He was held under $1000 bail.

No Police Cards Necessary

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—Fire broke out in a loft of the Baltimore Sun papers plant tonight.

Fire and smoke in the loft, where paper and other material was stored, and water from numerous hose lines forced suspension of operations in the newspaper plant and of the Associated Press Bureau, which has offices in the building.

Woman Jumps to Death From Burning House; Three Home Fires Here Cause Heavy Damage

RESCUE CAME TOO LATE—Heedless of firemen's shouted advice to stay until they could reach her, Mrs. Marian Hazel (inset), 52, fell to her death yesterday from the top floor of this rooming house, 2031 F Street Northwest. A five-alarm fire swept the structure. Broken

D.C.'s Liquor Distributors Blamed in Ills

The House District Committee and the Commissioners yesterday traced the roots of Washington's liquor problems to the distributors and not to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Promising a thorough investigation of local trade methods by the Commissioners to be completed in about a month, Commissioner Guy Mason declared:

"The liquor industry in the District is infected with trade practices which sooner or later will destroy it. The infection consists of the giving of secret rebates and discounts."

At the same time he said of the A. B. C. Board:

"There is nothing wrong with the Board itself. However, the board is not implemented as it should be—that is, it lacks sufficient personnel, particularly inspectors, and the regulations are not tight enough."

Committee Bows Out

Approving Mason's prepared statement on the question, the District Committee bowed out of a proposed study of the A. B. C. Board and left the matter in the hands of the Commissioners.

The action was taken at an executive committee session attended by ten members. Commissioners Mason and J. Russell Young and Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, who requested the investigation last week, expressed approval of Mason's preliminary study, saying, "I think we've accomplished what we set out to accomplish."

He stated, "I originally asked for this investigation because of the many conflicting statements made and the general confusion existing to the effect that all wasn't well with the liquor industry in the District. The statement of Commissioner Mason is self-explanatory. The Commissioners have indicated they will do something if anything is necessary."

Small Dealer Defended

Discussing the local liquor industry's practice of giving secret rebates and discounts, Commissioner Mason's statement continued:

"These practices definitely are to the advantage of the larger retail outlets, and consequently tend to hurt and cripple the smaller retail liquor merchants. It takes away that competition which normally flows from good merchandising to a form of cutthroat destructive competition gained by unfair practices.

"Most of the evil may, in my opinion, be removed by more stringent regulation and proper enforcement. The present regulation, in my opinion, are not adequate. Certainly the personnel of the ABC Board is insufficient numerically to enforce even the regulations which we now have.

"I shall recommend to the Commissioners an increase in personnel. Much of the work of enforcement of the regulations is left to the police, who have enough work to do strictly within the field of looking after the safety of the public without the added burden of doing work that the ABC Board should do."

Special legislation is not necessary to control the practice of secret rebates and discounts, Mason said, for provision for proceedings against such practice exists under the Federal Trade Commission Act.

He added, however, that "some legislation may be necessary in order to better control alcoholic beverages flowing into the District through other channels than licensed wholesalers."

High winds with yesterday's freezing cold fanned three house fires to multiple alarm proportions, brought death to a 52-year-old woman and caused thousands of dollars worth of damage.

Most spectacular of the fires was a five-alarm blaze at a rooming house and tourist's home at 2031 F Street Northwest. It was here that Mrs. Marian Hazel, 52, was killed in a jump from a third-floor window, and a fireman and two residents were injured.

Originating apparently on the third floor either in or near the Hazel apartment, the fire swept down a dumbwaiter shaft and enveloped the interior. It gained such headway that the first firemen to arrive immediately sounded a fifth alarm.

Eugene Baughman, 23-year-old sailor who lived in a back room on the first floor said he did not know the building was afire until smoke and flame burst into his room.

Grabbing a small trunk, containing most of his belongings, Baughman managed to reach the front door and safety. He suffered a cut hand struggling with the trunk.

Two other service men, Jerry Bond, 20, and G. V. Ottons, 27, U. S. Marines, working at the Navy Department, were in their room on the first floor when the fire started. They also said they just had time to run to the street before the flames swept their rooms.

Mike Papich, 24, a student at George Washington University, was at class a block away. By the time he arrived at the house his room was a mass of flames and all of his effects were destroyed. Included in the loss, he said, was a $100 defense bond.

Plunged to Her Death

Mrs. Hazel was instantly killed in a 35-foot drop from her apartment to a cement walkway on the west side of the building. Her body was taken to the District Morgue where it later was identified by her husband, Harry, a Government employe.

Two theories were advanced by firemen regarding Mrs. Hazel's plunge. It was said she either attempted to reach a fire escape adjacent to her windows and lost her balance or became panic stricken and jumped.

Fireman Edward J. Brosnan, 47, of 4625 Forty-sixth Street Northwest, aid of Stephen Porter, chief engineer, suffered a severe laceration of his head when he was struck by falling glass.

William Crosby, 22, a resident of the third floor, who is an auxiliary fireman, received a cut on his right wrist when he broke a window to reach a fire escape. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Fireman Hurt En Route

Private Alfred T. Gilliam, on call, was hurrying on his motorcycle to the rooming house when he swerved on Florida Avenue near North Capitol Street to avoid hitting a pedestrian. He was thrown from his vehicle and taken to Casualty Hospital with leg injuries.

Gillima, who is 32 years old and lives at 428 Eleventh Street Northeast, is attached to No. 11 Truck Company.

First alarm of fire was sounded at 1:13 p. m. and the fifth alarm was pulled five minutes later. When firemen arrived smoke and flames were shooting from the roof of the three-story brick structure and all three floors were a mass of flames.

Cause of the fire had not been determined last night. Unofficial estimates placed the damage at between $20,000 and $25,000.

The building is managed by Mrs. Amy Gauvreau, who was not home when the fire started.

Other fires yesterday included a three-alarm blaze in a business and apartment house at 1722 H Street Northwest, at 2 a. m., and a two-alarm fire at 823 Second Street Northwest. No one was hurt in either.

Trade Group Asks 2 More School Funds

Extension of the District's $14,297,352 school budget in two respects were asked yesterday by the Board of Trade public school committee.

An additional $30,000 a year to improve lighting facilities in school buildings over a three-year period was asked.

Provision of funds to purchase equipment and tools for vocational schools with the assurance that adequate priorities would be granted also was requested.

The group placed its stamp of approval on the remainder of the budget and referred to its curriculum subcommittee a suggestion by Dr. J. Herbert Garner, minister of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, that a weekday program of religious education be established.

George E. Keneipp, chairman of the committee, stated that both budget extensions would aid the defense effort. Better eyesight is a primary requirement for passing physical examinations for both military and civilian defense work, he pointed out, and vocational training "is an absolute necessity" for the arms equipment program.

Dr. Garner, who is chairman of a joint Protestant committee on weekday religious education, suggested the religious education program be instituted on an experimental basis in churches near schools for children whose parents have made written requests for the teaching. Under the plan, schools in four selected areas would be used.

The committee endorsed the recent action of the school board retaining high school competitive drills and the decision to complete the Kramer School for service as a school, rather than a Government office building.

Guests at the committee meeting which was held at Schneider's Restaurant included Renah F. Camalier, counsel of the Senate District Committee; Milo F. Christiansen, acting coordinator of recreation; Miss JessieLaSalle, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of educational research, and Dr. Julia L. Hahn, Grace Lind, Mrs. F. H. Rogers and Mrs. L. I. Ruediger, supervising principals of the Board of Education.

Train Kills Boy, 9, Block From Home At Gaithersburg

Royal Brown, who would have celebrated his ninth birthday with his twin sister, Elsa, Thursday, was killed last night by a train a block from his home in Gaithersburg. He was a third-grade student at the Gaithersburg school.

Royal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, thought he was home making model airplanes when the accident happened. There are both overpass and underpass roads at the tracks, but the boy apparently took a path across the tracks.

Besides his twin sister and parents, survivors include three brothers, George, jr., 14; Jack, 11, and Earl, 7, and a sister, Marian, 18.

Senate Unit Calls Housing Fund Parley

Dozen U. S. Officials To Be Asked How 50 Million Is to Be Spent Here

By Charles Mercer
Post Staff Writer

In an effort to determine exactly how the House-approved 50-million-dollar sum for war housing and public facilities in the District area is to be spent, a subcommittee of the Senate Education and Labor Committee next week will call a dozen Federal housing officials for a "round table" conference.

Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, the subcommittee chairman, said late yesterday: "If the agency heads can't agree on how the money is to be spent, we'll establish another agency, if we have to."

His answer to the dilemma of what form the Federal aid will assume, which has been argued before the full committee in two days of hearings by more than a score of witnesses, was: "Let the agency heads face one another."

His purpose of bringing order out of the confused local housing picture was echoed by other committee members at the close of yesterday's hearing.

Insist on Earmarking Funds

"I'm never going to consent to the reporting of this bill until everyone who has anything to do with the spending of this money comes down here and tells us what they're going to do with it," said Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, the committee chairman, and Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, also have voiced the advisability of earmarking funds under the bill in the course of the committee hearings.

No date has been set yet for the subcommittee conference with Federal and local housing heads.

Organized local real estate interests yesterday renewed their plea (1) not to erect permanent housing in the metropolitan area, lest the real estate market be deflated after the war, and (2) to give private enterprise a bigger hand in the job of construction.

The committee's attitude to their plea was summed up by Senator Taft, who declared: "You are asking us to change for Washington a Federal policy that has been fixed throughout the rest of the country. I think there's more of a chance of a continuing population in Washington after the war than in any other community in the country."

Favors Permanent Construction

Senator Ball (Republican), of Minnesota, also stressed the desirability of building permanent homes.

Arthur Goodwillie, director of the conservation service of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, propsed at the morning session a vast housing development on 85 blocks of Southwest Washington bounded by Delaware and Maine Avenues, the Pennsylvania Railroad and O Street.

Declaring that land was cheaper in that location and facilities are all immediately available, he said that the area was "a natural bedroom for Washington."

"If we continue building and building on the outskirts of the town we're going to have a ghost town in Washington," he added.

Roger J. Whiteford, attorney for the Washington Real Estate Board, urged construction of a dormitory on Union Station Plaza for single Government workers, as was used in the last war.

No Time for Theories, He Says

"The permanent housing proposed may be good housing, but it isn't good housing for the District," he argued. "Here's the Government sitting here with hundreds of acres of unused land. You and I won't care what such a plot as the Mall looks like before this war is over.

"We haven't got time to go into all the theories of housing. Our country's afire."

He proposed moving some Government offices to hotels at Atlantic City, Pinehurst, N. C., and Florida resorts.

"I'm in favor right now of having several other capitals," said Senator Thomas, "because people are not made very welcome by the real estate interests here. I think it's about time for the real estate associations to do something about conditions here, instead of just coming to Congress to complain."

Others Back Real Estate Groups

Joining with Whiteford in behalf of real estate associations were Rufus Lusk, of the Washington Taxpayers Association; N. C. Hines, president of the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax Real Estate Board; Robert Watkins, of the Prince Georges County Real Estate Board; Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the Washington Real Estate Board, and Waverly Taylor, president of the Home Builders Association of the Metropolitan Area.

Warner W. Gardner, Labor Department solicitor, told the committee that the difference between wages now paid on union and non-union construction projects in this area is "largely academic."

A request that the language of the bill provide for no racial discrimination was made by Edgar G. Brown, president of the United Government Employes Association.

Huver I. Brown, chairman of the legislative committee of the Federation of Civic Associations, objected to the practice of some landlords of dividing houses into tiny rooms, claiming that disease and crime are bred as a result.

Patrons Flee As Flames Sweep Tavern

A fire which started from an oil stove on the second floor last night destroyed a two-story Silver Hill, Md., building containing a tavern—Louie's Place. The dozen persons in the tavern at the time escaped injury.

Heat from the fire melted the main telephone trunk line to Southern Maryland.

A high wind and the fact that water had to be piped from Branch Avenue in the District handicapped Silver Hill and Oxon Hill, Md., firemen. The fire at the tavern, owned by Louis Carrico and located a quarter-mile over the District of Columbia line, blocked traffic on Southern Maryland Pike for a couple of hours.

Charnstrom Recital Has Native Air

By Ray C. B. Brown

Christine Charnstrom gives a piano recital Friday night in Pierce Hall. Program: Keltic Sonata (MacDowell), The Fountain of Acqua Paola and the White Peacock (Griffes), Burnt Rock Pool and The Irish Washerwoman (Sowerby), The Clown and The Little Paper Doll (Villa-Lobos), Brazilian Dance (Guarnieri), Criolla (Ginastera).

A very promising artistry was disclosed last evening by Christine Charnstrom at her piano recital in Pierce Hall which housed a friendly and encouraging audience. Of the commendations she merits, the first is for her unusual program of American music in the hemispheric sense of the adjective, containing works by three composers of the United States, two of Brazil and one of Argentina. The second is for her intelligent approach to the music she interpreted, the third for the sensitiveness of her performance and the fourth for her general technical competence.

BROWN

Since I last heard Miss Charnstrom play several years ago, she has made a marked advance both in musicianship and in execution. As she was then little more than a talented child, the change is not surprising in itself, but the notable thing about it is her growth in artistic finesse, and the emergence of personality in her playing.

It took not only independence of choice but courage as well for her to begin a recital with MacDowell's "Keltic" sonata, a work which mature pianists do not invariably essay with success. This music requires more than technical skill for its adequate projection, because it calls upon imagination and the resources of a poetic temperament. Miss Charnstrom does not yet thoroughly understand the sonata nor would one expect her to do so at her youthful stage, but she gave it a reading remarkable for sympathy.

In the following group she offered two of Charles Griffes' Roman sketches, "The Fountain of Acqua Paola" and "The White Peacock;" Leo Sowerby's "Burnt Rock Pool" from the "Northland Suite" and his "Irish Washerwoman." In the two middle numbers, the interpreter showed a delightful sense of poesy and the delicacy of touch that goes with it. Almost her only sign of nervousness in the recital was noticeable in the last Sowerby piece, which she took at too rapid a tempo.

In her concluding group she used two brilliant studies by Heitor Villa-Lobos, "The Clown" and "The Little Paper Doll;" Camargo Guarnieri's rhythmically difficult "Brazilian Dance" and Alberto Ginastera's intriguing "Criolla" which has an original and effective part for the left hand.

Mall Parking May Yet Be Authorized

Rep. Dirksen Hints He May Introduce House Legislation With That in View

Representative Everett M. Dirksen, ranking minority member of the House District Committee, hinted last night that he might introduce a bill authorizing parking in the Mall for the duration of the war.

Informed that the National Capital Park and Planning Commission had condemned proposals to utilize the mile-long expanse between the Capitol and Washington Monument for parking space, Dirksen responded:

"Well, you know it would only take a little bill by Congress to get it through."

"And maybe someone will introduce such a bill?" he was asked.

"Very likely," came the reply.

Dirksen's suggestion a few weeks ago that the Mall—both its roadways and green plots—be pressed into service to relieve parking congestion was subsequently taken up by Commissioner J. Russell Young. The latter urged that Government workers be permitted to use the area, provided each driver carried at least two passengers. The innovation, it was pointed out, would result in an appreciable tire saving.

Agency Prefers Fringe Parking

The planning agency's disapproval of Mall parking came on its indorsement of a report submitted this week to Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes by A. E. Demaray, associate director of the National Park Service. In it Demaray said the scheme would only increase traffic congestion during rush hours. He added that "fringe parking" is the logical solution and, besides, tire rationing will automatically reduce the number of cars driven to and from work downtown.

Further construction of temporary office buildings in the central area also was disapproved by the planning body, which recommended that they be located in outlying sections "with due regard to the zoning plan for those areas."

More than a score of these wartime structures have been built, or are now going up, along the edges of the Mall, in West Potomac Park and in the Monument Grounds.

Taking up defense housing the commission urged that a "sizable proportion" be built on the Virginia side of the Potomac to house employes of the huge War Department Building, which will be opened this spring.

Friendship Site Plan Approved

A site plan, submitted by Defense Homes Corporation, for apartment units to be erected on the newly acquired Friendship estate was approved. Favorable action also was taken on plans proposed by Arthur Goodwillie, of Home Owners Loan Corporation, for rehabilitation of nine square blocks in the Southwest section.

John Nolen, jr., director of planning, explained that the HOLC scheme visualizes a rehousing program which cost $927 per room, for new dwelling units, and at the rate of $352 per room on residences which could be restored to first-class living condition by extensive repairs and remodeling.

'Captains of the Clouds' Flies High at the Earle

Technicolor Starrer for James Cagney Is a Swift and Staggering Thriller; 'Samba Revue' Decorates the Stage

"CAPTAINS OF THE CLOUDS." Warner Brothers Technicolor picturization of a story by Arthur T. Horman and Roland Gillett, adapted to the screen by Mr. Horman, Richard Macauley and Norman Reilly Raine, starring James Cagney, with Dennis Morgan, Brenda Marshall, Alan Hale, George Tobias, Reginald Gardiner, J. M. Kerrigan, Clem Bevans, Russell Arms, Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, Reginald Denny, Paul Cavanagh, J. Farrell MacDonald, Patrick O'Moore, Morton Lowry, Squadron Leader O. Cathcart-Jones, Frederick Worlock, Roland Drew, Lucia Carroll, George Meeker, Benny Baker, Hardie Albright, Ray Walker, Charles Halton, Louis Jean Heydt and Willie Fung. Directed by Michael Curtiz. At the Earle Theater.

IN PRODUCING "CAPTAINS OF THE CLOUDS," the Warner Brothers have performed a double service.

Primarily they have provided the casual amusement-seeeker with a swift, spectacular and stirring entertainment. More important, they have utilized the romantic and melodramatic momentum generated by the early sequences to drive home the vital importance and enormity of the task of building an efficient air force to blast Axis superiority out of the skies. Both ends have been engrossingly and realistically achieved through the sturdy efforts of a splendid cast, expert direction and superb Technicolor photography.

Conscious of the success of the formula in their "Sergeant York," the makers of "Captains of the Clouds" have divided their story into two distinct and only remotely connected movements. The first half of the film makes no mention of war and has nothing to do with combat flying in the military sense. It devotes itself exclusively to the personal concerns of a group of bush pilots, merrily engaged in cutting each other's throats in the commercial transport business, love or whatever, in the picturesque wild lake country of northern Canada. It is an impetuous, hit-and-run and pretty rugged business, in which punches play almost as vital a part as propellers. In this movement, the piece might have been written by James Oliver Curwood, Stewart Edward White or Rex Beach in adventurous and romantic mood. It is out of these backwoods rivalries and antagonisms that spring the events that lead the warring bush pilots, with varying measures of personal glory, into the Royal Canadian Air Force. It is in this second half of the narrative that the picture lays a claim to genuine importance.

In its comprehensive survey of the methods and the accomplishments of the R. C. A. F., "Captains of the Clouds" approaches the grim realism and authenticity of "Target for Tonight," although one never loses consciousness of the fact that even this impressively actual segment of the story is being motivated largely by the fictional incidents that have preceded it. There was no fiction in "Target for Tonight." Had there been, it probably would have been called "Captains of the Clouds." As in that earlier documentary, the training station and flight sequences are participated in by the officers and enlisted personnel of the R. C. A. F. as well as the professional studio actors. Their official functions are as dramatic and as well executed as the Hollywood make-believe—which might understandably raise the question of precisely what makes an actor? Twice during the action, the voice of Prime Minister Winston Churchill is heard over the radio as a prelude to the Nazi attack on the flight of unarmed American-made bombers to Britain that provides the smashing climax with which the picture closes.

Cast Encompasses Every Mood

The characters in "Captains of the Clouds" are so diversified and the incidents so variegated that comedy, romance, bitterness, belligerence, failure, triumph, feminine duplicity and all of the other high and low impulses to which humans are susceptible enter into the mosaic that Technicolor makes so vivid. It is not surprising that James Cagney gives one of his best performances as the toughest and most resourceful and untractable of the bush pilots. It is the same role he played in "The Fighting Sixty-ninth" moved into the air. He still has Alan Hale at his side as a competitive pal, instead of a top sergeant, and George Tobias at his best, with Dennis Morgan and Reginald Gardiner to help along robustly in the humorous, romantic and sensationally violent episodes. For the first time in her screen life, Brenda Marshall has an opportunity to demonstrate her full worth as a vivacious, vixenish and beautiful little double-crossing gold-digger of the up-country, who finally reaches the bright lights. One of the picture's outstanding performances is turned in by Air Marshal W. A. "Billy" Bishop, who plays himself in a real acting role and does it with the skill of a veteran of something more than bringing down 72 enemy planes in the last war. Everyone else in the cast turns in his full quota of top work.

Harry Anger's new stage revue at the Earle is up to the measure of the screen feature in color and fast diversion. Spectacularly staged, it is a "Samba" item that enlists the services of Marqueta and Pancho, experts in that complicated Latin rhythm; Pepita and Lucia, exotic songstresses; Don Arres, one of the better of the tropical baritones, and Helene y Gorge—the "y" meaning "and"—with Walter Dare Wahl and his long-suffering partner added for their scrambled gymnastics, all dressed up in Latin-American elegance. The Roxyettes are equally flamboyant and even Jo Lombardi's orchestra, on stage, is rigged out in more ruffles than a Mardi Gras. The newsreel, principally an exhortation (in various disguises) to America to wake up and do something about the Axis, completes a monumental bill.

to whom Technicolor brings a new charm in the foremost feminine role, opposite James Cagney and Dennis Morgan, in the Warner Brothers production of "Captains of the Clouds," now on the screen at the Earle Theater. A huge cast and magnificent production distinguish this stirring film play of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the bush pilots from the "wilds"

LEONARD LYONS

Broadway Glossary

New York, Feb. 20.

JOB: In view of Winston Churchill's recent speech before Parliament, this is an appropriate story, revealed by Eleanor Roosevelt a few days ago. It concerns a discussion she had with Mr. Churchill when he was a guest at the White House. "You must feel an immense responsibility," Mrs. Roosevelt told him, "being the leader not only of so many people but of several nations" . . . "I am not their leader," replied the Prime Minister. "I merely express their will."

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

KISS: Tallulah Bankhead is in Lenox Hill Hospital for a seven-day rest between broadcasts. The star needs this rest because her radio work followed too quickly her appearance in "Clash by Night" . . . A few days ago Miss Bankhead saw a drama critic and kissed him. "I'm going to the hospital for a week," she teased, "and I wanted a good reason."

MISTAKE: On February 14 a small red-ribboned box arrived at the home of Ben Washer, Sam Goldwyn's Eastern representative. It was marked "Fragile. Handle With Care. Keep in Cool Place" . . . Ben's mother was positive that this was a Valentine. She carefully placed the delicate package in a cool place—first near the open window and then in the refrigerator . . . Mr. Washer arrived and opened the package. It contained some objects which were to be auctioned off in Philadelphia that night for the Navy Relief Fund. It was the complete sequin costume Barbara Stanwyck wore in the opening scene of "Ball of Fire."

CHATTER: Walter Reuther, who will address the Industrial Conference Board this week, will say: "One year ago I asked for the immediate conversion of our automobile plants to a wartime basis. Now I ask that the whole country be converted to wartime basis" . . . Paul V. McNutt is expected within the next two weeks to receive his reward for having sacrificed his campaign for the Vice Presidency . . . David Lowe, operator of the Millpond Playhouse, will coproduce and direct William Saroyan's "Jim Dandy." Lee Shubert will be associated in the production . . . Leon Carr, the author of the new tune, "Carry On, Mr. Churchill," lives at 10 Downing Street in New York.

LAMENT: Mary Boland was showing a prospective tenant through her Hollywood home. The prospect was shown all the rooms and finally Miss Boland's elegant bedroom. "This is a lovely room," the star was assured . . . Miss Boland sighed: "And nobody in it when I come home from the theater to tell me: 'Darling, you milked the most wonderful new laugh out of your lines today.'"

INFLUENCE: Mrs. Van Deusen, wife of Fort Monmouth's Gen. Van Deusen, relates this incident: She was one of the hostesses at a reception given in the Recreation Hall. A recruit invited her to dance and she obliged . . . "Say, lady, I'm enjoying this," the soldier told her. "I think I'm going to like this place—once I get next to the General" . . . "And that shouldn't be difficult," said Mrs. Van Deusen . . . "Oh, you know him?" asked the recruit . . . Mrs. Van Deusen nodded . . . "How well do you know him?" asked the recruit, eagerly . . . "Confidentially," the general's wife replied, "I'm going to have breakfast with him in the morning."

ENTERPRISE: Air Marshal Billy Bishop, the Allies ace of the last war, came to New York last week to attend the premiere of the aviation picture, "Captains of the Clouds." He discussed the reasons for the cooperation given by the RCAF in the making of this movie . . . "But this picture won't recruit any Americans for the RCAF, now that we're at war too," a New Yorker insisted . . . "But I'm thinking of peace," said Bishop, who downed over 70 German planes. "The bush-country scenes in the movie should bring a lot of tourists to Northern Canada after the war."

INTUITION: Rupert Hughes saw the new Leslie Howard movie, "Mr. V," in which the leading lady refers to her feminine intuition. "Women's intuition," said Hughes later, "is the result of millions of years of not thinking."

AIM: For the first time in its long history there's two-way traffic on the Burma Road. Going up, the trucks are loaded with munitions; coming back, they're loaded with soldiers. This is another accomplishment of Daniel Arnstein, the United States Commissioner to the Burma Road . . . In Chungking one day, Arnstein and Chiang Kai-shek watched Jap planes score bull's-eyes on unprotected objectives. "The test of a flier's aim really comes when someone's returning his fire," said Arnstein. The American fliers in Burma now are returning that fire, downing over 100 planes and sustaining amazingly few casualties. That prompted Chiang Kai-shek's message. "Their aim's no longer good. For which, Good, Good."

HEDDA HOPPER

Twixt Cup and Lip!

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 20. Well, Hollywood slipped again. At least, some intelligent guys at RKO studio did, when they underestimated the drawing power of Fibber McGee and Molly in the picture "Look Who's Laughing." Even though we know their weekly audience is more than five times that of any Hollywood motion picture star, still when they were making their first picture, the big-wigs of the studio thought so little of them that they didn't ask for an option on their services. Now that it's breaking records and studio wants them for another, Fibber and Molly have been signed at four times their former salary. And that's why certain men are looking for new jobs.

GRETA GARBO

Metro's been dropping quite a few old-timers, but I hear Louis B. Mayer said, "As long as I'm head of this studio, Greta Garbo can go on making pictures here."

Off to Sun Valley over the weekend went Claudette Colbert, hoping to win another skating or ski record. No, her husband, Dr. Joel Pressman, couldn't go. His own practice and duties at the Naval Base keep him hopping.

Ruth Hussey, on "Information Please," was certainly a credit to our industry. She's the best Hollywood celebrity they've had yet. Her answers were not only correct but intelligent. I'll give her 100 for trying to answer everything. John Carradine will be their next victim.

It's pretty definite that Jimmy and Bill Cagney will take their star-brother combination and make their future pictures for United Artists.

George Montgomery's pet name for Hedy Lamarr is "Penny." She's had letters protesting about the pigtails she's wearing in "Tortilla Flat," so when she becomes Bill Powell's wife in her next, she'll sport five different hair-do's—much to the delight of Sidney Guilaroff.

Buddy De Sylva has been trying to get in touch with Ernest Hemingway through his mother-in-law. Buddy wants him to look over Dudley Nichols' screenplay of "For Whom the Bell Tolls." The last heard from Hemingway, he was in Cuba—but he ain't there now.

Which reminds me that Veronica Lake has been ordered to let her hair grow longer so she can again cover one side of her face in "I Married a Witch."

Fred Astaire's best dancing shoes are on their way to London to be auctioned off for charity. But I'm willing to wager there's no one there who will fill them as well as Fred . . . Since "Roxie Hart," all is peace and love between Darryl Zanuck and Bill Wellman. In fact, Darryl would like Bill to make "Twentieth Century his permanent home.

Deanna Durbin's next will be the remake of "The Phantom of the Opera," which may be made in color.

The reason Frances Dee has been off the screen for so long is that she got fed up with those sweet dames. But when she found a woman to her liking in "Meet the Stewarts," she grabbed it quick. When Frances had to do one of those long kisses with Bill Holden in a taxicab, for her very first scene, Director Al Green yelled, "Comeon, kids! Put more pep into it." Whereupon, Frances replied, "Perhaps we could do it better if somebody introduced us."

Well, Humphrey Bogart's fan club magazine is being edited by Louis Bromfield! "Never clapped my eyes on such stuff," said Louis. "I've got to get in on this!" So he's written three pieces for them. —seriously, mind you!

Ben Blue says our glamour girls are a hard bunch—it takes a diamond to make any impression on them!

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Sewing Fertile 'Seed'

Hollywood, Feb. 20 (INS).—The hottest book in Hollywood today is "Dragon Seed," Pearl S. Buck's new novel.

DAVID O. SELZNICK

In less than two weeks over 335,000 copies have been sold. I know I became so interested I read to the wee sma' hours and couldn't put the story down. Certainly it's Mrs. Buck's best book since "Good Earth"—and timely, since it shows what the Chinese suffered at the hands of the Japanese. "Good Earth" broke all records, and "Dragon Seed" seems likely to equal the sales. Bidding for the film rights is going on at a great rate and at this writing David O. Selznick and Paramount have the inside track.

Another of Mrs. Buck's stories, "China Sea," is being readied for production at R.K.O. No one in America knows China better than Mrs. Buck, who lived there so many years, and R.K.O. is going to make it a big production.

Good thing Maureen O'Sullivan has a sense of humor. She never wanted to do the "Tarzan" roles at M-G-M, but once she started couldn't stop, for she and Johnny Weissmueller became extremely popular as a team. Now Mauren has left M-G-M and signed a two-picture deal with Sol Lesser, for United Artists release. And guess what? One of her pictures will be "Tarzan." Remember, Sol had the rights to several of Edgar Rice Burroughs' stories and there was a discussion at one time between him and M-G-M on "Tarzan."

R. K. O. has bought Leo McCarey's contract from Howard Hughes and, if you ask me, Leo must be a Houdini to get out from under a Hughes contract. Howard, more than any other producer, has a habit of signing people and then letting them sit and sit and sit—refusing to lend them to other studios or give up their contracts. Look at Jane Russell and Jack Beutel. They'll be playing character roles before their next movie assignment, unless Howard relents soon. Their one movie, "The Outlaw," has never been released. However, to get back to Leo's R. K. O. deal, he's bringing R. K. O. two scripts—one for Cary Grant, which means Cary will have to bow out of Arnold Pressburger's "Tomorrow Never Comes."

When Oscar Serlin was here a few days ago he offered M.-G.-M. a terrific amount of money to lend him Spencer Tracy to star in the John Steinbeck play, "The Moon Is Down." But the offer was refused because Spencer is needed on the home lot and couldn't be spared for a Broadway run. Steinbeck asked for Spencer, who is starring in his "Tortilla Flats."

Metropolitan

Representative of the marital comedy category in the film lists of several weeks ago and since displaced as it displaced others of similar genre before it, "Bedtime Story" reopened yesterday on the Metropolitan screen. This is frisky farce with Frederic March and Loretta Young in the foreground.

That surprising state, bigamy, plays its role in this farce as it has in others before it. Miss Young plays a popular actress who tires of the stage and wishes her colleague-husband would too. But no. So she undertakes marriage with a stuffy banker, finds him not so stuffy after all and then embarks on a somewhat devastating course of activity.

Accent of "Bedtime Story" is on the gay and giddy without too much emphasis placed on sense-making. The character roles are outstanding with Robert Benchley, Allyn Joslyn, Helen Westley, Tim Ryan, Eve Arden, Clarence Kolb, Andrew Tombes and Dorothy Adams in some of the top spots.

Pix

"Girl From Leningrad" will conclude its revival run at the Pix Theater Sunday evening, giving place the following afternoon to the Gloria Swanson-Melvyn Douglas comedy "Tonight or Never."

The film from the Soviet Studios is outstanding for its authentic scenes of military warfare in the land of snow and ice. These sequences were filmed at the front during the Russo-Finnish war. The title role, that of a Red Cross nurse who endures the harshness of war, the rigors of cold and the tortures of love, is memorably played by Zoya Fyodorova, evidently one of the Soviet's screen beauties. The entire cast is Russian, but there are adequate subtitles in English.

Without Shirley Povich

DIS AND DAT

I wonder of somebody is running a pool based on the ice hockey scores . . . sports department phone calls indicate as much . . . Speaking of hockey, the Johnstown team of the Eastern Amateur League was taken over by the players when backers withdrew . . . The other night they battled their way into the league lead . . . might be a good idea for the St. Louis Browns to try it . . . Somebody writes in to say now that baseball will give passes to service men, why don't the race tracks have a free gate for men in uniform and a 50-cent window so they can bet . . . I can picture that 50-cent show line now with Art Brown at the window wearing a borrowed middy blouse . . . A. A. U. weight-lifters will hold a meeting tonight at the Dulin gym . . . I think I'll go up and see if I can't thumb a lift . . . Eddie Lloyd, editor of the U. S. Coast Guard magazine, reminds me that, despite being busily engaged in sweeping our coasts free of submarines, the gobs are not forgetting sports activities . . . The Coast Guardsmen are now wrapped up in a basketball series to determine the champions of the Atlantic Coast . . . The favorite clubs are those of New London, Ellis Island and Baltimore.

Shirley Povich is scheduled to begin filling this space again on Monday morning . . . he has been vacationing in Florida . . . Al Hailey, former boxing editor and feature writer supreme for our paper, came to town for a visit this week . . . he is a first lieutenant in the Air Corps . . . And if looks make an aviator, he should be Eddie Rickenbacker No. 2 . . . Friend Frank G. Menke, who now beats the publicity drums for the Kentucky Derby and who probably has done more sports history research than any living man, has a pet beef . . . He contends that the 100th baseball anniversary celebration was all wet and that the Abner Doubleday-Cooperstown origin of the game is a myth . . . Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes once said that baseball was one of the sports of his college days at Harvard . . . and Holmes graduated with the class of 1829 . . . did you know that from 1867 to 1887 the batsman could call for a high ball or a low ball? . . . I'll take a high-ball . . . in 1879 a batter didn't get a base on balls until the pitcher had thrown nine bad ones . . . I have heard New York horse race players beat their gums in agony because Florida takes 15 per cent of all money bet at Hialeah and Tropical Park . . . These are the same guys who patronized the bookmakers around the New York tracks before the mutuels came into that State . . . The bookies used to take 40 per cent and up.

Most race fans are familiar with mudders . . . some horses run better when the tracks are not fast . . . but did you know that some jockeys ride better on sloppy and muddy tracks? . . . this is true . . . They are the boys who have the knack of holding a horse's head up so he will not stumble . . . now prove I'm wrong . . . The favorite card game among the U. S. Capital reporters is seven-card, high and low poker . . . I was in a dealer's choice game in Florida and they played high and low with two cards—one down and the other up . . . try it sometime . . . I had a letter from some North Carolina Elks asking if a pool player has to move the object ball when playing safe with the cue ball frozen . . . I said no, but the cue ball must hit at least one cushion . . . Cost me half of my messenger's pay for months at the Weather Bureau to be able to answer that one . . . Russ Hodges, who does a fine job on WOL's sportspage, is out of the barrel . . . at least he is out of that cast that reached from his waist to his chin . . . the vertebrae fractured in an auto accident are almost as good as new . . . A game guy, this Hodges . . . He radioed those Redskin battles last fall when he looked like a fugitive from W. W. Chamber's . . . It has been estimated that golfers pay caddies 42 million dollars a year for 5 million rounds of golf . . . It is said that horseshoe pitchers can trace the origin of their sport back to the time immediately following the invention of horseshoes . . . A mere lapse of 2500 to 3000 years . . . You do the tracing, I'm tired.

ᔓᔕ

Mrs. Frank J. McSherry, well-known in fox hunting circles, is chairman of the publicity committee for the Redland Hunt's point-to-point races booked for March 7 . . . Her husband recently was promoted to an Army general . . . But if another Paul Revere ride is needed, I'll still take Mrs. McSherry . . . The best way to skin an eel is to nail the head to a tree, cut a ring below the fins, grasp skin with pliers and pull . . . It's been a long time since I skinned the cat . . . Those of us who can remember 1917 and 1918 are beginning to notice that the word "slacker" isn't being used so far in connection with the current war . . . Certainly hope Dick Todd will be his old, hard running self by the time the Redskins get in action next fall . . . however, his injury—a torn outside, lateral ligament—is a mighty serious one, so I'm told . . . Wonder if the Redskins will train next year at San Diego . . . Ossie Bluege, of our Nats, is an accountant at the Mayflower Hotel during the off season . . . The boys in the office are betting even money that Povich's first column after his vacation will start with the words, "Remember me?"

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 20.—Take out your watch, if you're lucky enough to be in possession of it at the moment, and notice how long it takes for the second hand to traverse seven seconds.

Not long, eh? Two breaths. A few tiny ticks in the eternal ticking of time. And yet tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden, in the New York A. C.'s annual indoor track meet, a fellow named Leslie MacMitchell will make deathless headlines in the sports world if he betters, by even half of those inconsequential clock ticks, the existing record for the mile race.

CONSIDINE

He shares the record now with Glenn Cunningham and Chuck Fenske. It is four minutes seven and four-tenths of one second His coach seems to think that tomorrow night presents MacMitchell with his great chance. Unbeaten in something like 20 straight mile races, he is at his peak. There is even talk of his trying to equal Glenn Cunningham's famed 4:04.4 mile, which was set with the help of three separate pacemakers.

Ran as if Connected to Fine Watch

To us, it's astonishing, maybe miraculous, that three men like Cunningham, Fenske and MacMitchell could in different years, under different conditions, run one mile in exactly the same amount of seconds and fractions of seconds. They were bred differently, grew up in different parts of the country, had wholly different tastes—and yet they ran as if they were somehow connected to a fine watch and wholly subservient to its spring and cogs and stem.

There is a completely incomprehensible ceiling on human endeavor, so far as track and field is concerned. That ceiling rises from time to time but so microsopically as to defy description. Fifty years ago, for instance, the best runners ran the 100 yards dash in ten seconds. Today they run it in 9.4 seconds. In other words, the result of better shoes, better tracks, better training conditions, better knowledge of diet and better grasp of the science of running have all added up to shave just six tenths of a second off the time in which a human being can gallop 100 yards.

The difference then between the bewhiskered champion of another era, and the lean "fastest human" of today, is summd up in the blink of an eye. Blink your eyes very quickly and try to imagine how many inches a man could run in that space of time during which your eyes were closed, and you get a pretty good idea of just how far ahead of the 1892 runner the 1942 runner would finish.

Warmerdam's Vault Mark Cited

The most astonishing bit of record-breaking in recent track and field annals has been the pole vaulting of Corny Warmerdam. By adding just five inches to the 175 inches which had been the limit for some time, Warmerdam became the first man ever to pole vault 15 feet. It practically ran the war off the front pages so far as the track fans were concerned. You can imagine the state of utter, unbelieving joy which seized fans who for years have gone into swoons over microscopic fragments of seconds and atomic bits of inches. Five, full, fat, incredible inches!

It seems to us that when a record is broken in other sports it is kicked into dust. Joe DiMaggio's consecutive hitting streak, for instance. Babe's homers. The offensive play of the Chicago Bears. Pvt. Barrow's knockout record. Bob Jones' grand slam. And the basketball marks. These records seem durable enough to sink a tooth into and hold on to, down the years.

We've often wondered why some bloke doesn't come along and run a mile in three and a half minutes, or a hundred yards in five seconds, or grab a 300-foot bamboo pole and pole vault 30 feet, two and four-twenty-ninths of an inch. Some freak, we mean. You'd think the law of averages would produce such performances as the years roll along.

Wilson and Central Win, Play for Title

Red Raiders Bow, 33-28, Riders, 28-24

Western Defeated In One of Biggest Interhigh Upsets; Title Game Tonight

By Bill Burnett

The champion's mantle, which Roosevelt High's basketball team has worn for two years, was roughly knocked from its shoulders last night at Tech gym as Wilson and Central, underdogs in the playoff for public school supremacy, earned places in the 1941-42 championship game tonight.

Wilson accounted for the end of Roosevelt's reign, chopping out a 28-24 triumph after trailing by as many as 9 points. Central's entrance in the most important game of the interhigh series tonight was achieved at the expense of Western, 33-28, in one of the greatest upsets ever recorded here.

Tech's gym was packed to the rafters for last night's pair of battles, which saw both winners reverse earlier decisions. An even larger crowd, if possible, is anticipated tonight when the forces of Central and Wilson settle the title issue, preceded by a tangle of Eastern and Coolidge "futures" at 7:30.

Because the Tigers of Wilson were forced to come from behind to stop the defending champions, they stole the spotlight last night. And well they deserved it, clearly outlasting the Riders after falling far behind at first.

Freddy Vinson, Tiger captain, got the first point of the game, but that was the extent of Wilson scoring in the first period. Meanwhile Roosevelt amassed a 6-to-1 lead on the strength of points by four players. Quickly the Riders boosted their edge to 12 to 3 as the second quarter began, but it didn't last.

Slender Johnny Coffey, a first-year man, rang up three straight baskets as the session ended, which, along with Buddy Lemerise's two-pointer, cut the Tigers' deficit to 11 to 12 at intermission.

Vikings Pull Surprise

It was nip and tuck throughout the third quarter, Roosevelt again holding a one-point, 17 to 16 margin. Two minutes of the final stanza had gone by when Wilson went out front for the first time on Don Hillock's first points of the game. Before it was over, Hillock had tallied eight and the Tigers were safely "in."

Tying Hillock's late splurge was Dick Koester, Raider guard, who profited by Stan Patton's interference with the cords on one of his shots.

Fans who thought Central had no chance against the polished Western Raiders figured its early drive was a false alarm. The Vikings led by 10-5 and 18-13 as the first two quarters ended. They were still going strong in the third period, however, and by the end of hostilities were merely holding their foe safely at bay.

With Donny Cross holding Teddy Thomaides to two field goals, Central split up scoring. Bill Kelly, who registered 6 straight points midway of the third period, managed for 10 points to tie the Raiders' Jimmy Karas, who was successful on foul shots.

Ray Robinson Stops Berger In 2d Round

By the United Press

New York, Feb. 20.—Slender Ray Robinson, extended boxing's longest winning string to 117 straight victories—amateur and professional—tonight by scoring a technical knockout over Maxie Berger, former Canadian lightweight and welterweight champion, at 1:43 of the second round.

Robinson, a brown-lightning Negro from Harlem, exploded a left hook in Maxie's face after about a minute of the second round, and squat Berger rocketed backwards through the air to land in a sitting position on the canvas. He was up at the count of eight, but it was apparent to the 12,464 fans in Madison Square Garden that he was through for the night.

Robinson tore after him, beating him into a corner and then dropped him near midring with a hard left hook. Referee Frankie Fullam stepped in without waiting for a count, motioned Robinson to his corner and helped Berger to his feet. It was the first time rugged Berger ever had been stopped in nearly 100 professional battles.

In the first round Robinson, a dancing dynamiter, tried to put his man away, but couldn't connect squarely. Once, when he missed near the ropes, Maxie swarmed into him and landed a hard left and right to the face. Those were virtually the only punches landed by squat Maxie during the abbreviated bout, which had been scheduled for 12 rounds.

Berger's Manager Complains

Robinson, outstanding contender for Freddie Cochrane's welterweight crown, registered his twenty-eighth professional victory and his twenty-second professional knockout. Before he turned professional, he scored 89 consecutive amateur triumphs, including 63 kayoes.

Robinson tonight weighed 144 pounds, just one and a half less than Berger. But his advantages in speed, boxing skill and punch were evident in the first exchange, when Maxie was spun backward on his heels by Ray's thundering left hook.

Berger's manager, Tony Dio, complained in the dressing room that the bout had been stopped too quickly. He claimed Maxie wasn't hurt badly, that he was on the floor only twice and that the New York Commission rules permit a fighter in a nonchampionship bout to be floored three times in a round before the bout should be stopped.

Referee Fullam said: "What did Dio want his boy to do—get killed?"

Sammy Secreet, 146½, Pittsburgh, drew with Norman Rubio, 144¾, Albany, N. Y. (8).

Maxie Shapiro, 132½, New York, outpointed Sal Bartolo, 127½, Boston (8).

Gus Levine, 123¾, New York, drew with Joe Aponte Torres, 124, Puerto Rico (4).

Henry Vasquez, 133, Harlem, outpointed Morris Parker, 130¼, Newark, N. J. (6).

Tarheels Win Over Terp Five, 34 to 30

North Carolina's basketball club successfully froze the ball in the last few minutes of its game last night and gained a 34-30 Southern Conference victory over the University of Maryland at College Park.

The Tarheels managed to stay in front virtually throughout. Maryland tied it at 29-all with 3 minutes to go, but the visitors' Paine sank a free throw, followed by Capt. Bob Rose's pair of two-pointers for the triumph.

North Carolina opened by holding the Terps scoreless in the first eight minutes of play and at intermission held a 23-13 margin. In the beginning of the second half, Maryland reversed the situation by holding the visitors scoreless for 7 minutes while edging to 23-21.

Shots by Wilson again increased the Tarheel lead to 27-21. Mearle Duvall and Ernie Travis combined to deadlock the contest at 29-29, only to have Paine's free throw put the Tarheels in the lead and then came Rose's two baskets, the last shot coming with 15 seconds of the game remaining.

Skiiers of Dartmouth Take Carnival Lead

Middlebury, Vt., Feb. 20 (AP).—Dartmouth set the pace today in the intercollegiate ski union championships as skiiers from 10 colleges opened the eleventh Middlebury college winter carnival.

Bob Meservey's victory in the downhill kept the Indians out front—3 points ahead of a favored New Hampshire team which won top honors at Dartmouth's own carnival. Middlebury was third.

Hoyas Bow To Scranton Five, 51-38

By the Associated Press

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 20.—Scranton ended an eight-game basketball losing streak tonight by plastering a 51-38 defeat on Georgetown. It was Scranton's first victory since Coach Ed Coleman resigned several weeks ago. The Tommies now boast a record of seven wins against 14 defeats.

A small crowd of 400 watched Capt. Joey Thomas and Leo Kelly, Scranton's smallest warriors, lead the Tommies to victory over the Hoyas. Thomas with seven field goals and two fouls for 16 points, was high scorer for the evening.

Behind by 12 points at 28-16 at half-time, the Hoyas put on their greatest threat to get within four points midway of the second half. But at this point, Kelly rimmed two of his three goals and flipped a pass to Thomas for another to seal Georgetown's doom.

The Washingtonians depended mostly on long tosses with Don Martin starring in this respect with a half dozen double deckers for 12 points.

American Girls Ski to Victory

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 20 (U.P.)—America girl skiers defeated their Canadian sisters today in the first event of the two-day competition for the Kate Smith Trophy.

Dorothy Hoyt, of Schenectady, N. Y., won the first heat over the five-eighths mile course. Her time was 2:03.4. Miss Hoyt's teammate, Joan Hinton, of Bennington, Vt., was second in 2:05.2.

Harbert and Mangrum Pace Field With 69s

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Feb. 20.—Handsome Chick Harbert, of Battle Creek, Mich., celebrated his twenty-seventh birthday today by shooting an early 35-34—69 to set the pace in the first round of the $5000 New Orleans Open, but Lloyd Mangrum, of Oakpark, Ill., spoiled his party by tying him almost five hours later with a 36-33—69.

Right behind them came Henry Picard, of Oklahoma City, two-time winner and defending champion of the tournament, with 37-33—70, and Clayton Heafner, of Linville, N. C., and Jack Grout, of Pittston, Pa., with 36-34—70 each.

Heafner went into the clubhouse to receive an overdue telegram telling him to report to his draft board at Linville on February 18—two days ago. Heafner said he would leave immediately for Linville.

Mangrum Has Tough Break

Mangrum, who "arrived" as a big time golfer last season, missed taking the undisputed lead when a putt stopped on the lip of the eighteenth cup. Harbert was short on several putts that would have sent him ahead.

"I kept hitting them harder and harder on each hole and they went straight for the cup, but they just seemed to stop short," Chick said.

Sam Snead, of Hot Springs, Va., turned in the best shot and the best act of sportsmanship seen all day. Stymied by several trees on the seventeenth, he sent his ball low through a narrow opening. As he addressed the ball for the next shot it rolled slightly and Sammy charged himself with a stroke, although no one else had seen the ball move.

Followed by the day's largest gallery, Snead finished with 36, 35—71, tied with Johnny Revolta, of Evanston, Ill., at 35, 36—71.

Tied for low amateur standing were Earl Stewart, National Intercollegiate champion from Louisiana State University, with 37, 35—72 and Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans, who also won the country's college title while at L. S. U. Haas shot 36, 36—72.

Wisconsin Boxers Open 10th Season By Routing Miami

By the Associated Press

Madison, Wis., Feb. 20.—Wisconsin opened its tenth intercollegiate boxing season tonight with a 7½ to ½ point victory over Miami University.

A crowd of 9500 saw the Badgers win seven of eight bouts. The 155-pound fight between Don Miller, of Wisconsin, and Starr Horton, of Miami, was ruled no decision after being stopped in the first round as Horton suffered a cut above the eye.

Yanks' Rosar, Branch Sign Their Contracts

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The New York Yankees announced today they had received the signed contracts of Catcher Buddy Rosar and Pitcher Norman Branch, making 14 of the world champions who have come to terms for 1942.

The advance guard of the Yankees will leave tomorrow for St. Petersburg, Fla., where Manager Joe McCarthy will put the batterymen to work Sunday.

Pictor Runs Last Over Muddy Oval

Overnight Purse Goes to Howard Star by 2 Lengths Over Sir Marlboro

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 20.—Charles S. Howard's Mioland, one of the more famous refugees from Santa Anita, today made his Florida debut and immediately stamped himself a horse to be seriously reckoned with in the Widener Handicap when he easily led home four rivals in the mile and a furlong Opa-Locka Purse, an overnight affair decided on a sloppy track.

Under 124 pounds, the big 5-year-old registered by two lengths in 1:51 1-5, piloted by Leon Haas. Mrs. J. Eitinger's Sir Marlboro, called the king of the grass performers here and a muchly improved horse this season, was second by four lengths over Porter's Cap, which Howard shipped here with Mioland.

But while one big name horse was living up to his reputation, another faded badly. W. L. Brann's Pictor went postward a 4-to-5 favorite and wound up dead last, thoroughly trounced, although he is regarded as capable of running in bad footing. City Talk was fourth, a length behind Porter's Cap and three lengths before Pictor. The Howard entry paid $6.70.

Mioland added $1100 to his previous earnings of $224,450. Last year he was third largest money winner behind Whirlaway and Big Pebble with gleanings of $123,520. The Howard star had not started since July 26, but Tom Smith, his trainer, had the veteran primed for his return to competition.

Sir Marlboro, himself well backed, was rushed to the front going to the first turn, with Porter's Cap, a colt with more than $100,000 in earnings, hot on the trail. Mioland was reserved off that pair. Haas made his move rounding out of the backstretch as did Maurice Peters on Pictor, while Porter's Cap dropped back.

Mioland drew almost even with Sir Marlboro, a noneligible for the Widener, before turning for home. A furlong from the finish, the bounding bay began drawing away and was not fully extended approaching the wire. Pictor flattened out badly, allowing Porter's Cap and City Talk to splash past him with ease.

St. Joseph's Wins From Va., 50 to 37

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—Shooting from all angles St. Joseph's overwhelmed Virginia, 50 to 37, in the first game of a college basketball double-header at Convention Hall before 3200 tonight. Temple and West Virginia clashed in the afterpiece.

The setback ended Virginia's four-game winning streak.

Shots by Norm Butz, Bob Boyland, George Senesky and Don Stahl gave the Hawks an 8-0 jump at the start They increased this to 18-6 before Bill Pickett rimmed one for the Cavaliers. The Southerners pulled up to 28-15 at halftime, but failed to further reduce the margin in the second half.

Senesky and Dick Wiltshire were high scorers for their respective teams.

Fights Mark Hockey Eagles' 6-3 Victory

By Jack Munhall

Paul Courteau's $50 "peace bond" deflated sharply in value last night as the fiery Washington Eagle was a central figure in a first-period riot that featured the club's overtime 6-3 victory over the Boston Olympics before 2965 Riverside Stadium hockey fans.

Even the fact that Courteau backed away from a fight for the first time in memory probably won't save Eagles' Owner Severine G. Leoffler the half hundred smackers he posted only Thursday with league headquarters to guarantee Courteau's future good behavior on the ice.

Under terms of the bargain, unprecedented for the Eagles, Courteau was to be involved in no more "serious trouble," which is an understatement for what happened last night after Courteau was set upon by Cy Beigler, of the Olympics.

Fan Clouts Baranowski

Sorriest victim of the ruckus was big Al Baranowski, of the Olympics, who was incapacitated for the remainder of the battle when a burly bleacherite closed his right eye with a roundhouse right. Teammate Ty Andersen said three stitches were taken above the eye of the 215-pound Baranowski, and two under. Following the match Baranowski was removed on a stretcher to Emergency Hospital.

Baranowski was attacked by a lumberjack-clad spectator after he had checked popular little Freddy Weaver of the Eagles into the boards and then roughed him up as they rolled over the ice together. No arrests were made after the incident which saw Baranowski strike Lieut. John W. Unmack, of the emergency first aid squad with his stick. Un-

High-Flying Devils Face G. W. Tonight

Duke University's defending Southern Conference champions will bring a 14-game winning streak and one of the best basketball records in the Nation to Riverside Stadium tonight to meet George Washington at 8:45 p. m.

Beaten only once in 17 starts by Temple in Philadelphia, the Blue Devils have 12 consecutive conference triumphs to their credit plus a victory over Tennessee's Sugar Bowl champs, Navy. Rider College and Kentucky's Georgetown College.

George Washington's not-too-impressive standing of eight victories and six defeats is paled by the great record of the North Carolinians. However, on their home court and with a club that lost five of its first seven games before it started to click the Colonials will not be far short of an even money choice at game time.

Started From Bottom

Coach Eddie Cameron, who in 14 years as Duke basketball mentor has never finished with a losing team, has molded his present aggregation from last year's reserves and three sensational sophomores. The 1940-41 defending conference champions, starring Glenn Price, Bill Mock, Chuck Holley, Cy Valasek and Eddie Shokes left in a body when diplomas were presented last June.

Cameron has not five but nine "regulars," and Duke's successes to date are due largely to Cameron's smooth handling of the replacements which gradually wear the opposition down. Starting tonight will doubtless be Hap Spuhler, Sam Rothbaum, Clyde Allen, Bill McGahan and Bill Stark, all but Stark lettermen of last year.

But on the sidelines, ready for instant duty, will be the sophomore Loftis brothers, Cedric and Garland, the former Duke's high-scorer for the season, John Seward and Bob Gantt. Gantt and the Loftis brothers were members of the championship Durham High team, which compiled a brilliant scholastic record over three consecutive years.

Duke Holds Series Edge

Duke holds a 2-1 edge in the George Washington series over the last two years. Last year, the Colonials' last season out of the conference fold, they beat the Devils, 48-38, at Tech but lost, 44-37, in Durham. This year in the third game of a Southern trip they lost a tough one, 38-37, the night after losing to Wake Forest.

19 Mudders Named for $10,000 McLennan Handicap Today

Scratches May Reduce Field to 14

Dit and War Relic Probable Favorites; Widener Preview 'Wide Open' Race

By the United Press

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 20.—Nineteen of the swiftest thoroughbreds in training at Hialeah Park were entered tonight for the ninth running of the $10,000 added McLennan Handicap—a "take your pick" race on a muddy track.

Tomorrow's feature is a preview of the $50,000 Widener, richest stake in winter racing, and many of the highly regarded eligibles for the March 7 classic were entered, including War Relic, Market Wise, Our Boots, Haltal, Dit, Get Off, Gramps and Ponty. All are mudders.

Twenty-five horses were entered last year and there was only one scratch, making it necessary to run the 1941 McLennan in two divisions, but officials believed that scratches tomorrow would bring this year's field down to a workable size. The starting gate is limited to 14.

Haltal Starts Again

Haltal won the first division last year and was ready to go the mile and a furlong distance again tomorrow with the same jockey, Conn McCreary. Royal Man, which placed, and Get Off, an also ran in the first division, also are back for another try.

Circle M Ranch's Big Pebble won the second division last year and went on to triumph in the Widener and it was highly probable that the 1942 victor in the $50,000 event was somewhere in tomorrow's field.

Arnold Hanger's Dit, carrying 110 pounds, was listed at 5-2 tonight with Glen Riddle Farm's War Relic, top-weighted at 126, the second favorite at 3-to-1. But such competition as Louis Tufano's Market Wise, the Woodvale farm entry of Haltal and Our Boots, Circle M's couplet of Get Off and Battle Colors, John Hay Whitney's Gramps and Frances D. Scully's Ponty made it difficult to pick a "sure thing."

Third Covey Named

The big field also included C. E. Nelson's entry of Third Covey and Alaking, Red Dock, Olympus, Boston Man, Waller, Minnelusa, Choppy Sea and Liberty Franc.

Tomorrow's stake, inaugurated in 1934, is named for the late "Little Joe" McLennan. Hialeah racing secretary and father of the Miami Jockey Club's present secretary and handicapper, Charles J. McLennan. Col. E. R. Bradley's Blessed Event won the inaugural running. Other previous winners include Stand Pat, 1935; Sablin, 1936; Finance, 1937; Piccolo, 1938; Stagehand, 1939, and Many Stings, 1940.

Six top 3-year-olds were entered for the supporting feature, the $2000 Stagehand Purse at a mile and a furlong. They were Requested, Alohort, American Wolf, Sweep Swinger, Incoming and Sir War. All are candidates for the $25,000 added Flamingo, Hialeah's Kentucky Derby preview, next Saturday.

Selections at Hialeah

Dear Al:

For today we will have a Kentucky Derby lesson. For instance: James A. ("Sunny Jim") Fitzsimmons and Ben A. Jones are the only trainers at present with a real chance to tie, or to crack the record of the late H. J. ("Dick") Thompson in saddling four winners of the Kentucky Derby. Thompson's quartet was Behave Yourself (1921), Bubbling Over (1926), Burgoo King (1932) and Broker's Tip (1933), all of them wearers of the Edward R. Bradley green and white colors. "Sunny Jim" has saddled three—Gallant Fox (1930), Omaha (1935) and Johnstown (1939), while Jones has two, Lawrin (1938) and Whirlaway (1941). Fitzsimmons is a veteran, but still young enough in years to warrant the hope that he can saddle horses for the Derby for another decade or so, inasmuch as he is trainer for the Belair Stud and also the Wheatley Stable, and because they always have a fine band of stake horses. "Sunny Jim" may find another Derby winner or two in his collection. Jones, a much younger man, trains for Warren Wright's Calumet Farm. Jones right now has the idea that one or another of his keen 2-year-olds of 1941 has a chance to win the Derby on May 2—and he may be right. If he is wrong this year, and remains with Wright for indefinite years, it is more than likely that the great stallions and broodmares on Wright's farm, may produce enough Derby winners to put Jones in a tie with Thompson—or send him into leadership. No gray-coated horse ever has won the Kentucky Derby. Which isn't surprising because there have been very few grays through the years, and only a rare number of these have been entered for the race. Bay horses have predominated in the victory column with 31; chestnuts have won 22 of the Derbies; browns 10, and blacks 4.

BILL.

First race—MR. INFINITY has plenty of speed and appears the best in a rather open field of good juveniles. FREE AIR, winner last out, is dangerous. The entry of ALL HOSS and MENOX should account for part of the money.

Second race—KANDISTAN could be the right one in this distance affair. Likes the route and the opposition is right. CASTIGADA has good all around form and belongs in the first flight. HANDIBOY to take care of the others.

Third race—BY CONSCRIPT will find this 7 furlongs right and Young should give us the proper ride. THIS ENGLAND has worked well and promises to be a keen factor. LIT UP might awake at a good price.

Fourth race—GREEDAN probably is best in this marathon affair. Mehrtens will do the booting. EXPLORATION and ROBERT E. LEE seem most likely to fill out the money circle.

Fifth race—AMERICAN WOLF has done about everything asked of late and figures to add the scalps of this field to his list. INCOMING is improving rapidly and gets in light. REQUESTED for the minor cash.

Sixth race—WAR RELIC gets my call in the day's $10,000 race. This one has worked encouragingly and promises to go all out for victory under Eddie Arcaro's handling. PONTY is fit as hands make horses and promises to be in the first flight. DIT for part of the pay-off.

Seventh race—BALLY BOY likes the conditions of this and he should take the chief award. YANKEE PARTY is better than generally rated. RELIOUS will be dangerous if the track is off.

Eighth race—PRIORITY is tossed in this with a feather and may be along in time to take it all. PAUSE also gets a light assignment and belongs close. HERESHECOMES for the show end.

Best bet—AMERICAN WOLF.

161 League Record Set By Habercom

Anna Habercom, Takoma Recreation, was the leading woman in the Ladies' Independent League last night at Arcadia with a record game of 161 that upped Viola Bechtold's previous high by five pins. The Takoma Recreation girls came through with a 548 team game, tops for the night, with Carter-Lanhardt winning set honors after a 1,600 pinfall.

Jiggs Sanderson of EMB with a record game of 176 and Marty Bartel of Tool No. 2, with a 400 set, were top runners in the Navy Yard loop at Fort Davis with the former sparking an odd game win over Plans. The Broadsides quintet totaled 616-1787 for team honors with Jerry Pearce's 394 and Jack Day's 388 the deciding blows. Miscellaneous, in a sweep over Optical No. 2, went into a tie for the lead with Broadsides.

Lillian Carleton Stars

A 133 single by Lillian Carleton, Federal Litho, and a 337 set chalked up by Margaret Shields, Continental Life, were high individual efforts in the Brookland Ladies' League with the latter team winning three from Sterling Opticians and posting high team sets of 1484. The Willis Esso girls won only one game but it was high for the play, a 526 count.

The Anacostia Spillway Laundry League found that O'Dwyer's 159-417 were best for the play and the spark his Arcade No. 1 boys needed in taking three from Arcade No. 3 and in posting a season record set of 1770.

Bill Heskett, Camden Tavern, again headed the Temple Minor loop at Ollie Pacini's drives and led his mates to top scores of 595-1672. Ivins Biscuits, Frager's Hardware, Wolf's Market and the Boveglio Club scored sweeps over their opponents of the night.

School Title Annexed by St. Martin's

Capping a long and uphill struggle, St. Martin's five captured the District of Columbia Parochial School League basketball championship last night at St. John's High, downing the defending champion Sacred Heart team after an overtime period, 16-15.

The finalists were deadlocked at 14-14 at the end of regulation time. Terry McGrath's foul shot gave Sacred Heard a 15-14 lead, but the deciding points came a few seconds later when Joe O'Connell connected for a field goal for St. Martins.

The winners will travel to Baltimore Sunday to face that city's parochial champions at 1:30 p. m.

Jockey J. George Rides 2 Winners, Passes Eric Guerin

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Feb. 20.—Jockey J. George tied and then passed Eric Guerin in their racing duel for top honors at the Fair Grounds here today by riding the winners in the first and second (daily double) races.

George won the first with W. Lyons Brown's Arrow Traction for his forty-fourth win of the season and the second with Mrs. E. Denemark's Low Hat, a long shot, for his forty-fifth victory.

Arrow Traction paid $6.80 for $2 in the mutuels while Low Hat paid $17.60 for $2. The daily double combination in which Apprentice George starred paid $57.40 for $2.

The racing season ends here tomorrow.

National Foxhunters Set Trials Oct. 25

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 20 (AP).—Directors of the National Foxhunters Association voted today to hold the forty-ninth annual field trials at Paducah, Ky., the week of October 25.

The annual bench show is to be held the night of October 25.

The directors also voted to purchase $2500 in defense bonds for the association's treasury.

Columbus Five Plays At Marshall College; Gallaudet Will Meet Susquehanna Quintet

Geargetown's visit to New Haven for the annual meeting with Yale tops a four-game out-of-town card for the District collegians tonight. American University will be at Westminister to play Western Maryland, Columbus at Huntingdon, W. Va., for a meeting with powerful Marshall College and Gallaudet at Susquehanna, Pa.

The Hoyas will rule as slight favorites over Yale, current cellar dwellers in the Eastern League, although the Hoyas won by only a single point last year with a better ball team. Elmer Ripley coached at Yale between his court coaching jobs at the Hilltop.

American U. will be at least an even choice against Western Maryland's defending Mason Dixon Conference champions. The Eagles, with the freshman rounding into form after 10 games of college ball under their belts, took a four-game winning streak into the Randolph Macon game last night.

Columbus appears to be in for a trimming against the strong Marshall club as the Explorers took a 57-40 beating from the West Virginians early in the season, and Marshall is 10 or 20 points tougher on its home court.

Gallaudet will be out to snap a five-game losing streak against Susquehanna but the prospects are not too good.

Viana's Shot Wins, 51-50, For Columbus

In as thrilling a basketball game as has graced the Eastern High court in years, Columbus University's tossers nosed out St. Vincent's last night by a 51-50 count. After the lead had see-sawed for the first half, Columbus left the floor for the intermission with a 29-27 advantage. From that point to the final whistle Columbus was not headed but the visitors tied the count four times.

With the score 49-all, Acky Viana took the ball off the backboard, dribbled the length of the floor and sank what proved to be the winning basket. This was Viana's seventh field goal of the game and he shared scoring honors for his club with Burns at 15 points each. Phillips shined for the visitors with 18 points.

Virginia Host To Syracuse Boxers Tonight

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 20.—Boxers from Syracuse University will make the first of two appearances at the University of Virginia tomorrow night when they meet the undefeated Cavaliers in the Memorial Gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

In just two weeks the Syracuse ring team will come to Charlottesville a second time in order to defend their championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association in the nineteenth annual titular tournament, to which the University of Virginia will be host. The dates are March 6 and 7.

Virginia's boxing team, varsity and freshman, are playing a double home engagement tomorrow, for in addition to the Cavalier varsity evening match with the Orangemen, Virginia's first-year team, coached by Truman Southall and Billy Williams, will wind up its season against the undefeated Staunton Military Academy boxers at 3:30 in the afternoon.

Szabo 'Keeps 'Em Flying,' but Loses To Wild William

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Feb. 20.—Sandor Szabo, of Santa Monica, Calif., claimant to the heavyweight wrestling championship, wanted to give just a final twirl before pinning his opponent last night.

So, with Wild William Longson, of Salt Lake City, draped around his shoulders, Szabo gave a mighty twist to his "airplane spin," lost his balance and fell with Longson on top—the winner and the new title claimant.

Track Stars Vie Tonight For Records

By International News Service

New York, Feb. 20.—Nurturing formidable winning streaks, Little Greg Rice, the former South Bend (Ind.) meteor now running for the New York Athletic Club, and Les MacMitchell, of New York University, will be the center of interest tomorrow night in the seventy-fourth annual indoor track and field meet of the N. Y. A. C. at Madison Square Garden.

Rice, who has compiled several world records during the past two years, has amassed a streak of 22 straight victories and owns a mark of 8:51.1 in the 2-mile run. MacMitchell has won 18 in a row.

Handicapped by a broken truss in the recent Millrose games here, Rice reeled off an 8:52.8 in winning the 2-mile feature and MacMitchell whizzed over the mile in 4:08 to take the met title at that distance.

MacMitchell's object is to better 4:07.4, the competitive indoor mile record which he shares with Glenn Cunningham and Chuck Fenske, and he admittedly will be running for the record books tomorrow night and henceforward.

Walter Mehl, of Wisconsin, who lost to MacMitchell by inches last year; Jim Rafferty, of the New York A. C., and the veteran Gene Venzke, will be running against MacMitchell.

Rice will be opposed by Gilbert Dobbs, of the Boston A. A., Frank Dixon, Joe McClusky, George Degeorge, Fred Wilt and Bob Nichols. Dodds alone is given the remotest chance to best Rice.

The program includes 23 events, other features being an 880-yard run and the 500.

The 880 field will include John Borican, national 1000-yard champion; Charley Beetham, Ed Burrows, Lou Collado, Frank Leary, Fred Sickinger, Guillermo Huidorbo, the Chilian champion, and Dave Polansky.

Jim Herbert, Roy Cochran, Johnny Campbell, Al Diebolt, and Arky Erwin will run in the 500.

American U. Bows, 49-39, To Jackets

Special Dispatch to The Post

Ashland, Va., Feb. 20.—American University's baseketball players put on a late rally that threatened to clip the Randolph-Macon College five but their uprising spent itself and the Yellow Jackets won by a 45-39 margin. The defeat ended a four-game winning streak that the Eagles brought to town.

Randolph-Macon took command at once and had a 27-18 advantage at half-time. With five minutes to play, the Eagles stretched their wings and put on a drive that carried them to within three points of their rivals. They lost Hewitt on personal fouls at this stage and their attack simmered thereafter. Capt. Byham, of the Washingtonians, worked with three personal fouls after the opening ten minutes of the game. The Jackets also were handicapped, losing Mason on personals in the second half.

Byham scored 17 points for the visitors, 14 coming in the second half. Mason, Springer and Isenberg did the bulk of the scoring for Randolph-Macon.

Bobbitt's Setter Wins Quail Title

Hermando, Miss., Feb. 20 (AP).—Bobbitt's Peerless Pride, a son and grandson of champion setter bluebloods, was named winner of the National Amateur quail championship today. Runner-up was Beau Essig's Don, a pointer owned by Virgil Hawse, of Staunton, Va.

To Louis Bobbitt, of Winston-Salem, N. C., owner and handler of the winner in this top amateur quail event, went almost a carload of silver for the victory—a set of silverware and possession for a year of the National Amateur trophy, the "Chimes Mississippi Jack" trophy and the Brooks Weeks Memorial trophy.

2 Knockouts Mark A.A.U. Ring Battles

Gene McGinnis, a fighting leatherneck from Quantico, lived up to his corps' reputation for two-fisted swinging last night at Turner's Arena where he polished off Charley Fowler, of the Boys Club of Washington, in the second round of their 126-pound fight.

It was one of the two technical knockouts recorded as the thirteenth annual A. A. U. tournament got under way, and both, oddly enough, were scored in 1:55 of the second session.

Under the Coaching of Gerry Strang, former Catholic University middleweight, and representing the U. S. O., McGinnis showed too much class and dynamite for his less-experienced opponent and it was obvious from the start the fight would not go the full distance. A couple of brisk belts to the breadbasket did the trick.

The second technical knockout was credited to Harry Reid, ambitious Apollo Athletic Club slugger, who put the chill on Dan Robson, of Brookland. This, too, was onesided although the loser waged a game but futile stand.

Bill McGeever's National Training School squad paced the first round with seven winners, but Pete Takeshorse, essaying a comeback after a disappointing appearance in the Golden Gloves tournament, was again off form and, although he won, was not impressive.

Johnny Atkisson, widely heralded Olympic Club welterweight, won, but neither was he overly impressive. The lad was willing and showed a fairly stiff punch, but lacked polish.

The tournament will resume next Friday night at Turner's.

A Break for the Lowly Phils

Comely Blonde Reporter to Go South With Philadelphia Club

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

NO "WOMAN'S ANGLE"—That's what blond Jeane Hofmann, Philadelphia sports writer, tells Manager Hans Lobert, of the Phils, as she prepares to go South with the club for the spring training period. She says she's going to send back straight stuff on the players, nothing fancy

Manager Hans Lobert Dubiously Okays Idea, Hoping Players Will 'Keep Minds on Work'

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—Jeane Hofmann, tall, blonde and comely, strolled into the office of the National Baseball League's Phils, asked for a club roster, and to the astonished Manager John (Hans) Lobert, said gaily:

"See you in camp."

"Well," mused oldtimer Lobert, rubbing his chin, "a gal sportswriter coming to my training camp!"

"There's plenty of women come to the ball games, though. Why shouldn't a gal cover the training camps?"

Jeane's trip to the Phils' office started her new assignment as baseball writer-cartoonist for the Evening Bulletin and on February 28 she hops a rattler for Florida, the first girl to tour the majors' spring camps as a straight-away sports writer.

There'll be no "woman's angle" to her pieces about the Yankees and Cardinals from St. Petersburg, the Cincinnati Reds, from Tampa, and the Phils, from Miami Beach, says Jeane.

As the only variation from the traditional account of who won, she plans a series of stories on the brighter side of a ball player's life away from the diamond and the dressing room.

"Something like a piece on who is the best pinball player on the club," she said.

She's No Sports Novice

Athletes are old stuff to the 22-year-old blonde. Fresh from Los Angeles High School, she cartooned and wrote Pacific Coast League baseball, hockey, football and wrestling for the Hollywood Citizen-News. She designed the poster for the 1940 Rose Bowl football game, then came East to take a crack at big league baseball.

Late last season, she drew some cartoons of the Athletics and Phils—and during the winter, she talked her boss into the spring training camp tour.

She wrote the major league clubs for information about their training sites and rosters and from all but one, got replies addressed: "Dear Hofmann." The exception was wily old Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators, who addressed his reply to "Miss Hofmann."

Jeane had one request of the Phils' boss:

"Let me pitch a little down there; I used to have a pretty good sidearm delivery."

"Okay," said Lobert dubiously. "It's a deal—if the boys keep their minds on their work."

12 Navy Teams To See Action

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20.—Navy's winter sports squads face one of their busiest weekends tomorrow with 12 teams swinging into action here and abroad.

Leading the invading contingents are North Carolina's basketballers, Penn State's gymnasts, and Columbia's swimmers. Navy's wrestling squad, boasting two successive victories, meets Pennsylvania's crack grapplers at Philadelphia in the only road encounter.

Navy's fencers, unbeaten in four matches, risk their perfect record against Pennsylvania. The rifle team, which won four in a row after dropping its opener to V. M. I., takes on George Washington University.

North Carolina, despite its encounter with Maryland tonight at College Park, looms as the basketball favorite, while Columbia's tankmen are expected to turn back Navy's swimmers, who have won only three of seven dual meets.

The gymnasts, conquerors of Princeton, 42 to 12, last week, seek their second straight victory against Penn State.

Plebe activity finds Navy yearlings opposing the Maryland frosh cagers, Penn's freshman fencers and wrestlers, Penn State's frosh wrestlers, Georgetown's frosh riflemen and the Blair Academy swimming squad, of Blairsville, N. J.

Woodward Loses, 25-23, To Md. Park

Maryland Park's High School quintet trailed until the last two minutes of its game with Woodward Prep yesterday before edging out a 25-23 victory on the Y. M. C. A. court.

It remained for Forward Ford, who scored 13 points, to drop in the clincher.

Capt. Billy Noyes' 12 points kept Woodward in the thick of contention, His team led 12-9 at intermission.

In an added attraction, the Woodward faculty blanked the seniors, 25-0, between halves of the main game.

Bradford Signs Pilot

Bradford, Pa., Feb. 20 (AP).—John Quinn, president of the Bradford Bees of the Pony League, announced today the signing of Irving Jack Burns, 34-year-old former major and minor league first baseman, as playing manager of the Bradford Club.

Ted Williams Still Holds 1-A in Draft

Minneapolis, Feb. 20 (AP).—Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox outfielder, still has a 1-A Selective Service rating, his draft board said today as the American League batting champion awaited definite word as to his military status.

Williams recently was reclassified from 3-A to 1-A, and three weeks ago passed his preliminary physical examination. Though Williams did not request it, his case was placed in the hands of an appeal board by local draft officials for possible reclassification again because of Williams' support of his mother.

The draft board today said "he is still classified in 1-A." Williams has been hunting and fishing near Princeton, 50 miles north of here during his winter lay-off.

Cubs at Camp; Russell Signed; Lowrey Holdout

Ayalon, Calif., Feb. 20.—The Chicago Cubs reached their Catalina Island training base today, making the 26-mile Pacific Ocean hop from the mainland in two water taxis. It was in sharp contrast to the prewar years when they always traveled luxuriously by steamer.

Glen (Rip) Russell, former Cub first baseman who played most of last year with Tulsa of the Texas League, signed his 1942 contract today, but Harry Lowrey failed to come to an agreement with General Manager James Gallagher. Billy Myers, also unsigned, was the only absentee and Cub officials professed to have no knowledge of his whereabouts.

Gas Firm Has 20,000 Gain In Customers

The Washington Gas Light Co. showed a record increase of about 20,000 new customers in 1941, according to the pamphlet report released yesterday to stockholders. This was the biggest gain in a 12-month period in the 93-year history of the company.

At the same time it was revealed that the firm's new office building, under construction at Eleventh and H Streets Northwest, will be ready for occupancy in April or May. The new building will centralize general office functions now being conducted in four buildings at three widely separated locations.

$3,691,935 Expended

President Marcy L. Sperry, commenting on the expansion program of the past year, said:

"During 1941 the total construction expenditures amounted to $3,691,935 . . . to take care of the needs of 20,000 new customers . . . This is due of course to the wartime increase of about 100,000 in the population of metropolitan Washington . . . Further growth is expected in 1942 . . . The company accepts its responsibilities with confidence although not with complacence. We cannot expect to do the difficult job ahead and still enjoy the pleasures and profits of peace . . . "

As reported previously, Washington Gas Light showed 1941 net income of $953,870 last year, equivalent to $2.24 a share on common stock. This compared with net of $1,070,229 in the previous year, equal to $2.52 a share.

New Issue Planned

Gas sales rose to $10,897,335 as compared with $10,448,876 in 1940. Costs of operations increased proportionately more than the gain in sales, operating income dropping to $1,930,197 as compared with $2,063,703 in 1940.

If the Public Utilities Commission authorizes the step, approximately 35,000 shares of new $4.25 cumulative preferred stock will be offered for sale this year. The company said that delay in PUC action on the permanent financing plan caused Washington Gas Light to borrow $3,100,000 from banks.

The gas firm had 2193 persons on its payrolls as of the end of the year. A 10 per cent wage increase was granted last June.

Gasoline Sales Outlook Is Poor, Dealers Warned

Cleveland, Feb. 20 (AP).—Marginal gasoline station operators were advised by the president of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio "to get out while the getting's good and get a job in a munitions plant."

Addressing distributors for a subsidiary of Ohio, W. T. Holliday declared "there can be no optimistic picture of our business. We can look for increased consumption until July, then a decrease. There will be a 30 per cent decrease next year and in 1944 we'll be in real trouble."

"Gasoline stations already are beginning to close throughout the country. Tell your dealer, if he is a marginal producer, to get out while the getting's good and get a job in a munitions plant."

In the near future, the oil company president added, "We must start charging for some services we have been giving free, such as tire changes." Other services, such as air for tires and cleaning of windshields, will continue to be free.

Colorado Reports Rich Gold Strike

Cripple Creek, Colo., Feb. 20 (AP).—A gold strike at the old Logan mine averaging $2000 a ton was reported today by David P. Strickler, president of the Stratton Cripple Creek Mining and Developing Co.

A. B. Cobb, of Cutbank, Mont., lessee and operator of the property, shipped 4.17 tons of the rich ore to the Golden Cycle mill averaging 60.5 ounces of gold to the ton.

Strickler described the strike as the greatest made in the mine area in recent years.

Nelson Proceeds on Schwab Philosophy; Rehabilitates Without Chopping Off Heads . .

Donald M. Nelson, as generalissimo of the War Production Board, is making an effort to proceed with the same human material that was in the Office of Production Management.

Instead of yielding to a clamor for chopping off executive heads wholesale, Mr. Nelson is proceeding on a different philosophy. He believes that by setting a new tone for the organization and by setting up new standards of efficient performance he can raise the competence of the men who were previously engaged in similar work.

However, through the improved system of daily reporting to the chief on where the production program is lagging, Mr. Nelson feels that he will have an immediate check on the efficiency of his departmental heads. I am informed that those who are unable to get results will be replaced.

There are analogies in private enterprise for Mr. Nelson's approach. For example, when the late Charles M. Schwab, after resigning as president of the United States Steel Corporation early in the century, took over the then run-down Bethlehem Steel Corporation, he rehabilitated the company without changing the top men he found there. Instead he infused those men with new enthusiasm and gave them fresh incentives. And the fact that he succeeded with the old crowd is a measure of the force of his personality and his leadership qualities.

Too often new bosses are over-eager to change faces, overlooking the more fundamental need of altering basic management policies.

Don Nelson, in private business and in Government service, has the charm of a hail-fellow-well-met. Accordingly, some have wondered whether he is tough enough for the job.

Those who raise the question recall that William S. Knudsen always felt an obligation to be nice to everyone.

Mr. Nelson has his own definition of toughness. To him, toughness does not mean getting excited, banging on the table and calling people names. On the contrary, to his mind, toughness is being persistent and sticking doggedly to objectives until they have been attained.

Don Nelson, the former chief buyer for the world's largest merchandising corporation, practices the old aphorism that the world steps aside to make room for a man who knows where he is going.

It is important for Mr. Nelson to succeed, not only important for himself and for his chief but also for upwards of 130 million Americans engaged in a critical war struggle.

Accordingly, Mr. Nelson has an obligation not to compromise with his own technical knowledge of what is necessary to win the battle of production.

If ever there should be in the future a clash between technical competence, on the one hand, and political pap as usual, on the other, Mr. Nelson, it seems to me, would have an obligation to warn the public of the situation by tendering his resignation. Apparently, no such situation has yet arisen, particularly since, of all the businessmen who have come to Washington, none has had as much facility for getting along with New Dealers as Mr. Nelson.

Oil Firm to Build Toluene Plant

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Standard Oil Co. of Indiana announced today it had concluded a contract with the Government to build and operate at Whiting, Ind., a toluene plant capable of producing as much as the entire Nation's annual output during the first World War.

Toluene is used in the manufacture of explosives and is produced from petroleum.

Air Express Sets Record

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Air express shipments in 1941 totaled 1,306,629, the largest for any year in history and a gain of 21.2 per cent over 1940, the air express division of the Railway Express Agency announced today.

Indoor Oil Well Planned in City

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 20.—The city of Los Angeles was asked today to authorize the tapping of an oil field in the Wilshire residential district, with drilling and other operations to be conducted inside a huge concrete building.

J. H. Elliott, petroleum engineer, said the Shell Oil Co. would erect the three-million-dollar building and conduct the drilling in the world's first indoor oil field.

Wells would be located 10 feet apart on the surface, but by use of directional or slant drilling, several hundred acres in the old Salt Lake field could be tapped from the big building.

Oil would be moved through existing pipelines. In place of the derricks, lengths of drilling pipe would be withdrawn by movable apparatus hanging from the 120-foot ceiling.

Elliott said operations would be soundproof, fireproof, and odorless—without a pipe or drop of oil in sight.

Cocoa Prices Rise On Shipping Peril

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Cocoa futures were unusually active and advanced an average of one-tenth of a cent a pound to near Government ceiling prices today on fears in some quarters that ship sinkings in the Atlantic might impair supplies.

Traders who had previously sold cocoa for future delivery in expectations of the usual supplies reaching this country undertook a broad covering movement, buying in the contracts before the time they were required to deliver the actual cocoa. This demand sent prices to within a small fraction of a cent a pound of the top level established by Government decree.

Trade quarters noted the extraordinary activity coincided with the announcement of the sinking of the Brazilian steamship Olinda off the Atlantic coast.

Pa. Utility Plans Big Refunding

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission approved a plan under which Pennsylvania Electric Co. proposes to acquire six companies and engage in a $36,550,000 refunding program. The companies whose assets are to be acquired by Pennsylvania will be dissolved.

These companies are the Clarion River Power Co. and Erie Lighting Co., subsidiaries of Pennsylvania; Associated Maryland Electric Power Corporation, Solar Electric Co. and Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation, subsidiaries of Associated Electric Co. (parent of Pennsylvania), and Logan Light, Heat & Power Co., a subsidiary of N. Y.-Pa.-N. J. Utilities Co.

The companies serve an area in Western Pennsylvania extending from the Maryland border to Lake Erie.

Pennsylvania proposes to sell $32,500,000 of first mortgage bonds and $3,400,000 of cumulative preferred stock.

Marts Close Monday

Security and commodity markets throughout the United States will be closed Monday, February 23, in observance of Washington's Birthday. Various livestock reports will be issued as usual by the Department of Agriculture.

From Autos to Arms

Detroit Unruffled as Heart Undergoes Major Surgery

By Gladwyn Hill
Wide World Staff Writer

Detroit, Feb. 20.—This is the new never-never land of badges and birth certificates, where war production requires everybody's being identified from haircut to heels, and where people are so preoccupied with converting the auto industry to armament that you could record the conversations with rubber stamps.

Strange tales have gone out of Detroit being a spectacular boom town, with the grade schools running three shifts a day and people living on window sills. Or, of it being a stricken city because of the auto shutdown, with bread lines and apple vendors. Forget it.

Although Detroit is in the midst of the greatest single feat in industrial history, transforming itself almost overnight from autos to arms, you'd never know it to look around. On the surface, it might be the peanut butter capital or the heart of the hot water bottle industry.

There are no uproarious boomtown phenomena, no $5 ham and eggs. The only thing abnormal about grade-school life is that the kids have to get up in the dark, because Detroit is on the farthest edge of the Eastern war time belt.

On the other hand, the only conspicuous indigents about are the old familiar panhandlers who work the big-city circuit. Downtown Detroit looks like many another industrial city, a tarnished, sluggish kaleidoscope of skyscrapers and painless-dentist signs, whence everyone flees for the suburbs at sundown and where the bartenders start yawning about 9:30.

There are no bread lines, and they don't expect any, if the State and Federal Governments can decide the current issue of which is going to provide financial assistance for the several hundred thousand auto workers thrown, temporarily out of jobs.

The employment situation at present is reflected in the full pages of want ads, most of them for tool-and-die men, the advance guard of mass production.

There are still a lot of houses for sale and apartments for rent, and they're now planning housing projects for the estimated 150,000 workers who will have to be imported some months hence—to augment every bit of available labor in the auto manufacturing area—when the armament production gets going full blast.

It's when you get out to the auto plants, 5, 10 or 50 miles out of Detroit, that you get the full current of the armament campaign. And the badges and birth certificates.

The plants have unprecedentedly thorough systems for assaying visitors. The incident of the boss being barred because he hasn't the proper credentials is happening somewhere every day.

It would take a durable spy to get through, because you get a glass arm diving for identification papers and writer's cramp signing forms. If a company has 50 plants, you have to go through it at each one—who are you, what's your citizenship, whom do you represent, whom do you want to see and who vouches for you.

Ford uses metal badges with different colored enamel designs for each plant; in a class with the Koohinoor diamond, there is rumored to be one rare type of badge with a cabalistic symbol that can gain admittance to all the plants. General Motors uses a round card board tag. At Chrysler you wear both a badge and a tag waiving the company's responsibility for anything that might happen to you, including the Dutch elm disease.

Even accredited workers' lunch boxes are inspected, lest somebody else have planted a bomb in them, and the current gag is that they aren't allowed to bring apples, lest the apples be northern spies.

American Can Net Climbs to $15,959,500

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 20.—The American Can Co. and subsidiaries reported today net income for 1941, after preferred dividends, was $15,959,500, equal to $6.45 a common share, compared with $14,554,575 or $5.88 a common share in 1940. Annual preferred dividend requirements are $2,888,331.

Net sales for 1941, the company reported, were $263,890,628, an increase of 33.6 per cent over 1940.

The annual report said that while Government regulations would curtail materially the use of tin plate for various products, there were indications of an increase in the packs of essential food products for war purposes, increased requirements of other Government products and a diversion of other items into packages made of black iron and fibre not on the restricted list.

Reflecting the company's expanded activities, the report showed capital expenditures for 1941 of $13,213,937, an increase of $2,940,988 over 1940.

Continental Can Net Drops

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Continental Can Co., Inc., reported today net income for the year ended December 31, 1941, was $7,469,684, equal to $2.62 a common share, compared with $8,953,632 in 1940 which was equal after dividend requirements on preferred stock then outstanding to $2.82 a common share.

J. F. Hartlieb, president, said that 1941 sales at $136,652,016, an increase of $35,612,543 from 1940, were the largest in the company's history.

Latest Profit Statements

Reliable Stores Corporation and subsidiaries reported consolidated profit for 1941 was $759,416, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.05 a common share, against $686,791 or $1.75 a common share in the preceding year.

Boston Fund reported its net assets on January 31, 1942, end of its fiscal year, were $6,315,231, equal to $12.02 on each of 525,250 shares, compared with $6,282,696 or $13.16 on each of the 477,545 shares outstanding at the end of the preceding year.

Walworth Co., valve and metal fittings specialty concern, showed net profit of $2,003,136 for 1941, equal after preferred dividends to $1.45 a common share, compared with $1,123,156 or 80 cents a common share in 1940. W. B. Holton, jr., president of Walworth, said that while sales in 1941 were more than 85 per cent ahead of 1940, the company had found it necessary to turn its entire manufacturing facilities to products for the armed forces. The company, since last November, has declined orders unless accompanied by a priority rating, he added, and is operating as nerly as possible on a seven-day week.

Commercial Solvents Corporation reported 1941 net profit of $2,615,452, equal to 99 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $2,387,321, or 90 cents a share, in 1940.

Standard Cap & Seal Corporation had 1941 net profit of $378,933, equal to 96 cents a share on the common, compared with $261,105, or 42 cents a share, in 1940.

Pitney-Bowes Postage Meter Co., for nine months ended December 31, reported net profit of $440,662, equal to 49 cents a capital share, against $422,383, or 47 cents, in the comparable period a year earlier.

Pennroad Corporation reported a net income of $2,727,507.97 for 1941, an increase of $644,439.32 over 1940. The income was equal to approximately 39 cents per share for 1941, a gain of 11 cents over 1940.

The net asset value per share of common stock outstanding December 31, 1941, was $6.43 as compared to $6.21 in 1940, $6.13 in 1939 and $5.95 in 1938.

Sun Oil Co. and its subsidiaries reported a net income of $16,532,540 for 1941 as compared with $7,969,068 in 1940. After meeting dividend requirements of $517,945 on preferred stock, there remained $6.21 per share on common stock outstanding prior to 10 per cent dividend paid December 29, 1941, J. Howard Pew, president, said in his annual report to stockholders. The 1940 net income was equal to $3.03 per share of common stock.

Quaker Oats Co. in 1941 netted $4,080,444 or $4.28 a common share compared with $4,141,511 or $4.37 a common share in 1940. The company has been asked by the War Department to undertake the management of a munitions plant to be built by the Government. He said a subsidiary had been formed for that purpose.

J. I. Case Co., farm equipment manufacturer, reported net income of $4,263,233 in the fiscal year ended October 31, 1941. In the preceding fiscal year Case had a net income of $1,378,126. Leon R. Clausen, president, said the company's production of farm equipment this year will be "considerably smaller" than in 1941 because of Government limitation upon materials available for the industry.

Coca-International Corporation had 1941 net income of $7,561,462, equal to $38.50 a share on the common stock, compared with $7,894,446, or $39.15 a share, in 1940. The corportion is a holding concern for certain stock of the Coca-Cola Co.

Household Finance Corporation reported net income in 1941 amounted to $3,362,941 equal to $6.11 a common share, compared with $6,142,050, or $7.11 a share, in 1940.

'Big Three' Sold 90% of Autos

Detroit, Feb. 20 (AP).—The publication Automotive and Aviation Industries said today that the "big three" of the automobile industry—General Motors, Chrysler and Ford—accounted for more than 90 per cent of all new passenger car registrations in 1941.

By individual companies the 1941 ranking showed Chevrolet topping the list with 880,346 units; Ford second with 602,013, Plymouth third with 452,187 and Buick fourth with 308,615.

"The 'big three' companies," the survey said, "maintained approximately the same positions as in 1940 in relation to their percentage of the total retail market. General Motors Corporation compiled 47.3 per cent of the total with 1,765,693 new cars registered; Chrysler Corporation had 901,779 new registrations for 24.2 per cent and Ford's 702,656 were 18.8 per cent. All other passenger car makers accounted for the remaining 361,038 units, or 9.7 per cent."

Equipment Orders Placed by B. & O.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Feb. 20.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has placed orders for a new equipment representing an expenditure of more than $9,500,000, President Roy B. Whitet announced today.

Of this amount six million dollars will be spent for 2000 freight cars, 1000 of which will be 50-ton steel hoppers, to be built by the Bethlehem Steel Co. and 1000 70-ton steel box cars to be built by the General American Transportation Corporation.

Also included are eight Diesel electric locomotives ordered some months ago from the electromotive division of General Motors Corporation. Two of these will be passenger locomotives and six freight locomotives.

Morgan Stanley Loses Court Plea On Utility Fees

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The United States Court of Appeals today affirmed an order of the Securities and Exchange Commission denying Morgan Stanley & Co. underwriting fees charged in connection with sale of 25 million dollars in bonds of the Dayton Power & Light Co. more than a year ago.

In its original order, contested by Morgan Stanley & Co., the SEC charged the investment banking firm failed to enter "arms length bargaining" with the company in making the underwriting arrangements.

The underwriting fees and expenses in connection with the sale of the bonds amounted to around $100,000 and were placed in escrow by Morgan Stanley & Co. pending outcome of the litigation.

The rule under which the SEC proceeded under the Public Utility Act has since been repealed and public utility companies now are required to sell all securities under an open bidding, competitive arrangement.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—Weakened by a decrease in milling and professional trade support, which kept prices firm most of the week, the wheat market slid to a 1 cent-a-bushel loss today.

Closing at the day's low point, ¾@1 cent lower than yesterday, with May 1.30¼@1.30⅛, July, 1.31⅛@1.31¼; wheat reflected extreme caution prevailing among all interests in the market, from producers to bakers, largely as a result of uncertainty regarding Federal policies affecting grains and because of war developments.

Although rye was off as much as a cent earlier in the session, other cereals closed with only fractional losses. Corn was ⅛@⅜ down. May, 88@88⅛; July, 90; oats, ⅛@⅜ off; rye, ⅜ down; soybeans, ⅛@⅞ lower, and lard unchanged to 2 higher. Beans were off 16@16¾ cent at one stage but rallied due to late short covering.

800 to Attend Fete of A. I. B. Here Tonight

More than 900 persons including Government officials and bank leaders are expected to attend the fortieth anniversary banquet tonight of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at the Willard Hotel. Chapter President John M. Christie will preside.

Principal speaker will be Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, dean of university students at George Washington University. George Newell, president of the American Institute of Banking, will bring greetings from the national group.

A highlight will be the presentation of a gold watch to Edward M. Blaiklock, immediate past president, in recognition of his services to the local chapter.

Many out-of-town bankers will be guests at the dinner, which is the biggest event of the year on the institute's calendar. Federal officials who have accepted invitations include: Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve board of governors; M. S. Szyczak and Ernest S. Draper, members of the Federal Reserve Board; C. B. Upham, deputy comptroller of the currency; R. B. McCandless, also a deputy comptroller, and Claude E. Hamilton, general counsel of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

There will be entertainment and dancing following the dinner. Mr. Paul J. Seltzer is in charge of arrangements.

Ohio War Plant To Pay Women At Men's Rates

Cleveland, Feb. 20 (AP).—Thompson Products, Inc., one of Cleveland's major war industries, will pay women at men's rates wherever their work is the same.

President Frederick C. Crawford said the company, manufacturer of aircraft parts, is starting a survey of its several hundred job classifications to determine how many jobs could be performed by women.

Pay rates for the women will be the same as those of the departing men, providing they carry out the same duties, but where men assistants are necessary for lifting operations, machine set-up work and for grinding tools, the women's rates will be lowered.

Women machine operators will work a 45-hour week, of six days, with the same overtime provisions as for men workers.

Gain in Clearings Cut by Holiday

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet reported that bank clearings in 23 major United States Cities totaled $4,468,071,000 in the week ended February 18, a rise of 8.5 per cent over the previous week and 2.9 per cent ahead of the comparable 1941 period.

The narrow gain over last year reflected the Lincoln's Birthday holiday observance, the report said, since in 1941 the holiday fell a week earlier.

Stocks Display Highly Irregular Trend; Motors and Rails Show Moderate Buoyancy

New York, Feb. 20.—Uninspirational war news and the imminence of a longer than usual week-end restrained most buyers in today's stock market and brought out enough selling to make for considerable irregularity.

Hesitancy was the rule at the start. A few motors, rails and specialties soon edged upward but many leaders elsewhere inclined to back away. Ragged tendencies persisted at the close, with losses a shade in the majority.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 36.5. Dealings were negligible throughout. Transfers of 328,406 shares compared with 345,080 yesterday and again were among the smallest since last June.

The Japanese push in the southwest Pacific, the continued critical position of MacArthur in the Philippines and the growing submarine menace in the Atlantic and Caribbeans still provided the principal brakes on bullish sentiment.

Many traders intending to skip tomorrow's short session for a lengthy holiday — major markets will be closed Monday for Washington's birthday—lighted commitments. Some short covering also cropped up on the idea international bulletins might take a turn for the better before the reopening Tuesday.

A little support was attributed to the persistent belief the market might be in an oversold condition. Industrial and railway income figures aided individual issues.

Western Union and American Can rose a point each in reflection of better than looked for 1941 preliminary earnings compilations.

Allied Chemical dropped 3 points to a new low for the move. DuPont hit a new bottom but eventually halved an early loss of a point. In the retreating division were Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet, American Telephone, Westinghouse, General Electric, Eastman Kodak, United States Rubber, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co. Anaconda, United Aircraft and International Harvester.

Finishing with modest gains were Chrysler, General Motors, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, North American, Sears Roebuck, Dow Chemical, Goodyear and Union Carbide.

Rail loans were forward leaners in an uneven bond department. At Chicago wheat was off ⅜ to 1 cent a bushel, corn down ⅛ to ⅜ and hogs up 25 to 40 cents. Cotton was 40 to 65 cents a bale in arrears.

Clinging to plus signs in the curb were Bell Aircraft, Pennroad, Brewster Aero, Glen Alden Coal, New Jersey Zinc and Phoenix Securities. On the offside were Hum

Listen! with Glynn

Kenny Gardner, who warbles so romantically with Guy Lombardo's Orchestra, can't read a note of music and, because of that, he couldn't even make the Glee Club during his high school days.

But that didn't prevent him from liking to sing and—well, you can hear where that affection has got him by listening to his vocals on the Lombardo program over WJSV Saturday night.

Kenny's start, even after high school, was pretty inauspicious. He left his home town of Neligh, Nebr., and headed for California, where he got the job—as a busboy in a San Diego restaurant.

It would be nice to report for virtue's sake that Kenny worked hard, saved his money and indulged in nothing but good habits so that he could follow his singing career. But, sad to relate, it was while Kenny was soulfully singing "The Last Roundup" in a barroom one night that his big opportunity came.

A stranger came up and offered him the post as singer at the San Diego Exposition—in the cowboy saloon that was a part of the exposition.

Then when the exposition was over, there were more jobs in beer halls in Los Angeles, but they gradually grew to be bigger and better beer halls. Eventually Kenny was singing at the Trocadero in the City of Angels and then finally came a week at the Paramount, which somehow or other stretched into a 22-week stay.

And then Mr. Lombardo heard him and hired him. And that, my children, is the single success story of one Mr. Kenny Gardner.

Dr. Hemelt Now Heads District Phi Beta Kappa

Dr. Francis J. Hemelt, associate professor of English at Catholic University, last night took up his new duties as president of the Phi Beta Kappa Association in the District of Columbia.

He was elected at the association's meeting Thursday night, to succeed Wade H. Ellis, of 1440 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. A charter member of the local association, Dr. Hemelt served for several years as secretary-treasurer.

Albert W. Atwood, of 65 Observatory Circle Northwest, was elected vice president, and Jacob H. Gichner, Chevy Chase, Md., was named secretary-treasurer.

Four members of the association were chosen to the council and will comprise the executive committee with the major officers. They are Allen Fisher, an attorney; Dean Henry Grattan Doyle of George Washington University; Miss Verri Gladys Schult, head of the mathematics department, District public schools, and Dr. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, of the National Geographic Society.

Others named to the council are Dr. Charles Sazer Collier, professor of law at George Washington University; Francis Thames, of Indianhead, Md.; Robert L. O'Brien, former tariff commissioner, and Joseph S. Allen, Library of Congress; Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington; Dr. Rene W. Pinto, Mrs. A. E. Zucker and Dr. George B. Woods, of American University.

Contract Bridge

A good many North-South pairs might have steered into three no-trump after West's heart overcall on today's hand, but Mrs. Olive Peterson, Philadelphia champion, and her partner stayed out of it when they played the hand, preferring the longer, harded road to five clubs. Mrs. Peterson managed to take 11 tricks by developing a cross-ruff.

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable
South Dealer

	♠ Q J 10 4 3 ♡ A 8 2 ◇ 5 ♣ J 10 8 2
♠ K 8 ♡ Q J 10 9 4 3 ◇ Q 9 6 3 2 ♣ None	WEST	NORTH EAST SOUTH
	♠ 7 ♡ K 5 ◇ A K 10 8 4 ♣ A Q 9 6 4

The bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Q ♡.

She won the heart queen with the ace in dummy, and led the singleton diamond, taking the ace. Having decided to ruff diamonds as a means of securing enough tricks, Mrs. Peterson first cashed the heart king to guard against its being trumped by East, who might be able to make a heart discard on a diamond lead.

The king of diamonds was cashed and a low diamond trumped with the club eight. East overruffed with the club king and returned a trump which declarer won in the closed hand. Another diamond was ruffed in dummy and the South hand reentered by trumping a heart for still another diamond ruff. Declarer had now to lose only a spade trick, and she made five clubs, conceding only the spade and the club king made on the diamond overruff.

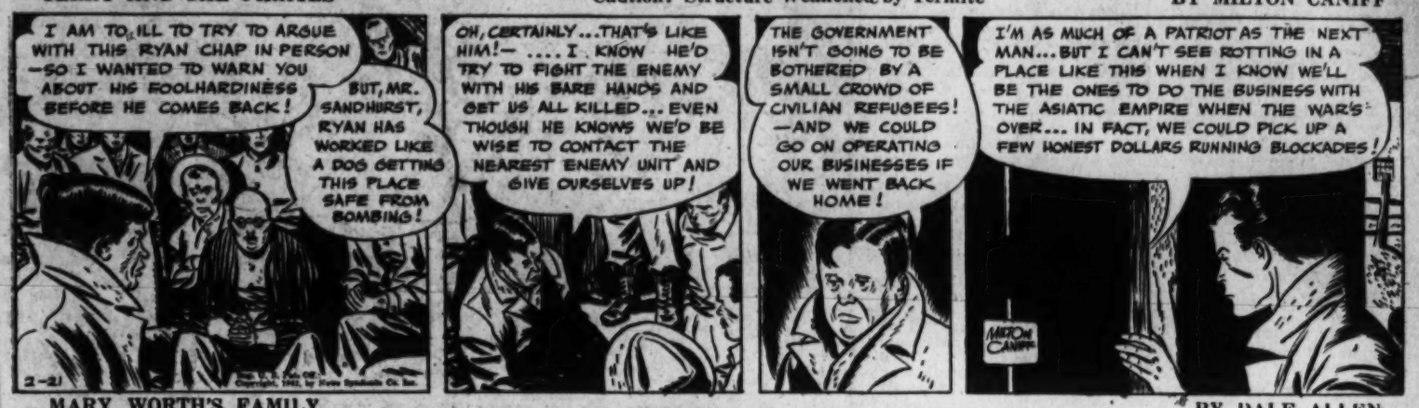
TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Caution! Structure Weakened by Termite — BY MILTON CANIFF



I AM TO ILL TO TRY TO ARGUE WITH THIS RYAN CHAP IN PERSON —SO I WANTED TO WARN YOU ABOUT HIS FOOLHARDINESS BEFORE HE COMES BACK!
BUT, MR. SANDHURST, RYAN HAS WORKED LIKE A DOG GETTING THIS PLACE SAFE FROM BOMBING!
OH, CERTAINLY...THAT'S LIKE HIM!— .... I KNOW HE'D TRY TO FIGHT THE ENEMY WITH HIS BARE HANDS AND GET US ALL KILLED... EVEN THOUGH HE KNOWS WE'D BE WISE TO CONTACT THE NEAREST ENEMY UNIT AND GIVE OURSELVES UP!
THE GOVERNMENT ISN'T GOING TO BE BOTHERED BY A SMALL CROWD OF CIVILIAN REFUGEES! —AND WE COULD GO ON OPERATING OUR BUSINESSES IF WE WENT BACK HOME!
I'M AS MUCH OF A PATRIOT AS THE NEXT MAN... BUT I CAN'T SEE ROTTING IN A PLACE LIKE THIS WHEN I KNOW WE'LL BE THE ONES TO DO THE BUSINESS WITH THE ASIATIC EMPIRE WHEN THE WAR'S OVER... IN FACT, WE COULD PICK UP A FEW HONEST DOLLARS RUNNING BLOCKADES!

Cleric Stresses Spiritual Life, In Lenten Talk

Our training to save lives through civilian defense activities must not make us lose sight of "spiritual saving" needed in our communities, said the Rev. A. F. T. Raum yesterday at the Penn Theater, 650 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast.

Mr. Raum, pastor of the First Methodist Church, addressed the daily noonday Lenten program of the Southeast Protestant churches. The Rev. Edward Gabler, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Navy Yard parish, presided.

The mid-day services are being held Mondays through Fridays.

With the war curtailing much foreign missionary work, the churches' resources must be concentrated on home missionary projects to build a spiritually-sound American Nation, said the minister. "We need now, more than ever before, to conserve our spiritual values," he said.

Epiphany Church yesterday began a series of Friday afternoon laymen's Lenten programs, with Charles F. Wilson, chancellor of the Washington Diocese, Episcopal Church, as opening speaker.

A series of weekly Lenten lectures on "The Christian Symbolism of the Washington Cathedral" will begin today at 2 p. m. at the Cathedral with Ogle R. Singleton, secretary of the Convention of the Washington Diocese, as speaker. The Bethlehem Chapel will be today's subject.

The Rev. Dr. Hulbert Woolfall, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, St. Louis, Mo., yesterday concluded his series of Lenten sermons at Epiphany Episcopal Church. The Right Rev. Robert E. L. Strider, Bishop of West Virginia, will speak Monday through Friday, at 12:05 p. m.

D. C. Masonic Clubs Will Attend Church

Members of the Masonic Clubs of the District of Columbia will be guests of the Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D Streets, Northeast, tomorrow at 8 p. m., and will observe the annual George Washington Memorial Service sponsored by the advisory board. John L. Bateman, who for a number of years has been associated with the Masonic Clubs, will lead an inspiring song service. The Rev. Carroll C. Roberts, will deliver the memorial sermon on the theme, "George Washington—Patriot and Christian."

Dr. Prang to Speak

Dr. Gordon W. Prang, University of Maryland, will speak before the current problems class at All Souls' Unitarian Church tomorrow at 10 a. m. on "Hitler: Demagogue and Propagandist." At the same hour Dr. Charles B. Hale, also of the University of Maryland, will continue a course on "The Hexateuch," before the comparative religion class, speaking on "Leviticus and Deuteronomy."

Rev. Abernethy to Speak

The Rev. Bradford N. Abernethy, executive secretary of the Commission on Bases for a Just and Durable Peace, of the Federal Council of Churches, will address the Washington Ministerial Union Monday at 11 a. m. at American University. He is the son of the Rev. Dr. William S. Abernethy, former pastor of Calvary Baptist Church.

Lutheran to Celebrate

The India centennial of the United Lutheran Church will be celebrated tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, with a pageant, "These Are They," presented by the church's young people, directed by Bess Davis Schreiner.

Dr. Long to Speak

Dr. Ralph Long, executive director of the National Lutheran Council, New York City, will address a Washington's Birthday patriotic service tomorrow at 11 a. m. at St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Fifteenth Street and Kentucky Avenue Southeast.

Self-Realization Group

"Thoughts Toward God" will be Swami Premananda's subject tomorrow at 11 a. m. before the Self-Realization Fellowship, Western Avenue, near Forty-ninth Street Northwest.

Toronto Pastor Will Conduct Services Here

Rev. Albert Hughes, D. D., pastor of the Church of the Crusaders, Toronto, Canada, will conduct special services at Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A Streets Northeast, beginning tomorrow and continuing through March 8. These meetings, which will begin at 7:30, will be held every night during the two weeks except Saturdays. At the Sunday services, Dr. Hughes will speak at both morning and evening meetings.

Dr. Hughes, who has been a pastor for a number of years and who has done considerable evangelistic work, is an especially capable leader and teacher of Bible conferences; he addresses the greatest youth Bible conference in the country every summer at Pinebrook, near East Stroudsburg.

Notre Dame Alumnae To Attend Annual Mass

The annual memorial mass of the Notre Dame de Namur Alumnae will be offered in the chapel of the Convent of Notre Dame tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. It will be celebrated by the Rev. Daniel F. X. Hart, S. J., formerly director of the retreat house at Mount Manresa, Staten Island, N. Y., and now a member of the faculty of Gonzaga College High School. The music will be provided by the members of the alumnae.

Following the mass a breakfast will be served in the convent. A short business meeting will follow. Reports from the various committees sponsoring the alumnae's activities will be presented.

'Mind' Will Be Theme Of Lesson-Sermon

"Mind" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school is at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited to attend the church services, including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hearken unto this, O Job: Stand still and consider the wondrous works of God. Dost thou know the balancings of the clouds, the wondrous works of Him which is perfect in knowledge?" (Job 37: 14, 16.)

Patriotism to Be Theme At 15th Street Church

A service of Christian patriotism will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Fifteenth Street Christian Church, with presentation of new flags and a new service roll. The Christian flag is the gift of Mrs. Charles Douglas. Duane S. Gill, representing the Fidelis Class, will present the staffs and standards, and Miss Amanda Bishop will present the American Flag. "Christian Soldiers" will be the theme of a talk by the Rev. Leslie L. Bowers, with concluding music by the junior choir.

Dr. Niebuhr to Speak At Prayer Service

Prof. Reinhold Niebuhr, of Union Theological Seminary, New York, will speak at the 11 o'clock prayer service tomorrow at St. John's Church, Lafayette Square. Author of several books on theology, Dr. Niebuhr enjoys a world-wide reputation for clear thinking on religious problems. His works appear regularly in Christian Century and Atlantic Monthly.

French Service Tomorrow

At the French service at St. John's Episcopal Church tomorrow at 4 p. m. the Rev. Andre F. Liotard, pastor of the French congregation, will preach on the subject "Pas de Plus." On Thursday at 5 p. m. Mr. Liotard will begin a series of Lenten services to be held at that hour each Thursday during Lent.

Church of Two Worlds

"I Put My Trust in the Lord" will be the subject of the Rev. H. Gordon Burroughs tomorrow evening at the Church of Two Worlds, in the Hotel Continental. At the midweek meeting on Wednesday night there will be a lecture by the minister, followed by a message service.

Bishop to Confirm 45

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will visit Trinity Episcopal Church, Piney Branch Road and Dahlia Street, tomorrow at 11 a. m., confirming a class of 45 candidates and preaching.
